NO BULL!

JUST WINNERS

IF YOU SERIOUSLY WANT TO WIN AT FOOTBALL,
THERE IS ONLY MIKE WARREN'S OPINION!

So what's NEW!

Year in and year out, the word has spread like wildfire across the country...

IF YOU REALLY WANT TO MAKE MONEY BEATING THE VEGAS FOOTBALL LINE, YOU NEED THE TOP SELECTIONS FROM

MIKE WARREN

Of course, unless you've just arrived from Mars or spent the last 20 years sleeping, YOU KNOW THAT! You've seen Mike Warren on television or heard him on radio or read about him in the newspapers.

You've seen MIKE WARREN'S HAPPY CUSTOMERS toasting "THE CHAMP" in your local pub as game after game falls into the "W" column.

THE "W" DOESN'T JUST STAND FOR WINNERS
IT STANDS FOR WARREN!!!!

WINNERS MEAN MONEY... AND THAT'S WHAT MIKE WARREN CUSTOMERS GET PLENTY OF DURING THE FOOTBALL SEASON.

There are HUNDREDS OF REASONS for you to join up with Mike Warren... AND THE MOST IMPORTANT 100 ARE THE INDIVIDUAL WINNERS YOU'LL GET, PLUS: *CONSISTENCY—not just in weeks—but measured over years.

*SUPER SPECIAL SITUATIONS THAT HIT 100% WINNERS LAST SEASON, INCLUDING COLLEGE LOCK OF THE YEAR

VA. TECH (-4) over VIRGINIA 48-0

PRO LOCK OF THE YEAR

S. FRANCISCO (-7) over TAMPA 35-21

TRIPLE CROWN PARLAY 3-0 WITH:

ATLANTA (+) over 49ers 27-24; L.A. RAIDERS over Buffalo 27-24; ST. LOUIS (+) over S. Diego 44-14

You see, Mike Warren makes it easy for you to be a winner, from rating his weekly HOT LINE SELECTIONS to telling when to step in and double up or triple on "CAN'T LOSE" SPECIALS like the LOCKS OF THE YEAR and the TRIPLE CROWN.

1984 IS HERE AND NOW IS THE TIME
FOR YOU TO JOIN NUMBER 1

Last year, Mike Warren certainly made his people WINNERS from the pre-season on, hitting 15.5 (75 Per cent) of the NFL AUGUST GAMES! It put people so far ahead that they knew they would have a MONEY MAKING SEASON, A SURE PROFIT, EVEN BEFORE THE FIRST KICK-OFF OF THE REGULAR SEASON.

And, in 1984, MIKE WILL GIVE ALL YOU WHO SIGN UP BEFORE AUGUST 4th

A SPECIAL EARLY BIRD BONUS THE PRE-SEASON SELECTIONS ABSOLUTELY FREE!!!

This year MAKE IT YOUR TURN TO BE A SURE WINNER BEFORE THE SEASON BEGINS. SIGN UP

FOR EITHER ONE OF MIKE WARREN'S TWO SUPER FOOTBALL SERVICES and Mike will give you the PRE-SEASON, a $75 VALUE, FREE FOR HOT LINE SELECTIONS.

All you have to do is SIGN UP BEFORE AUGUST 4 FOR THE SERVICE THAT WILL MAKE YOU A WINNER....

*THE FOOTBALL FORECAST—THE AUTHORITY FOOTBALL WEEKLY hailed coast to coast AS MUST READING for anyone who is serious ABOUT WINNING! Twenty-four or more pages each week of the FOOTBALL SEASON through the Super Bowl, packed with statistics, inside stories, full coverage of college and pro football, with writers direct from the scene reporting especially for you.

PLUS: MIKE WARREN'S EXCLUSIVE ADVANCE SELECTIONS against the early Las Vegas line with Mike's own handicapping logic laid out for you. A BARGAIN AT $50 for the season, especially when you consider you'll get about 200 pro and college selections, and Mike's BEST BETS were 14 and 2 last year against the spread. Mailed direct to your home each Monday so you get it in plenty of time for the weekend.

*THE HOT LINE—The difference between WINNING CONSISTENTLY and trying to get lucky is hard work. Serious handicappers stay on the job up until hours before kick-off. Why? Because late breaking information, weather, updated injury reports, team morale, even crowd size have a bearing on the outcome of games.

Mike Warren and his national staff stay on top of things in football, both college and pro, until the last possible minute. When all the final work is done and everything re-checked, the HOT LINE games are released by telephone the morning of the game, just hours before kick-off. Hot Line subscribers make money on THREE OR FOUR SOLID PLAYS each weekend, plus some extra MONDAY NIGHT SELECTIONS, through the end of the regular season, college and pro. The Hot Line gives you the SELECTIONS THAT PAY OFF for only $150—less than $2.35 a pick throughout the season.

SPECIAL COMBINATION PRICE JUST $175, FOR

"The A Play SHOW"

Meet Jim Feist

James J. (Jim) Feist, now in his second decade of providing sports handicapping data and selections to clients coast-to-coast, obviously is here to stay. His 24-hour Scorephone service, direct from Las Vegas and Detroit, logs 50,000 calls a day. The Feist in-house printing plant churns out a million sports schedules annually, listing home team, visitor, game time in 4 time zones and provides the reader with space for quarter-by-quarter scores, advance injury information and weather notations. Sixty toll-free lines (at last count) link fans to Feist's sportsline service which updates pointspreads and overs/unders total quotes. Suffice it to say, Feist's private list of clients for his sports selections service is growing fast.

It's a sports information empire.

Feist has embraced new computer technology, manned by a staff of 50, to bring his highly-personalized "space-age" service instantly to his client network.

But the electronic hookups, computerized services and multiplex telephone line facilities will never replace the bottom line of Feist's success: WORK.

Feist, 40, says work is the magic key to success. Working harder than the next guy and never letting down in the continuing effort to get the "edge" that makes sure the Feist numbers are better (better?) and faster than the competition—numbers that are always accurate and more effective than those used by the company down the street.

Feist was a crackerjack salesman for a variety of enterprises before starting his own chemical company in Philadelphia some years ago. In five years, he sold the chemical concern for enough cash to back him in his dream venture: the launching of a first-class sports information service in Las Vegas, the gambling mecca.

Feist's interest in sports dates back to boyhood days when he bet on the outcome of games, using bottle caps, nickels, quarters and dollar bills. His competition was anyone in the neighborhood who liked to take a chance on the outcome of a sports event. Feist usually won his wagers with his young friends. Later, when he was betting real money he continued his earlier successes, which was fine, except that Feist wanted to know why he won—why he succeeded when others failed. So he analyzed himself and found that he simply outworked the others; he dredged up specialized information that gave him the edge in picking winners. He never bet in the blind. He found dollar-valued situations and acted upon them, following percentage-of-bankroll money management practices.

Feist has devoted his young lifetime to improving his knowledge of sports and games. He's a football fan, sure. A basketball fan. A baseball fan. He loves hockey. But he's also good at poker, gin and pool. At age 17 he won a handsome Mercury coupe in a Philadelphia pool game.

Sportswriter Pete Axthelm of NBC-TV sports and Inside Sports Magazine calls Feist the "Guru of Sports Totals." The Philadelphia Inquirer's Jay Searcy rated Jim Feist Sports "one of the nation's best handicapping services." Jim won The Inquirer's National Sports Handicapping Contest twice and was runner-up on a third occasion. Oui Magazine named Feist among America's "Best 10 handicappers." The accolades seem endless.

Feist, a native of Philadelphia, comes from a musician's background. His father played trumpet in the big bands and Little Jim got to traipse along. Jim met his petite blonde wife, JoAnn in Philadelphia. She is a former Bucks County, Pennsylvania schoolteacher. JoAnn is executive office manager of the Feist enterprises in Las Vegas and when he is on the sports trail (Feist jets more than 100,000 miles a year) she is at the business controls.

Feist believes sports wagering should be expanded to other states. Actually, but two states (Utah and Hawaii) have some kind of legalized gambling, be it horse racing, bingo, the lottery or what have you. "It makes business sense to let state and local government in on the action in the form of taxes," Feist emphasizes.

Anyone wishing to gamble, whatever the sport or game, should set aside a bankroll for that purpose. They should never bet the basic family funds—it always should be money the player can afford to lose. Bet a percentage of the bankroll—that way, you'll be increasing your bets when winning and cutting back when on the inevitable losing roll.

"Sometimes when I'm up at 3 a.m., working on my figures, I can't help but smile when I think of all the others who are sound asleep," Feist says. "I know I'll have the edge come sun-up."

Success is never a fluke," he counsels. "Success is hard work, discipline and a never-ending search for excellence."

Feist concluded:

"Put it this way—the computer and hard work are here to stay."

Jim Feist—poker player, grocery clerk, waiter in the Poconos, pool shooter, gin master, entrepreneur, sports handicapper par excellence, achiever, workaholic, good guy to lost dogs—lots of action on a real small frame. He's the one the nation turns to for the edge—top handicapping based on superior numbers that are right as rain.

All You Can Do Is Win!!

Meet Gary Austin

nearly dawn and there are no games in progress. Austin had gone to bed at 11, and risen at four, as is his custom.

In 1969, when Continental Can promoted him to West Coast manager of sales, service and distribution, it appeared he had settled into the life of a work-driven, career-minded member of corporate America. Then, one day in 1971, Austin was shooting a round of golf with a friend in Mission Viejo. As often happened, the talk drifted to other sports, to outcomes of games, to bets.

"Ever think about betting sports with a bookie?" His friend asked.

"I don't know any bookies."

Austin bet, and the first week he won $200. In his fifth week he won $700. "I thought it was all the money in the world," he recalls. "I just wondered if I'd actually get paid that much money by the bookie."

He did get paid, and he kept betting, and he kept winning more often than he lost. Finally he quit his job to devote himself entirely to gambling. His wife, remarkably understanding, did not object.

"The thing about it was the instant reward," Austin says. "It didn't depend on whether the company did well. I didn't have to share the profits of my work with others who maybe weren't working as hard. If I did a good job, I won. Of course, if I did a bad job, I not only didn't get a paycheck, but I also had to give back last week's pay check."

Austin founded the Edge in the Spring of 1979 after gaining a measure of fame among wagerers by winning the first Castaways Pro Football Handicappers Championship in the Fall of 1978. Fifty-six of the biggest sports bettors paid $1,000 apiece to enter, and Austin got the $42,000 first prize by winning 62% of his bets, four percentage points better than the second-place finishers. This percentage has never been topped nor tied and is unlikely to be bettered until Gary himself does it.

During the next four years Gary began to formulate plans for satisfying an ambition - he wanted to become the "Linemaker for the country." It became apparent that the only way to have his line accepted, was to allow people to wager into it. The only way that was possible, was for Gary to open a Sports Book. It was at this juncture in Gary's life when he had to decide between fulfilling his dream or continuing with his highly acclaimed Sports Service. Certainly he couldn't split himself in two. But destiny had a hand in molding Gary's life - a chance meeting brought Gary and Ed Horowitz together, a vertiable marriage made in heaven ensued. The rest is history, Gary joined forces with American Sports Advisors which freed him from the daily regimentation of overseeing his sports service. After months and months of 'The thing about it (betting) was the instant reward. If I did a good job, I won.'

searching for locations, and countless negotiations, it finally came to pass - the grand opening of the Gary Austin Race and Sports Book, known in Las Vegas as "where the numbers originate."

So the lights are still on at 4:30 a.m. at the Austin residence on a day in baseball, or basketball or football. The routine is the same, only the hats change.

At 4:30 on a Saturday morning, the gambling emporiums along Fremont Street in downtown Las Vegas are still neon bonfires devouring money. The rest of the city is sensibly in darkness. At least most of it is. To the south, past the blue taxiway lights of McCarran International Airport and not far from Wayne Newton's ranch, a pair of palm-lined roads wind through hushed estates of other Las Vegas headliners - Sergio Franchi, Bobbie Gentry, Jerry Vale, Robert Goulet. Among these entertainers' pied-a-terre is the rambling house that Gary Austin purchased in the summer of 1977. Lights are on in Austin's house. He has become a full-time bettor, a sports bettor. Gary has bet increasing amounts on sports since the beginning of the 1970's; now he wagers more than $30 million a year on football, baseball, basketball and hockey - which is more than the GNP of many nations.

So the lights are on at 4:30 a.m. on a day late in the baseball season, early in the football season. Austin sits in an oversize leather chair at the desk in the office in his home. In the room are four television sets, turned off at this non-sports hour, and bookshelves containing best sellers, college textbooks and numerous trophies won in youthful golf and ping-pong competitions. Austin was the Michigan State ping-pong champion in his sophomore year. There are photographs of his wife, Judy and their children, and one of the 1968 World Champion Detroit Tigers. The rat-a-tat-tat of a teletype machine hammering out the UPI sports wire resounds from Austin's office through the otherwise darkened house. A ticker, the sort used at ball parks, is silent. It is, after all,

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Independent-ly Wealthy

By JIM FEIST

If you have ever played football under the lights, you know that it seems different than daytime. The game is the same, the strategy is the same, but it feels different. It is more exciting, because it is still a new experience. Most schools play all their games in sunlight, so the occasional tryst under the moon has that much more allure. The different always does.

There are some aspects of night football that are not only new to the players, but they are also new to the sports gambler as well. I have studied pointspread results of night football and have discovered some areas where the linesmaker has not caught up to the sharp handicapper.

It is my goal to be right as many times as possible when I am handicapping the Saturday football card. I am looking for any angle and I have discovered that at night, there are many instances where I have a decided edge. The independent schools, such as Penn State, Pittsburgh, Tulane, South Carolina, Boston College, Army, Navy, Virginia Tech, West Virginia, Southern Mississippi and Notre Dame all have football histories as proud, if not prouder than the Alabama's, Nebraska's, Ohio State's, etc.

With this thought in mind, I researched how independents do verse the spread when playing these conference aligned teams.

They usually hold their own in most categories, but I found that as a home underdog, they did exceedingly well. Since 1973, their record against the spread has been an unbelievable 36-17. This is a 67.8% winning factor and must always be considered. The theory then is simple: BET ANY INDEPENDENT HOME UNDERDOG AT NIGHT AGAINST ANY CONFERENCE ALIGNED TEAM.

A couple of reasons stand out for the strength of the play. The most obvious is that they are at home. This would not account for the fact that under natural light, daytime, the record is only 35-42. The disparity between the records does not allow this to be a justifiable reason in and of itself. There have got to be contributing factors to add to the home field advantage.

The fact that the independent school needs to impress the pollsters could help give them inspiration. Ohio State vs Michigan, Nebraska vs Oklahoma, Alabama vs Georgia, Texas vs SMU. These schools are always strong and usually only have to see who wins their battle to impress the Bowl committees. The independent school has no conference, no automatic Bowl bids. They must be impressive in their wins and they must play well against superior opponents, even in defeat.

On a normal Saturday in October or November there will be at least 35 college football games competitive enough to put on the Vegas board. All but a few of these games are over before evening. Local television picks up the few night games and it is this opportunity to impress TV viewers that can help the underdog try a little harder. The player is now trying to impress the home crowd, the all important pollsters, and the viewing audience. If you do not think these are important factors, you're not familiar enough with the world of college football to ever show a profit.

The other factor I think is important is the killing time factor. The home team awakes to familiar surroundings. The player has less difficulty filling the dead time during the afternoon, than the visiting player. The visiting player can take all day to find something to fill the void. Just by sitting around waiting, he loses the competitive edge. Add to this that it is not as important to his Bowl chances and even the coach can lose that edge that he never loses during a conference game.

Last year, the record was 2-1 vs the spread. Boston College got us off to an early start. They opened Sept. 3 vs tiny Morgan State and walloped them 45-12. Their next opponent was Clemson. The Tigers had just beaten their opening game sacrifice, Western Carolina by the score of 44-10. For whatever reason, the linemaker was more in awe of Clemson's win than Boston College's and the Tigers were favored by 5 points. The Eagles were down 13-3 at halftime, but came out flying, both offensively and defensively, in the second half to pull out a stunning 31-16 victory and a win for the system.

The second victory for the theory occurred on October 1. The Gamecocks of South Carolina hosted the Trojans from USC. Everybody knows that USC is a football power and no one was particularly surprised to see them a nine point favorite. Followers of this system were not surprised to see the Gamecocks destroy them 38-14 in front of the hometown fans.

Whatever the reason, the nighttime is the right time to bet the independent home underdog against the conference aligned team. The night has a thousand eyes and they will be envious eyes as you collect from your local bookmaker.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

A Big Gap in The Big-Ten

By GARY AUSTIN

While many still believe in the age old adage that "there's no place like home," let me be the first to inform you that this does not always apply, especially when it comes to betting college football.

In the Big-10, where home favorites traditionally have been strong—thanks largely to the overwhelming success of Michigan and Ohio State—there exists an area where visiting underdogs positively excel. It is in the 7-10 pointspread range. Home favorites in the Big-10 are only 17-35 since 1973 in this area. By betting the away underdog in this spread area, one would have realized 67.3 percent winners. This is a truly remarkable winning average and worthy of constant consideration.

It seems that the difference between the teams has narrowed over the years and the wise bettor is taking advantage of the disappearing disparity. The theory holds even when the team in question is playing an out-of-conference opponent. As the last dozen Rose Bowls have proven, the Big-10 is not as awe-inspiring as it used to be. Their plodding ground control offense can no longer run over opponents because of the bigger and quicker linemen and linebackers all teams employ. They also suffer because of their reputation, because the flashier passing type quarterbacks look upon Big-10 schools as a bad place to display their skills for the pro scouts, so end up going to schools that cater to their abilities.

Colleges like Stanford and Brigham Young have gotten as much press and publicity from Plunkett, Elway, McMahon and Young as Michigan and Ohio State have gotten from Archie Griffin or Pete Johnson.

I am not suggesting that the Big-10 is going the way of the dinosaur, because surely it is not. It is just that its style of play does not allow for mistakes. If you play a ground control, close to the vest type offense and you fall behind, catching up becomes a problem. Fortunately it plays superior defense as a rule and seldom falls behind by that many points. Last year's Rose Bowl was an exception, not the rule. A big team will get its share of victories, but the score will be close and 7-10 points has proven historically too much wood to lay.

The theory then is simple: BET AGAINST ALL BIG-10 HOME FAVORITES WHO GIVE AWAY BETWEEN 7 AND 10 POINTS.

Last year was not a typical year as the system was only 1-1. There were fewer plays to choose from than normal because of many extenuating circumstances. I have found that a system that is this reliable will take more than one off year to lose its effectiveness. I totally expect the coming 1984 season to supply a larger number of winners.

On October 8, 1983 Indiana hosted Minnesota. The game will not be recorded in the annals of history. There will not be a movie made to celebrate the game or for that matter, any of the participants. The Hoosiers, coming off a 43-18 trouncing by the Michigan Wolverines, were installed as a nine point favorite over the visiting Golden Gophers. The Gophers had looked worse the previous game by being roasted 69-18 by the Ohio State Buckeyes. It was not surprising that Indiana won the game 38-31, nor was it surprising that they did not cover the spread.

It was the only win for the system, but because there was only one loss, the system has lost none of its appeal and I am looking forward to using it again this season.

The Crack in the Liberty Bowl

By JIM FEIST

In 1959 the city of Philadelphia was picked as the site for the newly created Liberty Bowl game. It was perfectly fitting that the city that had the Liberty Bell should host the bowl game. A city so identified with our heritage should be the showcase for some of America's finer football teams. Many people were of the opinion that the sport that was beginning to nudge baseball as the country's favorite should be on display in Philadelphia and what better name than the Liberty Bowl.

This display of patriotism lasted through 1963. At that time free enterprise took over and a search was made for a more profitable site. Eventually the game came to rest in Memphis, Tennessee. Only in America can the Liberty Bell be in Philadelphia and the Liberty Bowl be in Memphis.

No matter, what really counts to the professional bettor is how he can show a profit. This puts him into the camp of those in favor of free enterprise. It is only fitting that a trend that is exceptionally strong can be found when examining the results of the Liberty Bowl games since 1973.

The only favorite to cover in the Liberty Bowl game was Penn State in 1979 when a late field goal put them over the top against Tulane, barely overcoming the 2½ point handicap. The system is ultra simple: BET THE UNDER-DOG IN THE LIBERTY BOWL. Don't consider the spread, the teams, the weather or where it is. If it is the Liberty Bowl, play the dog. Since 1973, the record is 10-1 vs the points. That is a 90.9% winning factor. It is suitable for framing.

Last year, Doug Flutie and Boston College took on the Irish. It makes no difference that B. C. outplayed Notre Dame, all that really counts is that Notre Dame won the game 19-18 and the favored Eagles flew home to Foxboro wondering how they could miss so many extra points. They were only favored by 1½ and if they had converted they would have won.

The year before, the Liberty Bowl marked the final game in the career of Paul "Bear" Bryant. His Crimson Tide managed to overcome a stubborn, Illinois team under the expert guidance of coach Mike White. Unfortunately for the bettors who wagered on the "Bear" they had to lay too many points. Alabama won the game 21-15, but the line was seven. When the smoke had cleared, another dog had covered.

In 1981, powerful Ohio State was averaging 32 points a game with their powerful running and passing attack. They took on the Midshipmen from Navy who's main claim to fame was a tough defense allowing only 13 points a game. Their offense had managed just three points against Army in the final season game. If they were going to stay close, it would be the defense that would do it. The Buckeyes were favored by 14½ and figured to trounce the smaller Middies. Of course, the Buckeyes scored their 31 points, but were lucky to escape with a win as the anemic Navy offense put 28 points on the board. Underdog magic had struck again.

There is no logical reason that I can think of to explain the phenomenal luck the underdog has had in the Liberty Bowl the past 11 years but I have managed to be on the right side for most of these games. If something is working for you, go with it.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Money Management

By GARY AUSTIN

Money management is perhaps one of the most misused and misinterpreted terms in sports wagering. Loosely translated, money management means that you "never go broke," you always have a turn at bat. It's like driving a car, when the road is narrow, winding, and bumpy, you reduce speed, but when it's wide, straight and smooth you speed up.

If you are going to be a player, then quite simply, you need something to play with—it's called a bankroll. The base concept of sports wagering is to end with a larger bankroll than you originally started with. Let's consider the case of a player who starts with a $10,000 bankroll. A good guide to follow would be wager 2-3% on an average play and no more than 4-5% on a strong play. Translated to dollars, $200-$300 on a regular play and $400-$500 on a strong play. Come settlement day with your man, hopefully you have won and let's say your bankroll is now $12,000. It is imperative, repeat, imperative that you retain the same percentages on your next week's wagers. However, notice that your 2-3% play now jumps to a $240-$360 play, while your 4-5% strong play increases to a range of $480-$600.

Having spent 12 years in the business, I can safely conclude that the single most devastating factor in taking out a player is bad money management, it is not bad handicapping. John Q. Public encounters a winning week and feels his oats. The following week he doubles and triples his wager amounts, winds up picking more losers than winners and he is busted—he is out of action.

The opposite occurs in losing streaks, with the same devastating results. A player loses a few games and starts to chase or double his wagers with the thought of getting even. Win or lose, you must never employ more than 5% of your available funds. Will never forget the case of a customer walking into our office during football and purchasing our selection service. We gave him three moderate plays for Saturday and he unloaded his entire roll on those plays. Low and behold, all three games went down and our customer left town, broke and disgruntled. On Sunday we swept the board and followed that with a double dipper win on Monday (won the game and the total). Our weekend record was a strong 7-3 and yet our customer took himself out of the action.

Money management is the key to successful sports gambling. Remember, no one can win every day, nor every week, nor every month. Gambling is a full time business and must be treated as such. You can't win if you don't play, you can't play if you have blown your bankroll. Use our guidelines, when you are out of step, your play becomes proportionately smaller. When you are in step with your selections, the amounts you play will increase and so will your wallet size!

By ROGER L. TREVANIAN

Lovers of drama, comedy, art, music, sports and news have been able to turn on the television and indulge themselves for over three decades, now, but it wasn't until recently that some innovative programming addressed the needs of the countless millions who wager on sporting events. The show, which began on Manhattan cable five years ago with a sparse 300,000 subscribers, and last year reached 11 million homes, is called The A-Play Show. It is the brainchild of Chipper Chirimbis, an accomplished prognosticator of sporting events—notably football and basketball—who first saw the need for such programming. Enlisting the aid of Ed "The Professor" Horowitz, one of the most revered and respected figures in the field, Chirimbis and company have turned the regular half-hour show (Saturdays at 11:30 AM, on the SPN Network) into required viewing for the sports gambler.

What makes the show unique is its format. There are no instant replays of remarkable catches or gyrating cheerleaders. There are no self-serving interviews with players or coaches. You'll see no plays diagrammed, no meaningless statistics quoted. What the show does provide is expert analysis and opinion by the program's hosts, Chirimbis and Horowitz. Additionally, Jim Feist, another stalwart in the industry, files on-the-spot reports from Las Vegas, the nation's wagering capital. The A-Play Handicapping Show also features guest appearances by well-known handicappers like Gary Austin and Mike Warren, as well as spokespeople from companies like All-American Sports and The Captain.

Show Rates an A

Each week, four or five college games are studied, along with all 14 NFL contests. The handicapping professionals review and interpret the pointspread line (with Feist quoting the latest changes and developments), implement the applicable theories, trends, methods and techniques (a Horowitz specialty), and evaluate the teams on a wagering basis. Selections are then made as to which team to bet and why.

Besides the expertise delivered, the show's timeliness also proves beneficial to the sports gambler. Because it directly precedes regular TV (either CBS or ABC) coverage of the week's major college games, the show's late-breaking format becomes an invaluable tool for the bettor. Last-minute injuries are diligently noted; line changes are explored; weather conditions are updated and their affect on the game are added into the equation which, more often than not, results in a winning prediction.

The show's premise is a sound one: provide the sports wagerer with enough pertinent and meaningful information to give him an edge over those who do not watch the program. In this regard, The A-Play Handicapping Show is a major success. It does not pander or pursue, but teaches and trains the armchair quarterback how to call his own plays.

The show will reach between 14-16 million homes this year. If you wager on sports, your home should be one of them.

COACHES NEED COACHING IN NUTRITION

If you're an athlete searching for the optimal diet to enhance your performance, don't ask your coach.

Two East Texas State University researchers gave a nutrition test to 92 football, basketball and track coaches.

Only 14 knew enough about nutrition to be considered knowledgeable but, amazingly, all coaches said they were giving nutrition advice to their players.

The majority of the coaches saw themselves as adequately schooled in nutrition, even though only 10 of the 92 had even taken a nutrition course.

The weakest area for most coaches was nutritional supplementation, where adherence to old myths was common.

Many still don't know that salt pills aren't needed by heavy perspirers or that excess protein won't build muscle mass.

Three-quarters were unaware that thirst is not an adequate indicator of need for water.

Fortunately, most of the coaches agreed with the authors that a basic course in nutrition should be required of all coaches.

Big Bucks Betting the Bucks

By MARK HARRIS
All-American Sports

The Ohio State football program is universally accepted as a success. Even people who did not like "Woody" Hayes never denied his coaching genius. It would have been difficult to substantiate, since his won-lost record was 238-72, which is a nifty .759. Earle Bruce took over in 1979 and his five year record is a fine 47-13. The program is in excellent hands.

Ohio State has had five Heisman Trophy winners, only Notre Dame with six has more. The Buckeyes have been to 10 Rose Bowls since 1947. They have been to bowl games the past 11 seasons in a row. They are 55-32 vs the points against Big-10 rivals the past 11 years. Ohio State is constantly in the top 10 of every major football poll at the end of the season. By every standard of success, they are a success.

The only thing the Buckeyes have never done is cover the spread at home when they are favored by less than 10. It makes no difference who the opponent is, Ohio State just does not cover the spread. Since 1973, it is 0-9 against the number. No matter what its successes, no matter how often it goes 8-3, 9-2 or 10-1, it has their trouble at home against opponents who have half a chance.

Last year, there were no plays, unfortunately for those who were aware of the record. In 1982, there were three winning plays and they happened on successive weekends. Three was a charmed number for the knowledgeable handicapper.

After opening that season with two wins against Baylor and Michigan State, the Buckeyes had three home games in a row and the future looked bright. The first was Stanford, and John Elway proved a strong foe as he led the 6½ point underdog Cardinals to a stunning 23-20 upset of the invincible Staters. Of course, the loss was a shock, but surely it would not influence them in the next game. If anything, it would make them try even harder to win.

On the next weekend, the Florida State football squad raided the Ohio State campus and the Buckeyes were favored by seven to bump off the visitors. The Seminoles were on the warpath that day and swamped Ohio State by the score of 34-17, supplying another win for those in the know. It was really tough on the Buckeyes because the Seminoles had done the same thing to them in 1981. OSU was favored by seven on that day, too and the FSU team put them away on that autumn day 36-27.

The third loss in 1982 came from a very unexpected source. Wisconsin, a weak sister in the Big-10 conference, had not won a game in Columbus, Ohio since World War I, so it was no surprise that no matter what problems State was experiencing, it would be favored over the Badgers at home. The line was much lower than most remembered it ever being and surely the Buckeyes would get well. They did not. Wisconsin shut them out 6-0 supplying another win for sharp handicappers.

In 1980, it was the same story. The 9-1 home team was favored by only four over the Michigan Wolverines. Michigan was also 9-1 and the winner went to the Rose Bowl. Ohio State was favored by four. The Buckeyes went to the Fiesta Bowl that year, because the Wolverines won the game 9-3.

It is curious that of the nine games since 1973, Ohio State has only won one of them and that was in 1974 when it was favored by 9 over Michigan and won by two 12-10. The only other time it did not lose was in 1976 when it was favored by seven over UCLA and escaped with a 10-10 tie.

It does not seem to matter who the opponent is. It can be perennial Big-10 power Michigan, weak sister Wisconsin, the other conference visiting team like UCLA or Stanford or the non-aligned team like Florida State. If the line is less than 10 run to the bank and withdraw your money because there is a gambling coup about to happen and you want to be a part of it.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Home Sweet Home

By JIM FEIST

Vacations are fine, but it always feels good to be home. Take off your shoes, pull up a chair and relax. Hawaii was great, but Piscataway is better. After two weeks in a foreign land, there is no place like home.

Ralph Sampson was one of the most sought after college basketball players of all time and he stayed in college one more year because he enjoyed the surroundings. He felt like he was at home, he wanted to enjoy it. He was comfortable. I use him as an example of what college life can be. The football player is no different. The college fan, especially the football fan is also no different. If his team has been away for a while, he looks forward to its return.

I have checked the records of major football teams and discovered that there is a winning factor revolving around the first home game of the year. Generally speaking, we can expect the home team to be more enthusiastic than the visiting team on opening day. This is the game that the hell known as Spring Practice was leading up to. It all comes out. Weeks of preparation, sweat, bruises and anticipation come together on opening day.

All this emotion can go to waste on the road. I was curious about how long this emotion could be bottled and stored away. Research uncovered a winning factor that was very strong. Since 1973, any team that plays its first two games on the road and is finally at home the third game is a good bet, but only as a dog. It makes no difference how they did on the road, the fact they are at home against a stronger club makes them a good bet.

The theory is simple: BET ANY HOME UNDERDOG IN THE THIRD GAME IF THE FIRST TWO WERE ON THE ROAD. The 11 year record for this system is a very profitable 16-8. Last year showed a 2-0 log against the spread.

Iowa started the season like a house on fire. It was on the road opening week against Iowa State. Even on the road, the Hawkeyes were favored by 6½ points. Iowa could do nothing wrong and Hayden Fry's troops cooked the Cyclones 51-10 in a laugh. The next week the Hawkeyes were still on the road. This time, the opponent was the usually staunch Penn State Nittany Lions. Once more the Iowa team proved superior and scored a ton of points. They won 42-34 as 2½ point favorites. They could hardly wait to get home and I could hardly wait to get down a few dollars on the Hawkeyes. After scoring 93 points against major college teams, they were still an underdog at home verse Big-10 rival Ohio State. It was too good to resist and they did not disappoint as they continued their winning ways with a 20-14 victory over the previously undefeated Buckeyes.

Iowa is a good, well balanced club and you can be comfortable backing a club like this, but who in his right mind would back Oregon State. The Beavers are one of the worst clubs in the country. They opened the season in their customary fashion by absorbing a 50-6 beating at Arizona. At plus 44, you would have pushed. Unfortunately the line was only plus 24. The following game they were also on the road. This time they were at Portland State and the game was not on the board. The Beavers shocked the sports world by winning 51-14. On this high note, they returned home for their opening home game of the year against USC. The Trojans, despite the resounding Beaver win, went off 24 point favorites. As expected, the bubble burst for Oregon State and they took it on the chin, but the final score of 33-10 was enough to allow us to win another wager.

The system was a perfect 2-0 last year and it seems that emotion will still run high even into the third game. It figures. The team is home and has been waiting to show the home crowd something and the crowd is cheering because it has been a long year plus two weeks since they could show the team how much they missed them. It is also the time my bookie tells me he would like to miss me.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Lone Star Losers

By GARY AUSTIN

The Southwest Conference is like every other in that there are strong teams, medium range teams and poor teams. Rice is the worst and has been for years. TCU and Texas Tech have had intermittent success through the last ten years, but nothing to brag about. The others have taken turns at the top of the pack or at least near it. It has always been a tough conference for the handicapper to get a line on because of the constant fluctuation of power.

The SWC is unlike any other major conference in that almost all of the member teams are from the same state. With the exception of Arkansas, every member of the SWC is located in Texas. State rivalries are inherent and occur almost every week. Every game is a big game. If Texas beats Houston 50-0 in football, don't be surprised to see Houston beat Texas 106-63 in basketball. These rivalries are a part of every day life. The only thing that will make them madder is an outsider like Arkansas horning in on their territory.

A study of SWC game results for the past 11 years turns up some interesting spread results. There is money to be made betting against SWC home favorites of less than 10, but only in night games. Since 1973, this record is 21-12 vs the points. That is a winning edge of 63.9% and gives us a good area in which to look for profit.

The system is simple: BET AGAINST ANY HOME FAVORITE LESS THAN 10 IN ANY SWC NIGHT GAME. Last year the record was 3-2 and included some exciting Texas style football.

The first winning play was on October 1. The Baylor Bears, with one of their better teams in recent years were at Houston playing the Cougars, who were trying to determine which way their season was going. The Cougars had destroyed Rice and Lamar by the combined score of 87-49. On the other hand, they had lost to Miami and Oregon. Houston was favored by five against the team that had just lost to Texas Tech. The Bears proved to be too much for the Cougars and coasted to a 42-21 victory.

The second win was at the expense of the same Baylor Bears. Texas A&M with one of the improving teams in the conference trounced Houston the previous week and were loaded for bear when they arrived in Waco to face Baylor. Baylor was favored by four over the Aggies and if a tie is like kissing your sister, call these two siblings brother and sister because the game ended 13-13, making only the bettors, who took the points, winners.

The third win for the system occurred on November 19 in Houston. The Cougars were hosting Texas Tech and had not lost to them since 1978. The Red Raiders hardly looked like the kind of team to put your money on after losing to SMU 33-7 the week before. The oddsmaker installed Houston as a 7½ point favorite and Houston scored 43 points and won again. Fortunately for the system, the Cougars defense had a lot more holes in it than swiss cheese and the low scoring Raiders responded with 41 points, covering the spread and making us a winner.

Texans take their football seriously and since Judge Roy Bean started hanging people, they take out their anger on the football field.

A lot of football is played at night in Texas because of the heat and because they have the whole day to get into the swing of things. When Texans have the whole day to get into the mood they generally respond with winning football, even at the expense of the host and if you play it right, at the expense of your bookie.

College Football's Powerhouse Flip-Flops

By BRUCE McCLARREN

THE PRESSURE-COOKER ENVIRONMENT

If you, as a casual football observer, can locate the allegedly best teams in America, just imagine the intensity reserved for these particular teams' chances by pressure groups, such as alumni, funders, recruiters, the college administrations themselves. They KNOW that good old Podunk U. is supposed to knock them dead this year. After all, hasn't the national media focused its powerful spotlight on Podunk's ivy-covered walls? Dare anyone, least of all a football coach, embarrass Podunk's reputation? Dare anyone fail to turn in an awe inspiring performance, especially early in the season when the national rankings are being juggled on the basis on who won and how they won? Which leads us to the second rule:

Get set to play any highly-rated team which failed to cover the points spread in either its first or second game of the season.

THE FLIP-FLOP FACTOR

I've been an observer of the college football scene for several decades and I can't remember the last time that this wagering plan -- okay, call it a "system" if you wish -- has failed to come up with a host of solid early-season plays. The reasons behind the plan's success rate should be obvious:

1. We concentrate on the best available teams.
2. We back them after they've been surprised by an opponent.
3. We take advantage of the top-rated team's probability of rebounding and playing a big game.
4. We make plays only during the opening weeks of the season, when form reversals seem to be plentiful but a return to a particular class level seems likely. Later in the year, injuries, a team's overrated bearing and other matters will mitigate against us. Early season, however, is the very best time -- the only time, it seems -- to implement the method.

Of course, the more bizarre the method and the further away it strays from the handicapping realities of this game, the better are your chances of latching onto a scheme that is oddball, at best, and a moneyburner, at worst. I guess a "system" could be derived concerning the betting of teams whose nicknames end in the letter "O" or who happen to wear red shirts and white uniform pants which would show a short-term profit.

Instead, let's offer a plan that always seems to work during the early stages of a college season. Why is it a powerhouse method? Because we concentrate on the nation's very best teams and we back them when their emotional levels are extremely high, when a big-game performance is critical and -- most importantly -- when the mentor of this particular team just might decide to let the scoreboard light up like a short-circuited video game. Here are the circumstances which must be met before a play can result.

GET 'EM EARLY IN THE YEAR

There really are few surprises in college football these days. Not that upsets won't occur, but I'm talking about the pre-season polls that list the top twenty teams in the country. At the end of the year, a handful of these clubs might fall by the wayside but, for the most part, the final ratings will come very, very close to the eventual championship quality clubs. It's very easy to identify these teams. Just read through anybody's football annual for the top-team selections. And that leads us to the first rule:

Concentrate on the nation's ranked top 20 teams and only consider the first three games on their schedules.

LAST YEAR'S RECORD

Last season, according to my research, 15 games became eligible for play via the method we've just outlined. The plan's success rate was laudable and then some. Of the 15 contests selected, 11 of the propositions turned out to be points spread winners.

This high win rate doesn't surprise us; we've seen the plan rack up such a winning margin in the past. This year and future seasons should see continued successes.

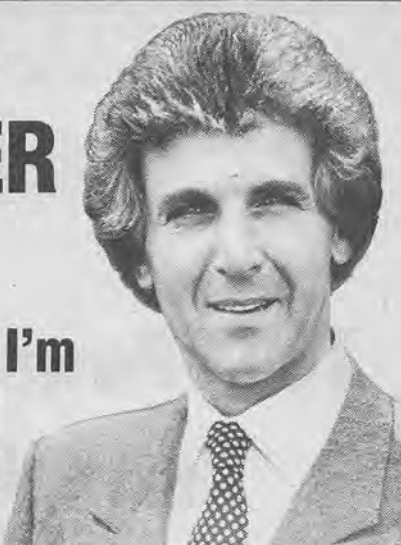

Now for some examples. Last year, Alabama, as usual, was picked to be one of the top collegiate squads in existence. In their opening game, however, the Tide, an 18-point pick over Georgia Tech, failed to cover as they recorded a 20-7 win.

Okay, the system says that we can wager on a team like Alabama if in the team's first or second game of the season the club failed to cover the spread. So, next time out, when 'Bama met Ole Miss, the lads in crimson seemed to lay it on with more than a modicum of gusto. The final score: Alabama 40 Mississippi 0.

Remember that we're concentrating on teams that have been placed in the national spotlight; they are expected to be good and, due to some of the prevailing pressure factors in modern-day football, they'd damn well better be. And, like it or not, one area which receives the closest of scrutiny is the points spread.

Perhaps the most classic example of a team rebounding after a showing which failed to garner a points spread win in its opening trio of games was evidenced by Michigan last season. The Wolverines, in their first game of the season, turned in an overall lackluster performance when they just edged out Washington State, 20-17, even though the Cougars were dramatic underdogs (15 points). This game didn't exactly escape the attention of the Wolverines' most vociferous backers. They wanted something a bit better in the squad's next battle. They got it. Playing on the road, Michigan, a 4-point dog, played nothing less than a marvelous game at Washington and, even though the team lost to the Huskies, the eventual one-point winning margin of the Cougars failed to cover the spread. This plan's principles did, though, and I'll be shocked if they don't come up with a high winning mark again this year through the season's early going.

HERE'S MY ANSWER

To those of you who were afraid the Las Vegas Sports Books would start using the Analyzer AND MAKE THEIR LINES IMPOSSIBLE TO BEAT.

To my winning friends, relax:

I personally have BANNED THE ANALYZER from Las Vegas. We will not accept any orders from that city. That way, we'll keep it from them.

But, a MAJOR BREAKTHROUGH in manufacturing costs has now allowed me to LOWER THE PRICE OF THE ANALYZER and I'm passing the savings along to YOU!

Buyers of the Analyzer were ecstatic in their praise and they made so much money that they thought the original price was "peanuts."

Look at these two comments from HAPPY WINNERS:
"I think you're crazy for selling it for $129.95. It is worth thousands of dollars to me," wrote Michael Mirragni, of Lakewood, N.H.

Ray Hussong, of Bridgeport, CT., was even more blunt about it: "Everyone who bets should own one and the price is peanuts compared to what you will make if you follow your guidelines."

MONEY BACK

A major discovery has allowed us to lower our cost of production for this amazing machine to only $49.95.

IT'S A PRICE YOU CAN'T REFUSE.
THIS IS THE MACHINE THAT

The proof is in the winners and the Football Analyzer picks winners in an easy to use manner. All you have to do is feed its "brain" data right out of your daily newspaper (or, if you desire, we can provide it) and you get the winners.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

The 'Paws' That Refreshes

By JIM FEIST

Since 1973, the Clemson Tigers have a straight up won-lost record of 79-34-5. This is one of the finer records in big time college football. It is also a team that never seems to get any respect. If a pole were taken, it would not surprise me to find that most people have no idea what a "Clemson" is. It is not any Ivy League school. It is not the latest dance craze. It is not the newest sports car from Europe. It is a school in South Carolina.

As a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, Clemson annually plays teams like Maryland and North Carolina. The Tigers also play Georgia and South Carolina every year. They continually play major independents and teams from other major conferences and usually only one game a year will be with a cream puff like The Citadel or Wofford or Western Carolina. Many major teams dot their schedule with as many of these inferior opponents to rack up wins that look good to the UPI and AP.

Clemson coach Danny Ford took over for Charlie Pell who left for the more recognizable name at the University of Florida. Pell left a strong nucleus and Ford has built on it with extraordinary excellence. In five full seasons and a partial of the sixth, Ford's teams have accumulated a 45-11-2 record outright. In the last three seasons Clemson's record of 30-2-2 is the nation's top winning percentage at .912 outright. This includes 19 consecutive ACC wins, 20 consecutive wins at home and one National Championship.

We can safely say that Clemson has a solid football foundation and though not as widely known as the Nebraska's and Notre Dame's, they are a team worth following. In fact, it is interesting to uncover exactly what happens verse the points spread in games concerning teams that are following the Tigers.

I am concerning myself with only ACC teams that play Clemson, because they meet them every year and the results would be more constant. It seems that there is a trend that stands out. In any game involving an ACC team that played Clemson the week before, the favorite has a distinct advantage. It does not matter if the team in question is the favorite or not. The favorite in any game involving any ACC team that played Clemson the previous week has accumulated an amazing 45-23 mark against the spread since 1973.

That is a winning percentage of .670 and as such must always be considered. The theory is simple: BET THE FAVORITE IN ANY GAME INVOLVING AN ACC TEAM THAT PLAYED CLEMSON THE PREVIOUS BETTABLE GAME.

Last year the record was 4-2 vs the points and examples will better help you to see how the system is put into effect. The good part about this is that you will average six or seven games a year and will win most of them.

On October 8, the Virginia Cavaliers played Clemson. They lost which is not relevant to this system. The following week, they were not on the board vs VMI, but the next game was against Wake Forest and the Deacons were favored by 1½. Virginia lost 38-34 in an ACC slugfest and provided a win for the theory.

On October 15, it was Duke's turn to get beat by Clemson. The following week, the Blue Devil's were at Maryland and the Terps were favored by 20. Duke could have stayed home and mailed this one in. They lost 38-3 and provided another win for the system.

On October 22, Clemson played North Carolina State. The Wolfpack lost 27-17 and the following week played South Carolina under the lights on the road. The Gamecocks under new coach Joe Morrison had an up and down year. On this particular evening they were up and won the game 31-17, easily covering the 5½ point role as favorite. As N.C. State went down, up went the stock of the system.

The final win of the season again involved the N.C. State Wolfpack. On November 12, Maryland played Clemson and it too, lost. Maryland took it out on the Pack in their own backyard. The Terps were favored by 10 at N.C. State and coasted to a 29-6 victory, ending their season and ours on a winning note.

Most of these type trends turn out to be only 50%, so one like this, that continually comes out to the plus is worth waiting for. So not only does it pay to follow Clemson, it pays to follow those that follow Clemson.

How to Bet TV Games

by GARY AUSTIN

While collegiate football can count on a few new faces popping into the elite group which make up the top twenty in any given year, there always seems to be that certain nucleus of teams which perennially find themselves with high rankings and T.V. exposure. In wagering circles, they are affectionately referred to as the "Public Teams."

On any Saturday, you're odds on to find UCLA 4-6 vs the spread in 1983, Notre Dame 5-6, Pittsburgh 4-5, Texas 5-5 or North Carolina 2-5 filling the T.V. skies. And thus the stage is set and the trap is armed to catch the unsuspecting football bettor. It's on T.V., so he has to bet it. And which side does John Q. Public play? Why the big name teams of course. Big name teams are nearly always overrated by a point or two because the novice will so often bet them just because of their reputation. The bookmakers realize this and usually make the price on them higher.

Pitfall No. 2 in wagering on college T.V. games is the situation of betting on a team because you are rooting for it. The professional gambler can't afford the luxury of attaching himself to a particular team—winning or losing the games means nothing—covering and getting the money is what it's all about. Remember the cardinal rule of wagering, "Bet with your head and not your heart."

Enough of the don'ts and do's. Examine the schedule of the T.V. opponents, occasionally you may find a team anxious to prove to the nation that they can be competitive with recognized powers and this one appearance on T.V. is their "12th man" on the field.

Illinois was perhaps the best wagering side in all of college football last year when they appeared on national T.V. The Fighting Illini were forced to do just that—fight for recognition in a conference dominated by Ohio State, Michigan and Iowa in recent years. As expected, the Illini had a very strong defense which allowed them to stay close in all of their games. A surprise was the emergence of Jack Trudeau at quarterback. He was not expected to make people forget Tony Eason, but he provided enough last minute heroics, with victories over Ohio State and Michigan and the total blowout of Iowa that people at least will remember Trudeau's name. Coach Mike White and QB Trudeau became familiar names to T.V. audiences and it was no surprise that Illinois won the Big-10 title.

History is yet another excellent teacher. Before you place a call to your friendly entrepreneur and saddle up to the T.V., spend a little time researching the series records between the two opponents. Team personnel changes, coaches change, but an emotion packed rivalry between two schools can carry on for decades and beyond. An Army-Navy, Mich.-Mich. St., Miss.-Miss. St., N. Carolina-N. Carolina St., or a Penn St.-Pittsburgh often produce surprises, and easy money.

Betting college T.V. can be fun, it can even be profitable if you are willing to do some homework. You spend three hours watching the game, why not spend a half hour analyzing the game before you bet it.

How to Find the Hidden Touchdown

By EDMUND SLICK

Today's linesmakers are sharper than a razor's edge, but one thing's for certain, they are human, and humans make errors. The betting public is also human, amassed they represent public opinion and year after year, public opinion loses in the long drawn out football season.

This article is to show how to get an edge by using a solid mathematical base, and how to obtain true value in your college football selections versus the linesmakers. Football is simply a game of numbers. The best numbers win. Having the right side of the numbers requires hard work, dedication and an unrelentless desire for winning.

Basic rules:

a) The mathematical base must be updated week after week.

b) We only play the games that favor a 7-point or better advantage in our favor.

Anything and everything can happen in a football game. The football bounces all kinds of ways. Doesn't it make sense to have a 7-point cushion. Here's how:

Each of these numbers represents the average margin of each team's wins and losses calculated and adjusted to begin the 1984 college football season. You will find that the real good clubs (bowl contenders) average over a +10 or higher, while the worst teams come in at -10 or lower. By matching up the teams, you can get a good idea of what the points spread should be. By comparing this mathematical base and taking an extra 7 points versus the Vegas points spread, the rewards will be well worth every minute of your efforts.

January 2, 1984 Sugarbowl example:

	Math Base	Edge	Spread	Final Score
Auburn	+9		-6	9
Michigan	+17	Michigan by 8		7

If Michigan should win the game by 8 points and Auburn is favored by 6 points, that adds up to an unbelievable 14 point cushion for a play on the Michigan side. Like I said before, the football bounces in many directions. Michigan should have won the game outright. Woulda, coulda, shoulda doesn't count. What counts is the hidden 7-point touchdown in your favor...and that you can take to the bank.

	Math Base	Edge	Spread	Final Score
Vanderbilt	-5			7
N. Carolina	+10	N. Carolina by 15	-10	31

North Carolina should win by 15 points. The line is at -10. (15 minus 10 = 5) We must discipline ourselves to pass this selection since we do not have our necessary 7 point cushion. However, we must now adjust the mathematical base for next week's games. Don't adjust each team's mathematical base according to the difference of the final score with the predicted margin, but rather by the difference of the final score with each team's mathematical base. As you can see from the above example, North Carolina won the game by 24 points. A difference of 9 with the predicted margin of North Carolina by 15. Here is the adjustment chart:

Difference of Final Margin with each team's mathematical base	Point Adjustment
0-15	No Change
6-15	1 Point
16-higher	2 Points

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Pac-king it in At Night

By JIM FEIST

On the West coast life is generally a little more laid back and less hectic than it is in the East or the Midwest. Summer is a lot longer than it is back East and we have the whole year to do the things others must cram in six months.

No prettier land exists on Earth than Arizona, California, Oregon and Washington, except Nevada, of course. The warm climate lasts all year, we do not have to get up early to enjoy the sunshine. The weather is always great and there is no rush to do much of anything.

It would really be great if we could translate all of this scenic beauty and patient, living into one of my favorite colors--green. A handicappers primary goal is winning, be it in sunny California, snowy Minnesota or Steubenville, Ohio. Research and experience are his best tools. He must know where the strategically sound winning factors are to be found. Knowledge, combined with patience usually pays off.

Once the sun goes down, life gets a little more interesting. Saturdays during football season can be a real fast paced experience. In other parts of the country, the games are over. On the coast, because of the warm climate, there are many more night contests and there is a flurry to get down before dinner or the date with the blonde you met at the beach. You will hear no complaint from this corner. The endless, sunshine and relaxed living conditions fit this handicappers needs to a "T". It is just that I have found that night game results can be different than day results and these differences can be converted to cash.

We can turn all of this western beauty into winning plays by betting against Pac-10 teams at home during the evening. I cut the research at 28 points because it is difficult to find a bookie to take action once the spread gets that high. I also found that the results were much more steady when the game was against a conference rival.

The theory is simple: BET AGAINST ANY PAC 10 CONFERENCE HOME FAVORITE OF 28 OR LESS POINTS AT NIGHT. Since 1973, the Westerners have been gracious hosts and by using this system, the record would have been 33-18. That is a winning factor of 64.7% and last year's 3-2 record helped keep us ahead for the season.

On October 15, the Arizona Wildcats hosted Pac-10 rival Oregon. The Wildcats vaunted offensive attack was averaging 43 points a game and covering the 22 point favorite role did not seem impossible against the Ducks who had little offense and little defense. It looked like easy pickings and it was, but it was the Wildcats who got picked. Oregon won the game outright, 19-10, providing a win for the theory.

On October 22, the Washington State Cougars visited Arizona State. The Sun Devils had only a tie verse UCLA to blemish their record and looked like a lock against the Cougars who had lost their first three Pac-10 games by the combined score of 37-107. Twenty points seemed a small price to pay for such seeming superiority. Proving nothing is as simple as it looks, Washington State used this game to turn their season around. They beat Arizona State 31-21 and supplied another win for the system.

The Arizona Wildcats supplied another win for the system by losing to the Washington Huskies on November 1. The Huskies were a one point dog at Arizona after losing at UCLA the week before. The Wildcats were coming off two consecutive losses to the dregs of the Pac-10 and played a tough game. Fortunately for the system, the Huskies won out, 23-22 and added another win to the total.

Going on the road in the Pac-10 does not seem to be an immediate hardship. In fact, it appears to be something of a mini-vacation and once the sun sets in the West it is time to be the visiting dog.

Handicapping Theories and Techniques

Tar Heel Trauma

By GARY AUSTIN

Does North Carolina possess some mystical powers? Are there supernatural forces at work in Chapel Hill that allow for continued success year after year? What is it that makes the Tar Heels such a force in both basketball and football?

It is rare when a school constantly cracks the top ten in basketball. It is rare when a school constantly rises to the top in every football poll, year after year. Imagine how often it happens when a school is always near the top in both sports. Few colleges have athletic departments that are this successful. Texas and Oregon State are two who have completely opposite fortunes in the two sports.

The success at Chapel Hill can be attributed to the guidance of two strong and well prepared coaches. Dean Smith is one of the premier coaches in college basketball and his teams play aggressive defense and steady offense. They are never out of any game and are usually ahead when the buzzer sounds. Dick Crum is the football coach and his teams play aggressive defense. They are usually in every game until the end.

What this means is that point-spread victories can be garnered by following teams that win constantly. In the case of the North Carolina football team there are areas that abound with winning edges. One of the most prevalent is as an underdog. Since 1973, the Tar Heels have an awesome 25-6 mark against the spread as a dog. That is a 80.6% winning mark. This theory can be stated simply: BET ON NORTH CAROLINA ANY TIME THE TAR HEELS ARE AN UNDERDOG.

The record can be broken down into two categories. During regular season play, the Heels sport a winning mark of 21-5. There were no plays last year, but this year promises to have at least two opportunities to cash winning wagers. On Sept. 22, they will beat Boston College and the Eagles should be favored. Two weeks later, North Carolina meets Atlantic Coast Conference rival Clemson on the road. Clemson should be favored because the Tigers are one of the strongest teams in the country, at least on paper. It is interesting to note that the Tar Heels are only 2-8 vs the points against the Tiger Paws, but that includes a 1-0 mark as a dog.

The second part of the breakdown involves their bowl game record. It is 4-1 as a dog. Last year in the Peach Bowl, they opened up as a three point underdog against Florida State, but public support brought about by injuries to the Seminoles dropped the line until eventually

North Carolina became the favorite in the game. They lost the game 28-3 but because they became the favorite, they were eliminated as a play under the terms of the system.

This year's squad is young and inexperienced, especially on defense and how quickly they develop will determine if they get a bowl bid. Given the success Dick Crum has enjoyed in his five previous seasons at the helm, I would not bet against the possibility. We can say that the Tar Heels are an underdog at the moment to get a bowl game appearance, but that seems to be where they are the most dangerous.

COLLEGE COACHES VS THE POINTS

That's the way the coach CRUMBles.

The 1984 version of the College Coaches Against the Spread is full of dramatic changes and the fall of Dick Crum from number one is the most noticeable. The North Carolina mentor tumbled from the top to the bottom of the Baker's Dozen. The Tarheels were a measly 2-7 verse the spread last year but Crum is too good a coach to allow something like that to continue. With a little luck, he can be right back in the thick of things next year. His team is young and inexperienced and how quickly he brings them around will greatly influence his fortunes and ours.

For those of you not familiar with the list, it includes the lifetime coaching record in outright wins and losses of every head coach at every university that is previewed in this magazine. The article also recognizes that there are many rooters and fans who like to add a little spice to their Saturday's by wagering nominal amounts of money on their favorite teams. For that reason, the coaches point-spread record for every game he has coached at that school is included, along with his total individual spread record since 1973.

The sharp handicapper will not use this as the final say, but only as a guide. It is smart to be aware of as many tendencies as possible to insure an enlightened approach to gambling. There are basic thoughts that everyone should be aware of. Winners win and losers lose is probably the best way to sum up what is considered the best starting place when looking for winning plays.

If you want to continually put your money on a loser, hoping the team will overcome the spread, that is up to you. You will find that losing teams will usually cost you money. Losing is a poison that injects itself into a victim and spreads until the hapless prey is begging for mercy. The only known antidote is intelligent wagering.

Intelligent wagering eliminates losing. You will find that once you start winning, you are apt to continue winning. Winning becomes a way of life and anyone who doubts how good it feels probably has never experienced it.

In order for you to see what a winner looks like, there is a list of the top 13 coaches verse the spread. The only qualification was that the coach have a minimum of 30 spread decisions. The last coach on our "Bakers Dozen" list is Drick Crum who was discussed earlier.

The top coach this year is Pat Dye. Through three complete years at Auburn University, Dye has led the War Eagles to the top of the Southeastern Conference and to two bowl games in a row. His outright record during that time is a sharp 25-10 and Dye has been named SEC and National Coach-of-the-Year by many organizations. He is an advocate of hard work, discipline and preparedness. It shows in the results because his teams are always ready to play. He is one of the few coaches whose spread record is, at the moment, better than his outright record. The Tiger coach is 24-9 vs the points, which is an overwhelming .727. No one is even close and it will take a monumental change to dislodge him this season.

One who will probably give it the good old college try is Bobby Bowden, who comes in as a "Bridesmaid" for the second year in a row. The Florida State head coach was faced with one of the toughest schedules in the NCAA last year and came through the battle unscathed. In eight years at FSU, he has led the Seminoles to five bowl games, including this season's 28-3 rout of North Carolina. Bowden's spread mark of 63-36 is good for .636. It pales only when you see that at FSU, his record vs the points is 49-24 which is .671. The man seems to really enjoy the Florida sunshine and seems to be one to back when the money is on the line.

Making some incredible headway last year, in the headlines and on the chart was Howard Schnellenberger. He led the Miami Hurricanes to the head of the class with a stunning upset of Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on January 2. He also burst into the hearts of winning for .625 and third place. He is forever being rumored on his way to the pros and they could do much worse than rob Florida of this natural resource.

Also moving up the chart with a dart last year was Hayden Fry. The Iowa head coach who reminds one of a western gunfighter, shot down a few opponents and jumped over the fallen bodies of such well known coaches as "Bo" Schembechler, Joe Paterno and Terry Donahue. He now has a solid three game lead on number five Danny Ford. The young Clemson head man has a very strong team this year and at 30-20 vs the spread, good for .600 is hoping to improve enough to catch Fry who is at 34-22 or .607.

Other members in good standing on the pointspread chart are: Charlie Pell at .599, "Bo" Schembechler at .586, Joe Paterno at .578, Terry Donahue at .576 and Don James at .570. These five are very well known and constantly put out strong football teams. They generally win more than their share of games and this translates into victories against the spread, also.

Dick McPherson of Syracuse is also on the list of the best coaches and last year, his team surprised a few of the nation's finest elevens. The Orangemen closed out the season and also closed down a few bookies by covering their last six games, including outright wins vs West Virginia, Boston College and Navy and near victories over powerful Pittsburgh and Penn State. The coach's 18-13 record is a reliable .581 and his teams must always be considered. Another coach who surprised a few last year was Ken Hatfield. The former Air Force coach led the Falcons to their second bowl game win in a row and then left for a lucrative contract at Arkansas. Hatfield's 22-16 spread record at the Air Force Academy is a comfortable .579 and the Razorbacks have themselves a pretty good coach. It will be interesting to the bettor to see if his success follows him.

You will notice that ten of the coaches on the "Baker's Dozen" list bettors everywhere with his five year pointspread record of 30-18, good led their teams to bowl game appearances. That should tell you something. Winning coaches are successful both outright and against the points.

For every win, there is a loss. The "Dirty Dozen" accounted for more than their share of losses last season, both on the field and against the spread. The list has no real surprises, but does have an oddity or two.

The first oddity is that Joe Avezano still has a job. The coach of Oregon State has accumulated four outright wins in the last four campaigns. The Beavers might have a hard time winning in the Ivy League, that is how bad they are. Avezano's pointspread mark is better, but still bad enough for him to top the list for ineptitude. At 11-25 vs the points, he has cost loyal Beaver bettors a ton of pelts, because that is a woeful .306. It is time for the team to improve, but can they improve enough to keep Joe employed? Beware, Joe, last year's leader was Joe Salem of Minnesota and you will notice he is gone.

The second worst pointspread record belongs to David Green of Northwestern. The Big-10 patsy can not even count on beating Minnesota this season, because of Salem's departure. Green has helped the football program at Northwestern, but the linemaker has helped Green's spread record more by keeping the Wildcats off the board against certain teams. Northwestern will never get better, but hopefully Green can keep them competitive so he can pick up some decisions against the points to climb out of this hole. He is locked in at the moment at 11:19 vs the points, which is only .367.

It is rare to see a coach with a 148-86 outright win record on a list for non-success, but Bill Yeoman of Houston is there. He is number 12, because his spread record is only 52-57, which is .477, which only proves there are exceptions to every rule.

Steve Sloan, still of Duke, is also still on the list. Sloan does not seem to be able to win wherever he is, at least not for the betting man. He has also lost Ben Bennett to graduation. It appears that Sloan now has a chance to move up on this list, because Bennett was vital to any attack the Blue Devils had. Without him, look for Duke to do even worse. The coach's spread record stands at 53-63 lifetime and at .457, he seems to have a position locked up for next year.

Jerry Moore at Texas Tech, Jim Young at Army and Frank Navarro at Princeton are fighting losing battles. They are limited by too many other factors to ever field completely competitive teams, so they seem to be permanently entrenched on this list.

Jim Dickey at Kansas State is in third place at the moment. His team has a chance for improvement and a few more victories should be forthcoming. If the oddsmaker overlooks the Wildcats and they start covering a few, there may be some cash to be made here. Dickey's record is a terrible 22-35 against the spread and there is a school of thought that indicates that if things like this don't turn around, unemployment beckons. It is hoped he can improve on that .386 win percentage and turn it around.

Bob Naso of Columbia is going to have to depend on his defense to get him out of the hole. He is a lackluster 14-19 vs the spread, which is .424. Add to all of his other problems the fact that John Witkowski is no longer there. Witkowski was to Columbia more than Bennett was to Duke. He was the whole offense. There are those that were surprised to see Naso return this year. Good luck.

Georgia Tech is not a real good football team. They are better than some, but not nearly good enough to threaten Clemson, North Carolina and Maryland. Bill Curry has a 17-21 mark vs the points and can hope for very little in the way of improvement. He might be in trouble if the Engineers do not show marked improvement. Your wallet can be lighter if you follow this team too closely.

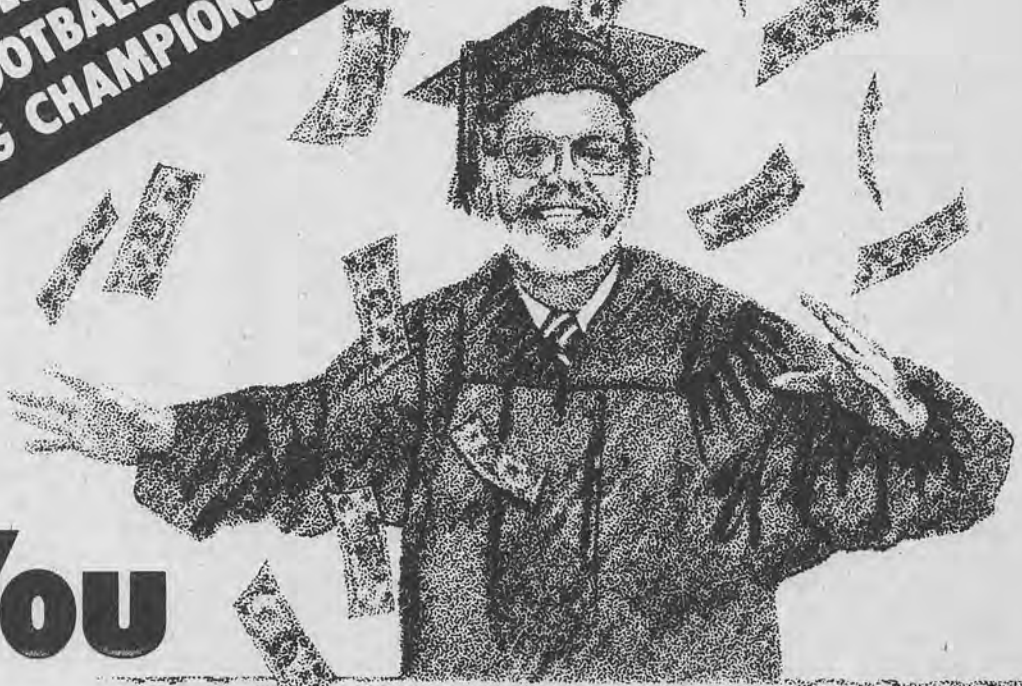

Bill Mallory coached at Colorado from 1974 through 1978. In that time, his team accumulated a 23-30 mark vs the spread. That is only .434. He is now at Indiana for his return to big time college football. The Hoosiers are going to present a challenge. One year coach Sam Wyche was only 3-8 vs the spread with the same team. They will not win many games, therefore they will not cover many vs the spread, either.

Gerry Faust is quickly becoming an enigma. He has a good team, yet he can not win. Knute Rockne has been seen walking the corridors in South Bend, crying. How can Faust keep losing with a team so talented. His outright record is 18-15, his spread record is 15-18. His team is excellent, his record is awful. His potential is tremendous, his results are minimal. Nothing makes sense with the Irish. Sooner or later Gerry will have to start winning. Some think this team will turn it on this year, other think he is doomed.

You will notice that only one of these teams went to a bowl game last year and is guaranteed that if Notre Dame wasn't Notre Dame, they would not have gone to any bowl game. Their record was not good enough, but their history was.

We have mentioned Ken Hatfield and Bill Mallory as coaches with new teams this season. All together there are nine changes the better should be aware of.

New arrivals with no previous head coaching experience at the college level are John Rosenberg at Brown, Dick Anderson at Rutgers, Fisher DeBerry at Air Force and Bill Arnsparger at LSU. Of these, the most is known of Arnsparger, the defensive coordinator of the Miami Dolphins of the NFL. If he can spin his magic "D" at LSU, he may get off to a good start and cash can come roaring our way, compliments of the Tigers.

Watson Brown coached at Cincinnati last year and his claim to fame, was beating Penn State in the Lions home town. Not a bad claim, by a man with limited experience. This year may be different at Rice, which is noted for its small enrollment and bad football program.

Elway is back at Stanford and that should bring smiles to the Cardinal. Unfortunately, it is Jack Elway, John's father and teacher. He is also the ex-coach of San Jose State. He has his work cut out for him because Stanford is not a good club. They even lost to Oregon State last year.

Lou Holtz is now at Minnesota. That is good news for the Gophers and a curious decision by Holtz. There had to be a reason to leave a successful program for cold winters and a two game losing streak to Northwestern. The coach does have a formula for success. His outright college coaching record is 105-53, which is nothing to complain about. He has also been a constant source of winning bets for the public, because his spread record is a money making 62-50, good for .553. If anyone can make the Gophers a winner, he can.

There are two coaches in their third year who are doing pretty good jobs and should be complimented. Joe Kapp is proving at California that he can put out a competitive product. The one time pro quarterback who led the Minnesota Vikings to the Super Bowl, is hoping to get California to any bowl this year. He has shown he is a winner, as his 13-8 pointspread mark will attest to. Keep up the good work Joe. The other one is Bobby Ross at Maryland. It doesn't seem to matter who the coach is at Maryland, the Terps always seem to have a good spread record. Still, the 14-7 record of its present coach stands out as one to be on the lookout for.

Jerry Berndt still has a good record at Penn, at 14-9 against the points, and the team looks good enough to supply some more winning plays this year. The Ivy League is full of weak sisters and a strong team can pile up some impressive winning plays, especially of the betting variety.

The Temple Owls, under first year Head Coach Bruce Arians held their own at 4-2 vs the points last year, even though they were only 4-7 outright. It might be profitable to watch how the Owls do this year.

There are some new coaches, whose teams have demonstrated an ability to lose to the spread and the better should be aware of them. Tom Reed at N.C. State went 2-6 vs the points in his rookie year and Leon Burnett has gone 8-13 vs the number in his stay at Purdue. Neither team seems to be appreciably better, so the better should not expect too much in the way of improvement.

There is no excuse for "Fogge" Fazio. This is the coach who took the best college quarterback in years, with the possible exception of John Elway and made him the sixth QB chosen in the 1983 draft. Fazio owes Dan Marino a few dollars that he cost him in signing bonuses. The Pittsburgh head coach has got to get more out of his talented players than he has in his first two years, if his spread mark of 9-12 is ever going to get out of the red.

Ted Tollner of USC is, like Fazio and Faust, a good recruiter as this year's crop can prove, but his coaching ability must be improved. He loses close games and allows inferior opponents to stay close. This accounts for his 3-8 record against the points. He should do better this season and be ready to get on his trail when those big lineman start opening holes and destroying opposing quarterbacks.

As the 1984 season approaches, remember there is no better way to start winning than by backing winners. Go with the proven quantity if you want profitable results. Do not guess or grasp for straws because you will not be a consistent winner unless you bet intelligently. Backing losing teams with your cash is not intelligent.

HANDICAPPING THEORIES AND TECHNIQUES

King of the Jungle

By MARK HARRIS All-American Sports

The 1983 football year began with a resounding 27-23 victory over Georgia that allowed Penn State to finally gain that elusive national crown that coach Joe Paterno had chased since 1966. As the final gun sounded, the Penn State rooters in the Sugar Bowl let it be known who was number one in the land. The Nittany Lions were crowned and became the acknowledged "King of the Jungle" for the 1982 season. Of most significance to the betting public was the fact that the Lions covered the spread.

The game was for the national title and many bettors were amazed that Penn State, ranked number two at the time, was favored by three points over the Bulldogs who were ranked number one. The linemaker was proven to be right on the money as the final score indicates. It was the highlight of Paterno's illustrious career and the multitude looked forward to the beginning of the 1983 season.

The 1983 football season began with a bang for the Nittany Lions. The bang was the Nebraska Cornhuskers blowing the Lions brains out on August 29 at the Meadowlands in the inaugural Kickoff Classic. The score was 44-6 and even at plus 6½, it wasn't a contest. It was Joe Paterno's worst defeat as a coach. The following week was to see his most embarrassing defeat as a head coach. Cincinnati beat the Lions at College Park, 14-3 in a game that wasn't on the board. The win by the Bobcats got them a lot of respect in college football and got their program some national attention. There was to be one more defeat for the Lions before they turned their season around.

There were those who were secretly thrilled when Penn State stumbled, but with hard work by both the coach and the team, the detractors joy was short-lived. In the following ten games, the Nittany Lions were 8-1-1.

The 1983 season culminated with a hard earned victory over Washington in the Aloha Bowl in sunny Hawaii. The Penn Staters were favored by one over the Huskies. Once again, the Lions were up to the challenge and their 13-10 win made their backers wealthy both in spirit and in cash.

It should be no surprise that Paterno's teams won both of those games. His overall record is 170-38-2 since 1966. This includes an 11-4-1 outright record in bowl games where the opposition is of the highest quality. His 170 wins place right behind "Bo" Schembechler of Michigan who leads active major college coaches with 180.

It is interesting to note that since 1973, only four teams have appeared in postseason play each of the last 11 seasons. They are Alabama, Nebraska Ohio State and Penn State.

Powerful Alabama is only 6-5 verse the points in that span. The Crimson Tide is rich in tradition and has always been one of the most sought after attractions, even on those rare occasions when they did not win the SEC title. For years, the Tide was led by the nationally known Paul "Bear" Bryant, who always had the team near the top of all postseason polls. This public identification usually caused the other team to put out a little extra trying to knock off the Tide. Last year was completely opposite. Under a new coach, Ray Perkins, the Tide went into the Sun Bowl as a four point underdog, only the second time in the 11 year period they were underdogs. The Tide rolled over the SMU Mustangs by the score of 28-7.

Ohio State has been to the Rose Bowl five times in the last 11 years. Under the leadership of "Woody" Hayes and Earle Bruce, they have managed to find another major bowl game to go to the other six years. Last season, they landed a berth in the Fiesta Bowl against Pittsburgh. The Buckeyes were favored by five and it took a late scoring strike for them to defeat the Panthers 28-23, salvaging a push for their backers. Their 11 year record is 4-5-2 against the points and will hardly allow for blind following.

One of the reasons for these spread records is that the quality of the opposition is greater in postseason play. For the betting public, the 1974 Alabama team was 11-0 going into the Orange Bowl, ranked number one and favored by 9½ points over Notre Dame. The Irish knocked them off 13-11 and ruined their New Year's celebration. The same thing happened to Nebraska last year.

Taking this into consideration, the record of Penn State during this same time is even more remarkable. Since 1973, the Lions spread record in bowl games is 9-2. This is almost 82% and all things should be as simple as betting the Paterno football team in postseason play. Their record as an underdog in that time is 4-2 and their record as a favorite is 5-0. Most would agree that they are a good money making proposition.

Notre Dame Selected No. 1

It used to be a lot easier to go undefeated than it is now. Conference teams like Texas, Michigan, Alabama, USC and North Carolina used to only have to worry about one or two teams in their leagues while the non-conference schedule was a joke. Well, that's over. Balance, or parity, has come to most conferences and those "jokes" are serious matters, now. Take Alabama, for instance. The Tide would run through their SEC schedule (heck, Georgia wasn't even on it half the time), while scheduling the University of Nobody and Terrible State on the side. Forget it. Alabama now must contend with a whole bunch of SEC terrors, including Georgia, Tennessee and Auburn, while the non-league slate shows testers against Penn State and Boston College.

And, it's the same everywhere. Texas plays Penn State and Auburn. Michigan meets Miami and Washington. USC tangles with Notre Dame and LSU. North Carolina faces Boston College. And, so it goes. The reason for these tough non-league games is money. The more attractive the matchup, the more likely it is to be broadcast by a major network. The more a team is on TV, the more money it makes. It's that simple.

What's not simple is who'll be number one. A team has to be good these days, but it also has to be lucky.

With that in mind, the fearless forecast for 1984:

Notre Dame is the pick, although the Irish are, admittedly, a shaky one. Gerry Faust always has had the talent but hasn't been able to put it together. It's now or never for the South Bend crew. If the Irish don't finish in the top 10, at least, with a major bowl, it may be time to oust Faust.

Alabama also has a good chance for the title. Ray Perkins' crew has a favorable home schedule and plenty of veterans with whom to battle the evils of the SEC field.

Nebraska, in many people's minds, had its chance last year and blew it. Well, opportunity may knock twice for the Huskers. A trip to UCLA will be tough, but Nebraska has a favorable home schedule and might have as good a record as last year without as good of a team.

Arizona State is another team that will benefit from its home schedule. The Sun Devils have eight home dates, and it's always tough to win in Tempe, especially at night. Arizona State's defense should be awesome.

Iowa, Michigan and Ohio State have each other to contend with. A split all around could be what results. Of the three, the Buckeyes have the easiest path to the title, playing both the Wolves and Hawkeyes at home. Also, their non-league slate is not too difficult. Iowa hosts Michigan but must travel to Columbus. The Hawkeyes also have a meeting with Penn State in Iowa. Michigan has it the toughest, facing both Iowa and Ohio State on the road while hosting toughies Washington and Miami. Bo Schembechler will have his hands full, won't he?

Clemson has only two tests of note on its schedule, Georgia and North Carolina. The Tigers seem to have caught the Bulldogs in a down year while the Tar Heels must come to Clemson, a tough place to win under any circumstances. Clemson finishes with state rival South Carolina, a possible source for trouble.

Texas rounds out our top 10. The Longhorns have a good home slate, but have that always tough Cotton Bowl meeting with Oklahoma, in addition to tussles with Penn State and Auburn.

UCLA has many of the people that propelled the Bruins into the Rose Bowl last year and should be tough. The Pac-10 is highly competitive, however, and there's that little meeting with Nebraska, too.

Florida State aims to make amends for last season but the Seminoles have picked a tough slate against which to display their talents. Besides state foes Florida and Miami, Bobby Bowden's boys also tangle with Arizona State and Auburn. Tough going there.

Texas stands in SMU's way while Pittsburgh is blocked by a host of powers. North Carolina doesn't figure to be as good as last year, but the Heels' record might be, thanks to a soft slate.

Oklahoma must play at Nebraska while Georgia has some rebuilding to do. Doug Flutie will have Boston College in every game, but the competition, again is formidable. Auburn begins with defending National Champion Miami and closes with Alabama. In between is Texas.

If Notre Dame is not No. 1, they may oust Head Coach Gerry Faust.

Uncaged Tigers Eye Return to Dominance

The Tigers come off probation this year and they'll hit the ground with their feet...make that paws, running. Danny Ford has the makings of another typical Clemson club--unyielding on defense, patient and mistake-proof in offense. The Tigers don't do anything special, they just play hard. And they have the folks who can do it. Mike Eppley makes very few mistakes at quarterback and the ground game always is proficient. All-America William Perry anchors a nasty defense.

North Carolina could have the youngest club in the Dick Crum era, this season. Crum will have an inexperienced quarterback and seven new defenders, and it's the latter that has him concerned. Crum knows that defensive mistakes can result in touchdowns. North Carolina will attempt to keep the ball on the ground (and out of the hands of the opposition). Ethan Horton will get most of the infantry assignments.

The Terrapins have gone to two straight bowls under Bobby Ross but this year's assignment looks especially tough. Maryland has been hit extra hard by graduation and the likes of Boomer Esiason, Pete Koch and Ron Solt are not easily replaced. This could be a rebuilding year of sorts in College Park.

One team that has already successfully rebuilt its football fortunes is Virginia. Under George Welsh, the Cavaliers had a winning record last year, only their third positive effort in over three decades. If Welsh can come up with an able signal-caller to support his good defense, Virginia could make it two winning seasons in-a-row.

Georgia Tech also is on the mend, but the Yellow Jackets have a very tough schedule and progress may not be represented in victories. Robert Lavette is a top-notch back.

North Carolina State has a potentially strong offense but a lack of defense will weigh down the Wolfpack.

Both Wake Forest and Duke have to replace record-smashing quarterbacks, and problems exist on defense, too. In Al Groh's favor are plenty of returning starters, a luxury the Blue Devils' Steve Sloan does not have. It looks like a tough year for both coaches.

North Carolina State's Joe Milinichik huffs and puffs for the Wolfpack.

Huskers to Rely on Defense This Time

Nebraska missed a National Championship by seconds two years ago (against Penn State) and by inches last year (against Miami), and while this year's Cornhusker outfit doesn't look as formidable as either of those 12-1 teams, their record might be. The reason is twofold: defense and schedule. Nine starters are back from last season's overlooked but highly competent defense, while the schedule finds the Cornhuskers at home for Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Missouri, the teams expected to give Nebraska the toughest time in the Big Eight. An early (Sept. 22) trip to Los Angeles, to play Rose Bowl champ UCLA, could be a major stumbling block in Tom Osborne's quest for his first National title.

As always, Oklahoma has the thoroughbreds in the backfield, but Barry Switzer is still looking to cut down on those drive-ending errors that ruined the Sooners last year. Oklahoma's stop troops, which led the Big Eight in total defense last year, will have a lot of new faces.

Oklahoma State's only problem seems to be figuring out a way to win in Lincoln or Norman. The Cowboys have essentially the same team that went to the Bluebonnet Bowl last year after narrowly missing upsets against Nebraska (10-14), Oklahoma (20-21) and Missouri (10-16), but must take on both the Huskers and Sooners on foreign turf this year. Still, they'll be tough.

Missouri is, well, Missouri, which means the Tigers should be their usual (or unusual) selves. Marlon Adler leads a competent enough attack, but there are concerns about the defense, and Missouri has an absolutely murderous road schedule, too.

Kansas State and Iowa State are well below the big four, but significantly ahead of the little two (Kansas and Colorado), and should battle it out for the right to head the second division. The Wildcats have a potential all-star in QB Stan Weber, plus plenty (16) of returning starters, but must shore up their defense. The Cyclones, in contrast, are uncertain at QB but could be improved on defense.

Neither Kansas nor Colorado will have an easy time of it this year. The Jayhawks must completely rebuild their offense while the Buffs continue to make repairs on their defense. These teams meet in Boulder on November 3rd, in a big game for both clubs.

Missouri's Marlon Adler is the big fish in the Tigers' diversified attack.

Iowa, OSU, Michigan In a Menage-a-Trois

The battle for this year's Big Ten Championship looks like a three-way affair amongst Iowa, Ohio State and Michigan. Last year's Rose Bowl representative, Illinois, could be the unwelcomed suitor this time.

The Hawkeyes will attempt to win the title with their defense, a platoon that led the Big-Ten in 1981 and '82 and was second last year. Hayden Fry has all 11 starters back from that effort so Iowa should prove difficult to move the ball on. Chuck Long, the Big-10's first-team All-Conference choice, heads an offense that has skilled people but needs some horses up front.

In Columbus, meanwhile, Earl Bruce is savoring the fact that both Iowa and Michigan will come visiting him this year. The Buckeyes not only have the home field advantage for those biggies, but some offensive punch in Keith Byars, the Conference's leading rusher.

Michigan is rebuilding its middle on offense, but Bo Schembechler still has that unyielding defense on which to rely. Also in Bo's favor is a strong kicking game.

Illinois' march to the title last year was stepped to the beat of the defense, not the offense, and that's where the Illini have lost most of their personnel. All-Big Ten tackles Don Thorp and Mark Butkus are impossible to replace, and the schedule, with trips planned to Iowa, Ohio State and Michigan, is anything but favorable.

Wisconsin is looking for its fourth straight seven-victory season, but the Badgers probably will have to knock off one of the biggies to accomplish that since a trip to Missouri could nail another defeat on Wisconsin's record. The Badgers have more starters than any team in the Conference, but need a QB.

Michigan State looks to, be a notch or two better than the teams that should comprise the bottom half of the Big Ten, but after that its a virtual dog-fight between Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Northwestern for positions seven-through-10 in the Conference hierarchy. All four are rebuilding, two of them, Minnesota and Indiana, with new coaches.

Penn Defense Leaves 'Berndt' Offerings

Since Jerry Berndt came to Pennsylvania three years ago, the Quakers have won two Ivy League titles, mostly on the strength of an unyielding defense. Berndt's formula for a third straight title (no Penn team has ever done that) is still the same. Kevin Bradley, the League's best linebacker, and Tim Chambers, maybe the League's best defensive back, are the leaders of a bunch of roughnecks who relish contact. The often-overlooked offense has a veteran quarterback (John McGeehan), a fine running back (Stan Koss) and enough mules up front not to embarrass itself. Penn will get its third championship, but it won't be easy.

As many as five teams could challenge the Quakers for the title. Dartmouth comes off a campaign where injuries played a large role in the Big Green's collapse (they were 4-0 only to finish at 4-2-1). The return of quarterback Mike Caraviello, who led the club to a share of the title in '82, and big-play receiver Mike Viccora, along with running back Rich Weissman gives Dartmouth more offense than it had in a while. The defense is always formidable.

Princeton could have the League's best aerial duo in Doug Butler-to-Derek Graham, but the Tigers need to make some defensive adjustments and come up with a representative ground game in order to be true competitors. Frank Navarro is working on it.

Brown has a new coach in John Rosenberg and a new quarterback in Steve Kettelberger. They'll both have to be up to snuff for the Bruins to break out of the pack and challenge for the top spot.

Yale wasn't half as bad as its record last year and Carm Cozza is out to prove it. Last year's inexperienced players are now tested veterans and the Elis have a quarterback of note in Mike Curtin. They could surprise some folks.

Joe Restic always is able to make something out of practically nothing and that seems the task again this season as the Harvard coach tries to rebuild after severe graduation losses. The Crimson should have a good offensive line, and Restic hopes the other pieces will fall into place, too.

Cornell will swing its emphasis from the running to passing games this fall, but it's doubtful that no matter how successful the aerial attack is, the Big Red won't miss All-Ivy running back Derrick Harmon.

After a year on the road, while their stadium was being rebuilt, the Lions of Columbia come home this season. Unfortunately, most of the talent that produced all those glittering offensive statistics, has graduated, leaving coach Bob Naso talking about his defense, of all things.

Yale's John Zanieski (69) led the Elis in tackles and sacks last season.

Everything's Coming Up Roses for ASU

Only two Pac-10 schools went to bowls last year, and only one (Arizona) finished the year with as few as three defeats. Is the Conference slipping? No, just becoming more balanced. The Pac-10 still holds a vice on the Big-10 in Rose Bowl competition—last year's thrashing of Illinois by UCLA is a good example—but teams like UCLA and USC no longer dominate. In fact, the two Los Angeles schools combined for just an 11-10-2 record last season.

New upstarts on the block include Washington State and Oregon, and the former could challenge for the Pac-10 title outright this season. More likely though, the battle will be between Arizona State and UCLA. The Sun Devils return 10 starters from the defense that led the Pac-10 last season and also have eight home games. UCLA, meanwhile, also has plenty of experienced performers on hand, but must travel to Tempe for what could be the Pac-10 title game. But don't count out Washington State, either. Jim Walden's troops finished with a flurry (five straight wins) in 1983 and could pick right up where they left off. Also in the hunt are USC and Washington. The Trojans are coming off one of their worst campaigns ever, and are thirsting for revenge. A banner recruiting year, plus the return of several All-America hopefuls should have the Trojans in the Rose Bowl race all the way. The Huskies will have to make some major personnel moves this year, but Don James has a knack for coming up with a top outfit when least expected. The Washington mentor has had the Huskies finish first or second in the League for the past seven seasons.

Stanford and California will rely on their passing attacks. The Cardinals have a new coach in Jack Elway and a competent passer in John Paye. Joe Kapp's Golden Bears have a pretty good signal-caller of their own in Gale Gilbert, but both teams have the same problem: defense.

In Tucson, Larry Smith is optimistic despite the loss of eight first or second-team All-Conference players. Smith thinks his receiving crew and defensive line will see the Wildcats through.

Oregon relied on a good defense last year to finish at .500 in the Conference, but the Ducks' lack of offense, particularly at quarterback, will be too much for a repeat performance. Oregon State, meanwhile, continues its gradual improvement, but the Beavers won't make much of a ripple in Pac-10 waters this fall.

The SECret Is Out: Bama to Taste Sugar

The SEC sent seven of its members to bowls last year and five of them won, but only Auburn's season was really sweet, because only the Tigers went to the Sugar Bowl, the prize that awaits the winner of the Conference. This year's favorite to go to New Orleans is Alabama. The Crimson haven't been there since New Year's Day in 1980, but the Tide is turning—against Auburn, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, et al.

Again, the league should be well-balanced (going undefeated in the SEC this year will be a difficult task), but Ray Perkins' squad rates a slender edge based on overall depth and the fact that Tide now should be familiar with the ex-Giant coach's system.

Auburn will have a tough time repeating. Pat Dye's wishbone attack still has Bo Jackson, but the Tigers may miss quarterback Randy Campbell, an often overlooked ingredient in Auburn's success last year.

Tennessee was better than most expected last year, but the Vols won't be sneaking up on any foes this year—especially if quarterback Alan Cockrell decides to put his baseball career on hold for a year and return to Knoxville. Tennessee's defense, which led the SEC in '83, again will be tough, and with or without Cockrell, the Vols have Johnnie Jones, a dynamite ball-carrier.

Georgia and Florida have been ravaged by graduation, and while Vince Dooley and Charley Pell are shedding crocodile tears, don't expect their fellow coaching brethren to throw them a benefit.

chalking up the aerial yardage but hardly beating anyone in the process. The Commodores need a ground game and some defense to go with Kurt Page's talents.

Mississippi State practically must start from scratch.

pect their fellow coaching brethren to throw them a benefit.

Bill Arnsperger is the new kid on the block at LSU, and though he's noted for his defensive acumen, watch the Bengals' offense instead this year. Jeff Wickersham and Eric Martin will terrorize the league with their pass-catch act.

Last year's over-achievers, Jerry Claiborne and Billy Brewer, have created tough acts for themselves to follow at Kentucky and Mississippi, respectively, and it's tough to see these folks back in bowls.

Vanderbilt is all throw, no go,

Georgia linebacker Knox Culpepper delivers the hard knocks for 'Dogs.

Vanderbilt's math base of -5 was 19 points away from North Carolina's 31. When adjusting the mathematical base for a minus team, always add the minus rating (Vanderbilt -5) to Vanderbilt's final score. Vanderbilt scored 7 points by adding the minus 5 opening math base $7 + 5 = 12$. We then subtract 12 from 31 points scored by North Carolina, thus leaving 19 unanswered points.

A 2 point adjustment is all we can make as that is the maximum according to the chart. So Vanderbilt's -5 goes up 2 points and becomes a -7 . North Carolina won the game by 24 points. They have a math base of $+10$ which is 14 points away from the winning margin, therefore North Carolina becomes a $+11$. Remember a maximum adjustment for any team is only 2 points. If one club won or lost a game by 40 points, its math base would only change 2 points.

In our Michigan-Auburn example, the upgraded math base should be Michigan $+15$ and Auburn $+8$ because our original Michigan math base was $+17$ and Auburn's original math base was $+9$, adding $+17$ to 9 points scored by Auburn $= 26$. Adding $+9$ to 7 points scored by Michigan $= 16$. 16 minus 9 points a deficit -7 for Auburn. 26 minus 7 points leaves a greater deficit -19 for Michigan. Therefore, in upgrading our math base according to the point adjustment chart, Michigan comes down 2 points to $+15$, and Auburn comes down 1 point to $+8$. Since this was a real game example, don't forget to make that final adjustment, Michigan opens the '84 college season $+15$, and Auburn opens $+8$.

Before hurling you to the wolves, let's take another hypothetical example of finding a hidden touchdown.

	Math Base	Edge	Spread	Final Score
Okla. St.	$+4$	Okla. St. by 4		20
L.S.U.	0		-3	21

Oklahoma State according to the math base should win the game by 4 points. The Vegas line has made L.S.U. a 3 point home favorite. That's 3 free points the Vegas line is handing you on a silver platter. Oklahoma State $+4$ and the minus

L.S.U. -3 , all add up to a 7 point hidden touchdown. This type of situation will crop up many times this college football season. Who cares what team actually wins the game. What's paramount is that you covered the Vegas line because you've learned mathematical values.

This mathematical base completely disregards the home field advantage philosophy which has always been a favorite of public opinion.

Texas Takes to the Attack Versus SMU

The Longhorns came within minutes of a probable National Championship last year, foiled only by a bobbled punt and the Georgia Bulldogs in the Cotton Bowl. Texas' chances for another shot at the title appear slim, but the Horns, thanks to (surprise) their offense, are in the driver's seat for another SWC crown, anyway. The non-league schedule, with Auburn, Penn State and Oklahoma, is among the nation's toughest.

SMU will be chasing Texas for the SWC title, and they'll be doing it with their famed Pony Express attack (this year it's Reggie Dupard and Jeff Atkins) plus an always staunch defense. If the Mustangs overcome the Longhorns, they will probably have to do it by beating Texas in Austin, a difficult feat that SMU has been able to accomplish the last two times these teams met there.

Ken Hatfield, who did so much for Air Force's football program, will try and do as much for Arkansas. Hatfield's task is a bit tougher here since the Hogs are accustomed to winning, having done that with regularity during Lou Holtz's tenure in Fayetteville. So, winning won't be enough. The Razorbacks will have to excel. Give Hatfield some time and it'll happen.

The Aggies of Texas A&M continue to improve under Jackie Sherrill, but he'd be the first to tell you it's still a very young team. Nevertheless, Sherrill should have the Aggies in a bowl this season and challenging for the SWC championship...in 1985.

mules but needs the thoroughbreds. The Bears have plenty of starters and letter winners, but Teaff must find some good running backs and fleet receivers to compliment all that beef. Without the big play, Baylor may have a tough time grinding it out.

Hard times have fallen upon Bill Yeoman and the Cougars of late.

Once a contender, Houston now is seeking to climb back to respectability. The Cougars could get worse before they get better.

TCU already is beginning to display a spark under Jim Wacker's tutelage, and if the Horned Frogs can win a few close ones, instead of losing them, the record could make strides, as well.

Texas Tech surprised people early last year then collapsed. Without a quarterback, the surprises will be gone but the collapse might not be.

Watson Brown will try his recipe at Rice, but it'll taste the same—miserable. The Owls need time, patience and a miracle.

Bears' Kevin Hancock can't wait to get his hands on the quarterback.

AIR FORCE Falcons

With former Head Coach Ken Hatfield now at Arkansas and star performers Marty Louthan and John Kershner having used up their eligibility, Air Force will have a different look this fall. Since the Falcons set 35 school records in winning 10 games last year, new Head Coach Fisher DeBerry hopes it won't be too different.

DeBerry, who has been the offensive coordinator for the Force for the past three seasons, must find capable replacements for both Louthan and Kershner if the Falcons are to approach last season's statistics which had them second nationally, to Nebraska, in rushing, and fourth in total offense. Louthan, who ran for 16 touchdowns and passed for three more, will be especially difficult to replace. Brian Knorr, a good passer, and Bart Weiss, a proficient runner, are the top two candidates. Kershner, meanwhile, ran for 934 yards and eight TDs last fall. What really hurts is that both his backups are gone, too.

But this doesn't mean that Air Force lacks firepower. Mike Brown, who led the nation with a gaudy 8.5-yard per carry average, returns, as do Jody Simmons (6.1) and Randy Jones (6.5). Paving the way up front are a pair of second-team All-WAC players, guard Mark Melcher and center Don Oberdieck. Fred Buttrell, at guard, plus tackles Kraig Evenson and Dave Sutton should complete the interior quintet. The receiving crew has lost a big-play specialist in Mike Kirby (38 catches, 22.7 average), along with both tight ends. Tom Coleman is the leading contender for Kirby's spot with Hugh Brennan tentatively pencilled in at tight end.

The defense really needs help at linebacker where all four starters have departed. The quartet represented 14 letters of experience for Air Force. The returnees, says DeBerry, have excellent ability but limited experience.

Strength of the defense will be the line where all three regulars, including first-team All-WAC tackle Chris Funk, return. Funk will team up with fellow tackle John Ziegler with nose guard Larry Nicklas in the middle.

The defensive backfield also should be strong with starters A.J. Scott and Dwan Wilson joining Scott Thomas, a starter who was injured in the Falcons' opener and missed the rest of the year. Tom Rotello and Steve Sigler, both of whom lettered as freshmen, will battle for the final starting berth.

Carlos Mateos, who has handled the kickoffs the past two seasons, will also do the field goal and extra point work for the Falcons this year with either Mark Simon or Marty Tatum assuming the punting responsibilities.

The schedule is easy, but Air Force still won't win 10 games this year.

Austin's Edges

- The favorite is 8-2 in the Air Force-Army rivalry.
- Air Force is 4-7 vs the points spread as a home favorite from -6 to -15 since 1973.
- The cadets are only 4-10 vs the mark as an away underdog of less than 10 the past 11 years.

ALABAMA Crimson Tide

Ray Perkins' switch from the wishbone to a multiple pro-style offense last spring produced the top rated attack in the SEC in 1983, and if the former New York Giants coach can make strides with his defense, Alabama could be in the thick of the National Championship hunt.

Perkins has 15 starters, six on offense and nine on defense, returning from the Crimson Tide outfit that beat SMU in the Sun Bowl, 28-7, last December, and if there's a problem, it's at quarterback where inexperienced Mike Shula takes over for Walter Lewis, Bama's career total offense leader. Shula has excellent bloodlines--his father is coach of the Miami Dolphins--but played only four downs last year. Another possibility is Parade All-America Vince Sutton.

The running back corps is in good hands with Kerry Goode and Ricky Moore both returning. Goode's debut was great last year as he averaged 6.7 yards per carry, burning rival Auburn for 142 yards in his best outing. Moore finished the season with six straight 100 plus yard games and earned All-SEC honors. As always, the Tide has a wealth of depth at running back.

Greg Richardson, who averaged 23.9 yards per catch last year, and Joe Smith provide Alabama with speed on the flanks. Tight ends Preston Gothard and Thornton Chandler combined for 38 catches last year.

Second-team All-SEC center Wes Neighbors anchors an offensive line that also features tackle Hardy Walker, a Sophomore All-America last fall, and guard John McIntosh. Mike White and Gary Otten will complete the starting five.

Alabama's defense was only seventh in the Conference last year but as many as five freshmen started at various times and the unit should improve with added experience. Leader of the group will be linebacker Emanuel King, the team's top tackler and a second-team All-SEC selection. Cornelius Bennett, who had 16 tackles against Auburn, is on the other side with Venson Elder and Scott McRae inside.

Freshman All-America nose guard Curt Jarvis and Sophomore All-America Jon Hand join forces with Brent Sowell to form the Crimson Tide front line.

The secondary is paced by Freshman All-America Freddie Robinson and Ricky Thomas, the safeties. Seniors Sammy Hood and Paul Tripoli bring experience to the corners.

Record-breaking kicker Van Tiffin earned second-team All-SEC kudos for his exploits and he's still got three seasons to go.

Alabama had another good recruiting year, and although the schedule is tough, the Tide should be back on top in the SEC.

Feist's Factors

- Alabama is 2-6 as a home favorite of -28 or more, since 1973.
- Tide is 0-5 as an away favorite vs independents.
- Crimson Tide is 4-1 vs the points as a home favorite against LSU, since '73.

ARIZONA Wildcats

Eight players who were selected to either the first or second All-Pac-10 team last season have graduated, but Wildcat Head Coach Larry Smith refuses to view 1984 as a rebuilding year.

"I don't think of it as a rebuilding year," said Smith. "We have the biggest senior class since we came here in 1980. We also have some fifth year seniors for the first time."

Arizona ranked no worse than third in six-of-eight major statistical categories in the Pac-10 last year, so there's a lot to live up to, here.

The offense starts without quarterback Tom Tunnicliffe, the Conference's fourth-leading career passer. Alfred Jenkins, who helped direct the victory over Washington State last year, will be the new starting signal-caller. First-team All-Pac-10 receiver Jay Dobyys is a good one, as is Jon Horton on the other flank, and the Wildcats also have tight end Mark Walczak back in the fold. All four tailbacks return, but Arizona will miss leading rusher Chris Brewer, the full-back. Ironman (he played every offensive snap) Charlie Dickey heads up an offensive line that needs to come up with a couple of tackles. Arizona led the League in scoring (32.1 avg.), last season.

On defense, the biggest hole is the one left by linebacker Ricky Hunley, one of the most decorated players in UA history. Hunley's younger brother, Lamonte, will keep the name, if not the style of play, in evidence. Steve Boadway is another returning starter on who the Cats can count. Arizona was second in the Pac-10 in both total defense and scoring defense last year and a big reason was the play of its line. There David Wood, Joe Drake and John Barthalt all return. The trio was honorable mention All-Pac-10 in '83. The Wildcats substituted liberally in their secondary a year ago, a fact which should pay dividends this season. However, the excellence of career interception touchdown leader Randy Robbins, at cornerback, will be missed.

Placekicker Max Zendejas did not miss a kick inside of 40 yards last season and earned second-team All-Pac-10 honors for his efforts. Interestingly, Max's brother, Luis, was first-team at Arizona State. The search is on for a punter. The Cat special teams usually are, having blocked 10 kicks in the past two seasons.

"I feel good about this team," said Smith. "We have a lot of experienced football players. We have some good talent. We shouldn't take a step back."

The Arizona schedule, with seven games slated for Tucson, will help, but the Cats don't figure to be quite as ferocious as they were last year.

Austin's Edges

- Wildcats are 15-6 vs the points on the road the last five years.
- Arizona is 6-12 vs the points against the Pac-10 since 1973, as a home fav.
- The road team has won all six meetings vs the points in Washington St.-Arizona series.

ARIZONA STATE Sun Devils

Darryl Rogers' Sun Devils led the Pac-10 in total offense, total defense, and total frustration last year as Arizona State lost three games it could have won in the final seconds. ASU fell to Florida State with six seconds to play; lost to California with 48 ticks remaining on the clock and were beaten by Arizona as time expired. The difference between 6-4-1 and 9-1-1 was 54 seconds. But time could be on ASU's side this year.

The Sun Devils return 16 starters from those platoons, including 10-of-11 (and 21-of-22 on the two-deep) off the defense.

"We can't expect them to get anything but better," admitted Rogers of his defensive troops.

The unit is paced by David Fulcher, the first freshman safety since UCLA's Ken Easley to be voted first-team All-Conference. Fulcher, who was second in tackles, led in interceptions and fumbles caused and, in general, was a master of mayhem, missed spring drills with Achilles problems. His healthy return is crucial to ASU's success. Dale Walton is at free safety with Marion Montgomery and Bruce Hill on the corners.

The linebacking corps is headed by Jimmy Williams, the Sun Devils' leading tackler the past two seasons. He's joined by Greg Battle and Brian Noble. Red-hot frosh Stacy Harvey has won the battle for the other LB opening.

Up front it's Taleni Wright, Dan Saleaumua and Frank Rudolph, three sophs who earned their stripes as freshmen starters last year.

The offense returns six starters, including Darryl Clack, the Pac-10's leading rusher and all-purpose runner in 1983. Clack, who ran for 932 yards, shares tailback with Mike Crawford (547 yards). Channing Williams gives ASU the most speed they've had at fullback since Gerald Riggs played there in '81.

The key QB spot will go to Jeff Van Raaphorst, a third-year soph who Rogers claims can do the job. Van Raaphorst has big cleats to fill in graduated Todd Hons (61 percent completions).

Starting wideouts like Doug Allen (31 receptions) and Paul Day (28) should make things easier for Van Raaphorst, but the absence of TE Don Kern (49 receptions), hurts.

Mark Shupe and Don Madden form the nucleus of an offensive front that also includes Danny Villa, Brian Lopker and Tom Magazzeni.

All-America placekicker Luis Zendejas (28-37 FGs), does the long-range damage.

With nearly the entire defense returning and eight games scheduled for friendly Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, Arizona State should have an excellent year. And, if time is on ASU's side, it could be superb.

Feist's Factors

• Sun Devils are 6-1 as a home underdog (since 1973).

• Arizona State is 22-14 as a favorite vs non-conference teams.

• Devils are 4-0 vs the points against USC.

ARKANSAS Razorbacks

Primarily a veer team during Lou Holtz' seven-year tenure in Fayetteville, Arkansas will switch to the "flexbone" this season, the offensive alignment that new Head Coach Ken Hatfield brings with him from Air Force. Hatfield, who starred on the 1964 Arkansas team that won the National Championship, had led the Falcons to back-to-back bowl victories the past two seasons. The '83 AF offense ranked second nationally in rushing and fourth, overall, in total offense.

"We know we have a quarterback who is a fine athlete and an outstanding passer in Brad Taylor and we know we have good speed at the skill positions," assessed Hatfield, looking over seven returning offensive starters from last year's 6-5 team.

Taylor, who connected on 54 percent of his aeriels last year, will have to run more and pass less in the flexbone. Since Arkansas returns its top five running backs from '83, he should have plenty of help. Derrick Thomas and Carl Miller ranked one-two last year, but all spots are open. Marshall Foreman, Bobby Joe Edmonds, Terry Tatum and Billy Warren also will be looking for playing time at the RB positions. Luther Franklin appears set at tight end, and while the wideout post will feature a new face, the line, led by All-SWC guard Marcus Elliot and regulars Robert Wilcoxen, Andy Upchurch and Mike Ihrie, is hardly lacking in experience.

Like the offense, the defense will undergo a change as Hatfield replaces Arkansas' multiple alignments with an overshifted "50" this season.

"We want aggressive defensive players," said Hatfield, whose defense was first in the Western Athletic Conference in preventing points in 1983.

The Hogs return eight defensive starters, but Ron Fautot, who led the team in sacks, plus the linebacking duo of Milton Fields and Bert Zinamon, will be missed. Nick Miller and Robert Brannon will be the mainstays up front with Ravin Caldwell the leader at linebacker. Mark Lee and Greg Lasker head up a veteran secondary.

Arkansas' kicking game, with Greg Horne (14-22 FG, 44.3 punting average) doing double duty, is more than adequate.

The Hogs get a considerable break from the schedule maker, listing seven home games, including the first five of the season. The favorable early home slate and late starting date (Sept. 15) will give the Arkansas players more time to learn the Hatfield system. By the time the Hogs take to the road (Oct. 20 against Texas), the record should be padded (5-0 is a good guess) and the system known. And, by year's end, Arkansas should be back in the bowl picture.

Austin's Edges

• Arkansas is 8-3 vs the points against Texas Tech since 1973.

• Razorbacks are 12-7 vs the points at Little Rock the past 11 years.

• Hogs are winless vs the points at Texas, 0-5 since '73.

ARMY Cadets

It took only one season--a*2-9 one--for Head Coach Jim Young to come to the realization that Army needed a change of tactics if the Cadets were to become winners on the football battlefield. The new strategy calls for the Black Knights to scrap the multiple attack of a year ago in favor of the wishbone, and identifying a quarterback to run the new formation will be Young's first priority. Nate Sassaman, who played quarterback his first two years at the Point but was switched to the defense last season, will battle Rob Healy for the job. Healy started seven games for the Cadets last year and was the team's leading passer (71-142).

Running back is particularly important in the wishbone and Young has made some moves to bolster this position. Dee Bryant will move over from cornerback and Jervis Hollingsworth will make the switch from flanker. Kevin McKelvy also is in the hunt. The Cadets will miss Elton Atkins, their top rusher from a year ago (third nationally in all-purpose running, as well), who has decided not to play football this season.

Scott Spellmon led the Cadets in receiving last fall with 34, but one wonders how much activity he'll see out of the all-run, no-throw wishbone. Rob Dickerson, who caught 14 balls for 180 yards last season, is the only letterman at tight end.

The offensive line, the key to any rushing attack, could be a strong point for the Cadets. Ron Rice played so well at center in replacing injured Don Smith, that when the latter came back, he was shifted to guard. Dave Woolfolk and Karl Heineman each started nine games last year and should be the starting tackles.

Like the offense, seven defenders return to starting roles, although with Bryant moving to the attack, that number drops to six.

The platoon will be headed by a pair of three-year lettermen linebackers, Jim Gentile and John Roney. Gentile led the Cadets with 134 tackles in '83 while Roney added 112, second on the club.

Mike Staver, Jim Jennings and Brad Allen are three returning starters up front, with the former being the man to keep an eye on.

Three-fourths of the secondary that started against Navy last year will not return, creating some holes for Young and his staff. Eric Griffin is back at cornerback, but with both Sassaman and Bryant moving to the offense, this area is shaky.

Record-setting punter Joe Sartiano has graduated, but the Cadets still have kicker Craig Stopa, the team's leading scorer the last two seasons.

The Army schedule is not difficult, and the Cadets--almost by default--should be able to win three games.

Feist's Factors

- Army is 12-18 overall, as a home underdog, the past 11 years.
- The favorite is 8-2-1 vs the points in the Army-Air Force rivalry.
- Black Knights are only 1-4 as a dog vs teams from the SEC since 1973.

AUBURN Tigers

Pat Dye's 1984 team has a long way to go to equal the accomplishments of last year's squad that rolled to an 11-1 record and the No. 3 ranking in the final polls, but the fourth-year Auburn head coach isn't conceding a thing.

"How good we will be will depend on how we develop in some of the critical areas," he said. "The keys for us will be the development and maturing of our quarterback situation and the development of our defensive front. If we can become 'good' in those areas, we should be in a position to have a chance to win every game we play in."

The quarterback job will go to Pat Washington, the backup to departed regular Randy Campbell last year. Washington directed a 95-yard scoring drive against Texas last year (the only game the Tigers lost), but is, otherwise, inexperienced.

Best advice for Washington would be for him to hand the ball off to Bo Jackson, the SEC's leading rusher (1,213 yards) last season. Jackson, who averaged 7.7 yards per carry out of the Auburn wishbone, is a solid contender for Heisman consideration this fall. Joining Jackson is fullback Tommie Agee, no slouch himself with 604 yards last year, and halfback Tim Jessie, the replacement for departed Lionel James. Clayton Beauford will be the lone senior on the starting offensive platoon, he at split end.

The offensive line, led by Jeff Lott, Steve Wallace and Ben Tamburello, is young but talented.

All-SEC end Gerald Robinson will be the cornerstone of a new defensive front five, with Ben Thomas, Gerald Williams and Harold Hallman the main men inside. Dye's recruiting netted four of the top 19 defensive linemen in the country, according to National High School Football Magazine, so the future looks taken care of, as well.

All-SEC backer Gregg Carr heads the LB corps with help from Jim Bone and Pat Thomas while the Auburn secondary of David King, Jimmie Warren, Tommy Powell and Victor Beasley, returns intact.

Lewis Colbert will do the punting but a placekicker must be found to replace Allen Del Greco, whose toe was the difference in four games last year.

Auburn's schedule may be the nation's toughest as the Tigers face eight bowl outfits and an overall slate that compiled a 64 percent win ratio in '83. It starts with Miami and Texas and ends with Georgia and Alabama. In the middle are such testers as Florida, Tennessee and Florida State. With such a backdrop, it's unrealistic to expect the Tigers to match last year's 11-1 record. However, Dye's teams are always ready, and Auburn will have a chance in each and every one of those games.

Austin's Edges

- Tigers are 16-25 as a home favorite since 1973.
- The visitor is 9-1 vs the points in the Auburn-Georgia Tech series.
- Auburn is 6-2 vs the points from pick to -4 as an away favorite the past 11 years.

BAYLOR Bears

On the surface, it appears Baylor enters the season with few concerns, as 46 lettermen, including 14 starters, return from the 1983 outfit that had a 7-3-1 regular season mark and played in the Bluebonnet Bowl. But looks can be deceiving. For starters, the Bear coaching staff must replace not only a 1,000-yard rusher, but a 1,000-yard receiver, as well. Alfred Anderson (1,046 yards rushing) and Gerald McNeil (1,034 yards receiving) are both gone. They became only the second duo from one school to accomplish that feat, in the same year, in SWC history. Also lost to graduation is fullback Allen Rice (second in rushing) and wingback Bruce Davis (second to McNeil in the SWC in receiving). Toss in the loss of All-America tackle Mark Adickes, and there are some awfully big shoes to fill.

There are some bright spots, however. Cody Carlson and Tim Muecke, who shuttled in and out in Baylor's alternating quarterback system last year, both return ranked one-two in SWC passing efficiency. Carlson, in fact, was fourth nationally in 1983.

Robert Williams, a redshirt, Ralph Stockemer, a backup, are the projected starters at running back, while Bobby Joe Conrad and Glenn Pruitt are the choices at the wideout spots. Of the quartet, only Stockemer has garnered any appreciable playing time.

Joel Barnett is the incumbent at tight end, but his nine receptions last year are dwarfed by McNeil's 62 and Davis' 42. Mark Cochran and John Adickes should be the cornerstones of the rebuilt front line.

Baylor's defense not only returns nine starters, but 13 other defenders who also started at least one game last year because of injuries to regulars. The Bear 4-4 flex, introduced last year, is headed by end Ervin Randle, a first-team All-Conference selection in '83. Randle will get some help up front from Pat Coryatt, the Bear's fastest and strongest (he can bench press 565 pounds) lineman.

Kevin Hancock, who led the team in tackles last year, returns at linebacker. In fact, Baylor returns all eight players who saw action at that position last year.

The secondary will be comprised of all underclassmen, featuring Aaron Grant and Thomas Everett, a pair of sophs who won starting assignments as freshmen last season.

Marty Jimmerson returns to handle the placements while Buzzy Sawyer does the punting. Sawyer doesn't kick 'em far (39.5), but his hang time allows excellent coverage (37.5 net).

The Bears will miss the big play potential at wide receiver, but Carlson and Muecke are a plus, as is Grant Teaff's solid and deep defense.

Feist's Factors

- Bears are 10-5 as an SWC home underdog, since 1973.
- Baylor is only an awful 1-5 vs the points against SMU at home the past 11 years.
- The Bears are only 5-9 as a road favorite since 1978.

BOSTON COLLEGE Eagles

Boston College fielded its best team in four decades, last season, but this year's outfit could be even better.

"We have a chance to be a very good football team again," admitted Head Coach Jack Bicknell, beginning his fourth season in Chestnut Hill.

Bicknell will have 16 starters back from among 47 letter winners that stormed to a 9-2 regular season mark and captured the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of the East's No. 1 team, last year. Heading the list of returnees is All-America quarterback Doug Flutie, the third-place finisher in last year's Heisman Trophy balloting. Against Penn State, alone, in the last two years, Flutie has thrown for 900 yards, and has a chance to become the NCAA's all-time passing yardage king by season's end.

Although All-America wideout Brian Brennan (66 catches) has graduated, Flutie still has a fine corps of receivers. Topping the contingent is All-America tight end Scott Gieselmann (45 receptions). Gerard Phelan (22 grabs) is an experienced wideout.

The Eagles also have their top six ball carriers returning from last year, led by Troy Stradford, who gained 810 yards and scored seven TDs despite missing three games. Jim Browne and Steve Strachan will see action at fullback.

All-America tackle Mark MacDonald heads an equally deep and talented offensive line. MacDonald is joined by center Jack Bicknell, Jr., guards Mark Bardwell and Steve Trapilo, and tackle Shawn Regent. It's a solid group.

The BC defense, which gave up an average of only 15 points per game last season, again should be strong, All-America nose guard Mike Ruth is the man to watch. Ruth is one of the strongest (525-lb. bench press) and quickest (4.85 40) linemen in the nation. He'll be joined up front by Scott Harrington (second in tackles in '83), Roy Norden, David Thomas and Chuck Gorecki. Four-year starter Steve DeOssie will be missed at linebacker, but the Eagles have a good one in Ted Gaffney. Andy Hemmer, who missed much of last year with a stress fracture, is the leading candidate to replace DeOssie.

Three of four starters, representing seven years of first-string experience, make the secondary strong for the Eagles. Dave Pereira, Tony Thurman and Todd Russell are the returning regulars, with Neil Iton slated to step in for departed All-East cornerback George Radachowsky.

The kicking game is only fair, but what really concerns Bicknell is a schedule that has the Eagles on the road against Miami, Alabama, Penn State and West Virginia. It's a formidable list of foes, but this is no ordinary Boston College team, and the Eagles are capable of holding their own against anyone.

Austin's Edges

- Eagles are 6-1 as a road favorite from -6 to -9½ since 1973.
- The BC-West Virginia series has gone to the favorite seven of the last nine spread decisions.
- Boston College is 5-11 vs the points as a dog against the clubs they meet in '84.

BRIGHAM YOUNG Cougars

From Gifford Nielsen to Marc Wilson to Jim McMahon to Steve Young to Robbie Bosco, BYU's always produced the quarterback to run Head Coach LaVell Edwards' bombs away attack. Wait a minute, Robbie who?

Robbie Bosco is the heir-apparent to the BYU bombardier post, having undergone boot camp with Young and Edwards last year as a reserve. Now, it's his turn. Bosco, a junior, saw limited action, completing 17-of-28 passes for 252 yards and three TDs. One pass was intercepted. Don't worry, Young's stats weren't that impressive before he took over the starter's job, either.

Besides Bosco, the Cougars will have six other new faces in the offensive starting lineup. All-America tight end Gordon Hudson (44 receptions) will be replaced by David Mills while Kirk Pendleton's WR spot (where he caught 50 balls for 11 TDs) will go to Adam Haysbert. Glen Kozlowski (29 grabs) is the incumbent at split end.

BYU's top three runners, who combined for 1,631 yards rushing, 134 receptions and 25 TDs, have graduated, leaving mission returnee Kelly Smith and Lakei Heimuli the leading contenders for the starting assignments.

There's better news on the offensive line where center Trevor Match, guard Craig Garrick and tackle Louis Wong all return. Letter winners David Wright and Scott Robinson should fill in the tackle and guard vacancies.

Defensively, the Cougars will be in somewhat better shape. Three of four starters return at linebacker, led by Leon White, an honorable mention All-WAC selection. He'll be joined by regulars Marv Allen and Cary Whittingham with Kurt Gouveia, a reserve last year, slated to become a starter.

Up front, the Cougars are led by end Jim Herrman, whose 16 sacks topped the club last year. Brad Smith returns at nose guard with soph Shawn Knight the probable new starter at the other end spot. Larry Hamilton also is in the hunt.

Only one starter returns in the secondary, but he's a good one in second-team All-WAC safety Kyle Morrell. The other safety will be Steve Haymond. Rob Ledenko and Mark Allen will be at the corners.

Punter Lee Johnson, who averaged 50.6-yards per boot in generally high altitude, returns. Johnson also kicked 11 field goals (in 23 attempts) and converted 52-of-55 PATs.

The Cougars have an awful lot of holes to fill, and the schedule, which opens with Pittsburgh and Baylor, and is challenging, but Edwards always finds a way of putting a top-notch team together. This BYU outfit, headed by Bosco, shouldn't be any different, and the Cougars remain favorites for an unprecedented ninth straight WAC title.

Feist's Factors

- The Cougars are 2-1 as a home underdog, since 1973.
- The visitor has covered four of five pointspread decisions in Air Force-BYU series.
- BYU is 5-2 as an away underdog the past 11 years.

BROWN Bruins

John Rosenberg, who learned the ropes under Joe Paterno at Penn State, will try and bring some of that Nittany Lion magic to Providence this year as the Bruins' new head coach. Lots of luck.

The Bruins chalked up some impressive numbers last year--first in the Ivy League in rushing, total offense and rushing defense--but graduation has claimed four first-team All-Ivy picks, as well as record-breaking quarterback Joe Potter. Potter, who threw for three touchdowns (against 19 interceptions) and ran for five more, will be replaced by Steve Kettelberger, last season's backup. Kettelberger played in six games last year, completing three-of-eight passes, one for a TD, with no interceptions.

Seven of the top eight receivers return, including split end Brad McCaulley, who led the Bruins with 33 catches for 439 yards and three scores last year. Dave Fielding, John Monaghan and tight end Rich Chapman offer additional pass-catching ability.

Honorable mention All-Ivy tackle Matt Paknis and center Chris Vaughn head an offensive line that is sure to miss a pair of first-team All-Ivy selections in tackle Bob Mangiacotti and guard Jeff Nikora.

Steve Heffernan, who rolled for 676 yards and eight touchdowns last year, and Jamie Potkul, who added 619 markers (5.7-yard average), provide the Bruins with two excellent running backs. If the line develops, the Bruins could have a punishing ground game.

Defensively, Rosenberg must replace a pair of All-Ivy linemen and both linebackers before the Bruins can approach last year's efforts. Ted Moskala and Bruce Taylor are a good starting point for rebuilding up front while Pat McCormack and Bill Kramer should be able to help out at linebacker.

In the defensive backfield, three-of-four starters return, but the Bruins were bombed by aerial attacks last fall so better performances are required. Seniors Mark Kachmer, Greg Hausler and Pete Gundermann should be much improved after starting for the first time last year, and if either Chris Girard or George Klipa can replace graduated Scott Schultz, the unit could be noticeably better.

Chris Ingerslev had a solid season in 1983, hitting 19-of-20 PAT tries and nine-of-14 field goal attempts. He could be the top placekicker in the League this year. The punting game started off well but tapered off near the end of '83. Both Paul Bogdanovich (35.4 average on 32 punts) and Doug Frankel (36.3 for 29) return.

Rosenberg should have a good running attack, and if he can mount an aerial assault and add some defense, the Bruins should be Ivy League contenders, again.

Austin's Edges

- Bruins are 21-40 as a favorite since 1973.
- Brown is 16-8 as an underdog over the last 11 years.
- Brown is 3-8 vs the points against Dartmouth.

CALIFORNIA Golden Bears

Despite a one-dimensional offense and a defense that is paper-thin, Cal will field an exciting and unpredictable football team in 1984.

Joe Kapp's third edition at Berkeley will emphasize the passing game with Gale Gilbert the captain of 'Air Cal.' Gilbert is the latest in a long line of Golden Bears quarterbacks who have jammed the airwaves. Last year Gilbert threw for 2,769 yards to become the most prolific passer in Cal single-season history, topping an illustrious list that includes Steve Bartkowski, Craig Morton, Rich Campbell and Joe Roth.

Gilbert's favorite target returns in Rance McDougald. The flanker led the team in receptions with 46 last season. Also returning is tight end Don Noble, who made his freshman year a good one by snaring 23 aeriels. Either Orrin Ford or Keith Cockett will inherit the vacant split end position.

While the Cal passing attack was finishing eighth nationally, the running game was finishing 10th... in the Pac-10. In fact, the ground game was so non-existent it averaged only 1.7 yards per carry and had just one player--Dwight Garner--who managed a run of more than 15 yards. Ron Story and Garner are returning starters, but juco All-America Gayland Houston could make his presence felt, too.

Mike Reed, at center, and Mark Long, at guard, are the only returning starters on the offensive line, but Mark Stephens has a lot of experience at tackle and Joe Tupy has earned a monogram there, as well. Keith Kartz or Louis Sergeant will complete the starting quintet.

California's defense, which was third in the nation in creating turnovers a year ago, must be rebuilt. The Bears lose eight starters from that unit, including All-America linebacker Ron Rivera.

"We believe in putting pressure on the offense," explained Kapp. "I learned a long time ago, the value of defense. We won't sit and wait. Count on us finding a way to put pressure on other teams."

Nose guard John Haina, third in tackles last year, could be Kapp's big-play defender. Haina will be especially effective if Doug Riesenberger and Mike Rusinek adequately fill the tackle voids.

At linebacker, only Hardy Nickerson on the inside and Miles Turpin on the outside have any appreciable experience. Keith Poe and Paul Mason have the inside track for the other vacancy outside, and there are plenty of candidates for the opening inside, too.

Ray Noble, Ken Pettway, David Carter and Matt Grimes head up what could be a surprisingly adept secondary, while Tom Gandsey does all the kicking.

Cal will be very, very exciting, but probably not very, very good.

Feist's Factors

- The Golden Bears are 3-8 vs the points against UCLA, the past 11 years.
- Bears are 7-2 as an away underdog in all games played after non-conference foes.
- California is 11-5 as an away favorite in the Pac-10.

CLEMSON Tigers

The Tigers have the best record in college football over the past three years, and after this season, they'll probably have the best record in four. Clemson has gone 30-2-2 since 1981 and Head Coach Danny Ford looks forward to a continuation of that success in '84.

"We are all proud of what we have done in the last three years and the standards are now set for the future," said Ford. "We hope to keep pace with that tradition this year."

The tradition Ford speaks of is the on-field success enjoyed by the Tigers. Clemson has been on NCAA probation the past two seasons for recruitment violations.

Back to what's happening on the field. It is there that Ford has 15 starters and 47 lettermen back from last season's 9-1-1 club. The offense, with nine regulars returning, is loaded. Mike Eppley, one of only three athletes in Division I to start for his team's football and basketball team, returns to quarterback the Tigers. Eppley had a brilliant junior season in '83, completing nearly 60 percent of his passes while finishing third in the nation in efficiency rating. Yes, higher than Boomer Esiason, Ben Bennett or Scott Stankavage. Eppley's favorite receiver last year was freshman Ray Williams, but it was tight end K.D. Dunn who earned All-ACC honors. Despite its success passing the football, Clemson is basically a running team, 75 percent of the Tigers' plays going the ground route last year. Stacey Driver, Kenny Flowers and Terrence Flagler will pace the running backs corps, the latter back after a knee injury had limited his activities to two games last year. The offensive line loses only one starter, and there are 11 lettermen back to soothe that loss. Additionally, Clemson landed one of the biggest (6-5, 290) and best (Parade All-America) linemen in the country in Raymond Chauvos. He joins incumbents Reid Ingle, Dale Swing, Jeff Cruce and the twosome of Andy Cheatham and Steve Reese, who split time at guard last year.

Two-time All-America middle guard William Perry bulwarks what promises to be another stiff Clemson defense. Terence Mack, Jeff Wells, Keith Williams, Henry Walls, and Ronald Watson should pitch-in, and there also is Richard McCullough, another prized recruit.

For the first time since 1976, the placekicking situation is unsettled. Ford will sift through a bunch of candidates to fill the spot.

With a top-flight offense and an always rugged defense, Clemson should be at the top of the ACC ladder. If the Tigers can beat Georgia, their rise could take them as high as a national crown. It's not impossible.

Austin's Edges

- Tigers are 14-5 as an away conference underdog, the last 11 years.
- The underdog is 9-2 in the Clemson-Georgia rivalry.
- Clemson is 16-8 vs the spread at home against teams they play at home this season.

COLGATE Red Raiders

The Red Raiders' chances for a third straight Division I-AA playoff appearance rests primarily on the strong right arm of All-America quarterback Steve Calabria, the architect of Colgate's 23-11 record the past three years. Calabria already holds 35 school records for total offense and passing.

Three of the top four wide receivers--Tom Stenglein, Steve Kinney and Brian Salerno--from last year return, but there's a big hole at tight end, and both the running back corps and front line must be rebuilt.

"We have an excellent quarterback in Steve Calabria," admitted Head Coach Fred Dunlap, "but for Colgate to get into the playoffs, it will take a lot of growth and maturity in a short time--but it's possible."

The Red Raiders have lost All-America tailback Rich Erenberg (1,883 yards in '83) and blocking fullback Gil Terenzi in the backfield, promoting backups Stacy Hall (513 yards) and Bob Clark (150 yards) into their respective spots. Tim Nugent, a former fullback, will try his skills at tight end.

Besides Calabria, the only other offensive starter back for '84 is guard Mark McDonald. All five backups return to the trenches, but only guard Rich Clancy played enough to earn a letter last fall, thus, both tackles and the center spot will be manned by non-monogram winners.

Four starters return to the Colgate defense, none of them up front, though. Dave Young and Chris Kirby will be the new starting tackles with Mike Connor taking over at nose tackle. Kirby has the toughest assignment, replacing ECAC all-star Marty Murphy.

The linebacking corps is solid inside and iffy outside. John McCabe, the leading tackler last season, mans one inside post with help from Tim Driver, another returning regular. Tom LeLoup and Bill Hecht, reserves who earned letters last year, take over at the outside spots, the latter in place of Jeff Knight, the team's defensive MVP last year.

The secondary is young, but if it can stay together, could be a solid contingent. Eugene Robinson, back from a broken leg, should hold down one cornerback spot with Dave Reed or Mike Todisco at the other. Neil Viserto and Walt Lupus are the likely safeties. This group lacked speed last year.

Mark Brown (35.7) returns for his third season as the punter while Mike Powers, who set a Colgate record for points by a kicker in a season, most field goals in a game and most consecutive field goals made, returns to handle the placekicking duties.

The return of just six starters, plus a schedule that has the Red Raiders home just four weekends of the season, will make it tough on Colgate this year.

Feist's Factors

- Raiders are 10-3 as an away favorite of less than 10 points, since '73.
- Colgate is 2-5 as a home favorite the past 11 years.
- The favorite is 8-3 vs the points in Colgate-Cornell decisions.

COLORADO Buffaloes

Bill McCartney's third edition in Boulder will be weak on experience--as many as a half-dozen non-letter winners will start--and strong in the flesh.

"They are really working hard in the weight room," beamed McCartney. "We're getting bigger and stronger all the time."

Whether "bigger and stronger" turns out to be "better and better," as well, remains to be seen. Last year's Buffs had sand kicked in their faces, finishing last in the Big Eight in both rushing defense and total defense.

"We have not proven we can stop the run yet," admitted McCartney. "Our goal is to do just that--work on our defense against the run."

A pair of seniors--Don Muncie and George Smith are the mainstays up front, but look for juco transfer Ken Lightner to win a starting assignment, too. Still, this front three won't be much different from the trio that permitted foes 257 yards per game on the ground last year.

Help could come at linebacker, though, especially if hardship Barry Remington makes a successful return. Remington's recovery would allow CU to shift solid Don Fairbanks to the weakside LB spot, giving the Buffs a strong, maybe outstanding, LB corps. Wayne Carroll and Dan McMullen are adequate outside linebackers.

Kent Davis is the only returning starter in the secondary, so the Buffs will go with juco products and last year's reserves this time around.

Offensively, the Buffaloes are strongest at wide receiver with Loy Alexander and Ron Brown. Alexander established a CU record for receiving yardage last year (557), while Brown was right behind (515) and had a 21.5-yard average, to boot.

Steve Vogel and Derek Marshall will continue their battle for the QB spot, with the former given the edge since Marshall missed spring drills due to off-season shoulder surgery.

Lee Rouson and Eric McCarty have the ability at the running back slots, but there is little proven depth behind them and the offensive line has lost three starters and one part-time starter. Guard Junior Ili and center Eric Coyle will be the cornerstones of the new front line, with Jon Embree trying to fill the shoes of departed All-Big Eight tight end Dave Hestera.

Tom Field (goals) has graduated, leaving kickoff man Larry Eckel as the logical replacement there, while Allan Braun returns to handle the punting chores.

Colorado's schedule, with UCLA and Oregon replacing Colorado State and Oregon State, is tougher than last season's.

The Buffs, who were 4-7 last year, will have a tough time matching even those meager figures this year.

Austin's Edges

- The Buffaloes are pathetic 5-13 as a home underdog in the Big-8 the past 11 seasons.
- Colorado is 0-7 vs the points against Nebraska (since 1973).
- The Buffs are 12-5 when favored at home against Big-8 rivals.

COLUMBIA Lions

The greatest aerial display in Ivy League history has come to a close with the graduation of Columbia quarterback John Witkowski, and one wonders what the Lions can do for an encore.

"The strength of this year's team could be its defense," deadpanned Head Coach Bob Naso. "Last year we had just one senior playing regularly, with sophomores dominating, especially at linebacker. What was our biggest questionmark in 1983 becomes a solid, veteran area this fall."

While the numbers--10 starters return--support Naso's optimism, the statistics do not. Columbia gave up an average 36.3 points per game last year including 77 to Holy Cross. Improvement better come in bunches. The unit will be built around linebackers Winslow Cervantes and Dave Nickerson. Cervantes is a second-team All-Ivy League choice while Nickerson was first on the team in tackles. Kirk Adams, an Honorable Mention All-Conference pick at strong safety after switching from outside linebacker in mid-season, is back to help the secondary. The defensive front will be paced by Paul Myers, Frank Mambuca, Eric Dill and Bill Strack. Columbia gave up an embarrassing 5.1 yards per rush last year.

Witkowski leaves the offense with Ivy League career marks for pass attempts, completions, yards and total offense. His place will be taken by last year's backup, Pete Murphy, who threw just five passes last year. Murphy's main target will be tight end Dan Upperco, whose 42 receptions and eight TDs helped him earn first-team All-Ivy recognition last season. Sure to be missed, however, is the wideout combination of Bill Reggio and Don Lewis which teamed up for an astonishing 140 catches and 14 touchdowns last year.

Mike Goldman, the lone back in Columbia's one-back offense last year, has graduated, taking 726 yards of infantry with him. Darryl Mitchell, a starter until he was injured, will take Goldman's spot. Mitchell ran for 161 yards (4.1 average) before he was hurt.

The offensive line has a pair of regulars in guard Len Genova and tackle Ed Barreiro, but the other spots must be filled. Larry Walsh is back to handle the kicking chores with Pete Murphy returning for the punting duties.

The Lions spent a year travelling around the East while their stadium was being rebuilt last year but will return to Baker Field for six games this season. That'll help, but not nearly enough. Even with Witkowski and Company the Lions were close to awful. Without the record-breaking offense the Lions will be even worse.

Feist's Factors

- Columbia is 3-0 as a home favorite, since '73.
- Lions are 2-7 as an Ivy League away underdog of +9½ or less.
- Columbia is 2-7 vs the spread against Ivy League rival Yale the past 11 years.

CORNELL Big Red

It took eight tries before Maxie Baughan got his first victory at Cornell, but once he got one, he didn't let go of it and the Big Red finished with three straight wins, a sign, Baughan hopes, of things to come.

"Our players learned what winning is all about in those three games," said Baughan. "It definitely has had a positive effect."

What didn't have a positive effect was graduation, which claimed, among others, Derrick Harmon, Cornell's one-man offensive gang. Harmon ran for 1,276 yards last year, had a 5.9-yard average, scored 12 touchdowns and led the team in receiving with 36. That's a lot of offense to lose, but Baughan, nevertheless, is optimistic about his running game.

"We're excellent in this area," he insisted.

The new lineup will have Tony Baker, last season's fullback, moving to Harmon's TB spot, and Mark Miller, who broke his foot last year, taking over at fullback. Shawn Maguire, who started as a sophomore last year, should be better for the experience and could turn out to be an excellent quarterback. Maguire connected on 57 percent of his passes but had only two TDs against 11 interceptions, signs of inexperience.

The receiving crew will be led by honorable mention All-Ivy tight end Steve Garrison (15 receptions), with Jim Perrello, a converted QB, at flanker and Paul Fochesato at split end.

Only one starter returns on the offensive line, guard John Gabel. The rest of the starting quintet will be comprised of lettermen Tom Ciffrino and Steve Idziur and non-monogram winners having to occupy two positions.

On defense, Baughan also is optimistic.

"Our linebacking should be excellent, the line lacks depth but is expected to be better, and we need to find three replacements at safety for our nickle defense," he said.

Mike Scully, a three-year starter and the team's leading tackler, is gone, but Baughan thinks returning regular Jim Studnicka could be the new kingpin outside and that he has the troops to fill the inside linebacking posts, as well. Mike Jones, Mike Lally and Tom Bernardo are ILB possibilities.

John Passalacqua is the main man up front, but Baughan needs a pair of safeties to make his five-back secondary work. Gregg Hofstetter and Jeff Palazzese will be at the corners with Bill Borden and Scott Sidman the picks at safety and/or nickle-back.

George Coltrin returns for the punting work while Bill Goldy inherits the placekicking duties.

Cornell won't be spectacular, but the Big Red won't be anyone's pushovers, either.

Austin's Edges

- Big Red is 10-2 as an away underdog of +10 or more the past 11 years.
- Cornell is 8-3 vs the ponies against Penn but 1-10 against Brown.
- Big Red is 8-13 as a home underdog in the Ivy League (since '73).

DARTMOUTH Big Green

Dartmouth got off to a 4-0 Ivy League start before a dozen injuries ruined the Big Green's chances for a title last year, but Joe Yukica's squad is out to make amends this season.

"We have a good blend of returning starters on both offense and defense," said the coach, "and I expect our 1984 team to be a contender for the Ivy title."

Dartmouth returns 17 of 22 players that appeared on the two-deep for the final game of the 1983 season. On offense, the man to watch is quarterback Mike Caraviello, who was injured last season. Caraviello led Dartmouth to the Ivy title in his sophomore season (1982) when he completed 57 percent of his aeriels. Caraviello will be looking for wide receiver Mike Viccora, whose 19 receptions produced a 17.1-yards per reception average. Viccora is a big-play specialist, having burned Penn for 79 and 36-yard scores last season. Tight end Matt Burke (nine receptions) also is back for another year.

The Greenies also have an outstanding runner/receiver in Rich Weissman. The open-field menace ran for 584 yards last year after amassing 605 the season before. He also hauled in 29 passes, led the team in kickoff returns, and scored 11 touchdowns. Yukica wants to add a big fullback to his arsenal to help open some holes for Weissman. The offensive line, meanwhile, also needs some reconstructive surgery, especially up the middle where the Big Green needs to find a center and two guards. Mike Martin will do nicely at one tackle spot and the Dartmouth coaches feel David Kitchen, up from the "Pea Green" freshman squad, can fill the other post.

Dartmouth's defense will be led by a pair of second-team All-Ivy performers, cornerback Dan Pomeroy and tackle Andy Osman. Pomeroy, who had three interceptions last year, paces a deep and talented secondary that returns Dan Carson, Scott Kehoe and Greg Cole.

Osman will team up with fellow tackle Mike Oniskey while Yukica seeks to fill the nose guard and end positions. A threesome of sophs up from the freshman team--George Balchunas, Rusty Gardner and Jon Winslow--could be the answer.

The linebacking corps will be led by Ed Simpson and Les Fontes. The latter had four interceptions last season to lead the Big Green in that area. Craig Saltzgaber returns to bolster the kicking game after connecting on eight-of-13 field goal attempts and all 23 extra points last year. Dan Fleishman, another member of last year's freshman team, will assume the punting duties.

Dartmouth has a potentially explosive offense and strong enough defense to be considered among the favorites for the Ivy League Championship.

Feist's Factors

- Dartmouth is 13-5 vs the points in the last three games of each season, since 1973.
- Big Green is only 2-10 vs the points against independents.
- The visiting team is 8-3 vs the points in the Dartmouth-Princeton series.

DUKE Blue Devils

Coping with the loss of the main proponents from last year's record-breaking offense is the chief task confronting Head Coach Steve Sloan in his second season in Durham.

"It's a little scary sometimes to look at the stat sheet from last year and realize how much offense we are losing," admitted Sloan.

Gone is Ben Bennett's 3,132 passing yards along with All-ACC running back Mike Grayson's 785 rushing yards. All-ACC Mark Militello also has graduated after catching 122 passes the past two seasons, as has two-time All-ACC center Philip Ebinger.

Replacing Bennett, the flamboyant field general for the last four years, is the toughest task. Of the quarterback candidates, only Ron Sally has any significant experience, having played in 10 games back in 1981. Last year, Sally played in just one game and attempted just one pass (incomplete). Drew Walston, a junior, will get the call if Sally dallies, or can't make the grade. All-ACC tight end Scott Russell (47 receptions) should ease Sally's transition, as should running back Julius Grantham, who toiled for 1,257 all-purpose yards last year as a freshman. And the offensive line, bulwarked by tackles Ted Million and Justin Becket, appears adequate.

Having given up 269 points through eight games last year (almost a 33-point average), Sloan switched the Devils from a 5-2 to a 4-3 alignment for the final three contests. The result was a slight improvement (27 points per game), but enough evidence to the coach that Duke belonged in the 4-3. The 4-3 puts the emphasis on linebacking, a Blue Devil strong suit since the top four backers return this season. Best of the bunch are Nick Buoniconti and Ralph Alderman, the statistical leaders.

Reggie Andrews and Murray Youmans are the outmanned mainstays up front while Joby Branion, Darryl Brunson and Mark Moseley are veterans in the secondary.

John Tolish (43.4-yard average last year) should get plenty of exercise bailing out the Blue Devils with his punts while Ken Harper seeks to improve on 10-18 field goal accuracy this year.

Sloan's problems are evident. Even with the likes of Bennett, Grayson, Militello and Ebinger, the Blue Devils managed to win just three games last year. Without 3,917 of the team's 4,512 total yards, Duke doesn't figure to do even that well. Even if Grantham picks up the slack for Grayson and Russell does the same for Militello, there's no way Sally is going to make the type of contribution Bennett has made the past four seasons. And, with a defense that appears incapable of making up the difference, there seems no way for Sloan to go but down.

Austin's Edges

- Blue Devils are 2-9 vs the points against Clemson the past 11 seasons.
- Duke is only 6-12 as a home dog against ACC competition since '73.
- Devils are an impressive 9-1 vs the points against Georgia Tech since '73.

FLORIDA Gators

Bumper stickers around Gainesville read "Florida 28, National Champions 3," in recognition of the Gators' defeat of Miami last year, but by the end of this campaign, they might read "Help!"

Charley Pell has lost 11 starters from last year's Gator Bowl outfit that wound up sixth in the final polls, including Wayne Peace, his quarterback for the last four seasons.

"Wayne Peace started 43 games at quarterback during his career and was outstanding," admitted Pell, now entering his sixth season with the Gators.

Peace, the SEC's second all-time leading passer, will be replaced by either Dale Dorniney or Donnie Whiting, although frosh Rodney Brewer and Brian Massingill can't be counted out, either.

The new QB will have new wide receivers, as well, the Gators having graduated Dwayne Dixon (47 receptions) and Bee Lang (24). Ricky Nattiel, who caught 22 balls last year, is a good place to begin reconstruction. Tom Peddie and Walter Odom again should split time at tight end.

Second-team All-SEC running back Neal Anderson heads a deep crew of runners with aid from Lorenzo Hampton and John L. Williams. The hiring of former Oklahoma offensive coordinator Galen Hall to fill the same post at Florida, could signal an emphasis on the running game this fall. With Peace gone and all the runners returning, that certainly seems a possibility.

The offensive line, with All-SEC center Phil Bromley and second-team All-Conference tackle Lomas Brown leading the way, should be outstanding.

The Gators have severe losses off the 1983 defensive unit that ranked second in the SEC and 11th nationally in total defense. Two-time All-America outside linebacker Wilbur Marshall and All-SEC free safety Tony Lilly are among the seven graduated seniors.

Tim Newton, a second-team All-SEC nose guard, returns, along with tackle Greg Cleveland, to fortify the front line. Melvin Ellison is ready to step in at the other tackle spot.

Marshall, as well as inside backer Fred McCallister--the Gators' leading tackler--will be missed at linebacker, but Florida has a good interior man in Mark Korff and a regular OLB in Alonzo Johnson.

The secondary, which led the SEC last year, returns only cornerback Ricky Easmon to a starter's role.

The Gator kicking game, with Bobby Raymond (20-23 FGs) and Ray Criswell (47.4 average), is excellent.

Florida will face six 1983 bowl teams, five of them on the road. That schedule, along with the major personnel losses, will transform the Gators from "great" to merely "good" in 1984.

Feist's Factors

- The home favorite has won seven of last eight in Florida-Florida State rivalry.
- The Gators are 4-1 vs Miss. State at home (vs the points) since 1973.
- Florida is 8-3 as a non-conference home favorite from -10 to -28 the last 11 years.

FLORIDA STATE Seminoles

For Head Coach Bobby Bowden and his Seminoles, the ingredients will be much the same as last year, but the recipe will be different. Bowden's brew will feature a departure from the razzle-dazzle offense that ranked third nationally last year to a more fundamental approach to the game—both offensively and defensively.

"I am as guilty as anybody," Bowden said after a 28-3 Peach Bowl win over North Carolina upped FSU's final record to a disappointing 7-5. "You get to where you want to play it wide open, score as many points as you can as quick as you can. Well, all that's fine, but I've been coaching long enough to know that you don't beat great football teams like we play by trying to trick them. You win with consistency, defense and kicking."

Bowden's "back-to-basics" attack still will put the ball in the air, but look for All-America running back Greg Allen to lead a resurgence of the ground game. Allen (1,134 yards, 5.7 avg., 13 TDs) will be paired with elusive Roosevelt Snipes (629 yards, 6.6 avg., four TDs) in what promises to be an explosive backfield. Eric Thomas, who directed the Seminole scalping of the Tar Heels in the Peach Bowl, again will be the quarterback, more often than not looking for Jessie Hester (31 receptions, 18.6 avg., six TDs) and Hassan Jones. John Ionata and Jamie Dukes, a pair of All-South picks last year as sophomores, anchor an offensive line that is big and talented. The only hole is at center where three-year All-South pick Tom McCormick and capable backup Sam Restivo both have graduated. There seems little doubt that FSU again will be able to move the football.

But as good as the offense was, that's how bad the defense was. Mickey Andrews, credited with shaping the rock-solid Clemson defenses of the late 70's, has been imported to help re-shape Florida State's stop-troops. Linebacker Henry Taylor and safety Brian McCrary should be the mainstays of the unit.

Top-notch recruit Derek Schmidt is being touted as a savior at placekicker, while Louis Berry already has proved his worth (42.2 avg.) as the Sems' punter last year.

And, for once the schedule appears to be working in Florida State's favor. With six games at home, including Auburn and Florida, the Seminoles have no murderous road stretch as in years past. Surely, trips to Miami and Arizona State will be difficult, but Florida State could be equal to the task.

With an improving defense and a little bit of luck—FSU lost three games by a total of five points last year—the Seminoles could be back in the hunt for another major bowl appearance and top independent status.

Austin's Edges

- Seminoles are 7-0 as a home underdog of +10, or more, since '73.
- FSU is 6-3 vs the points against teams from the Big 8 the past 11 years.
- Florida State is 10-2 as a favorite between -6 to -9½ points.

GEORGIA Bulldogs

Georgia's string of four consecutive finishes in the nation's top five appears in jeopardy this season as Head Coach Vince Dooley attempts to replace 23 seniors who helped forge a 43-4-1 record over the past four seasons.

Dooley's troops again should be strong defensively--the Bulldogs were second in the SEC in scoring defense last year--especially since safety Jeff Sanchez has rejoined the club. Sanchez, a 1982 All-SEC selection, missed all of last year with an injury. He'll join returning regular Tony Flack, himself an All-SEC candidate, along with Andre Holmes and Gary Cantrell, in the Georgia secondary.

Knox Culppepper returns at line-backer after a record-smashing season. Culppepper established school marks for tackles in a season (166) and in a single game (26) last season. He'll be paired with junior Bill Mitchell.

Four-of-five starters return up front, including Calvin Ruff--perfect name for a nasty DE--Donald Chumley, Mike Weaver and Kenny Sims. Carlyle Hewatt will inherit the lone vacancy.

On offense, Todd Williams will take over at quarterback for John Lastinger. Williams saw enough action to rank eighth in the Conference in passing last year (Lastinger was 11th). His main targets will be two of Georgia's three returning starters--flanker Herman Archie and split end Kevin Harris. Sophomore Wilbur Strozier will be the new man at tight end.

The running back corps received an unexpected jolt when last year's top man, tailback Keith Montgomery, failed to make grades. Tron Jackson (305 yards rushing, 6.9 average) will take Montgomery's place with Scott Williams or David McCluskey replacing graduated Barry Young at fullback.

The majority of the offensive line will be manned by sophomores, backed up by redshirt freshmen. The exceptions are center Keith Johnson, a junior and an all-star candidate, and guard Peter Anderson, another junior. Left tackle Victor Perry, right guard Jimmy Holton and right tackle Jay Floyd all are sophomores.

The 'Dogs have a top dog in Kevin Butler, one of only five kickers in NCAA annals to kick more than 50 career field goals with an accuracy rating of better than 75 percent (54-70 = 77%). Butler was 18-23 last year. Punter Chip Andrews (40.2-yard average), also returns.

Georgia has won three of the last four SEC titles, but will have a tough time this season. The Bulldogs must face both Alabama and Auburn on the road, plus Florida in the Gator Bowl. Still, it would be foolish to count out Dooley's 'Dogs. This is the wrong team to take lightly.

Feist's Factors

- The Bulldogs are 11-3 as an away underdog, since 1973.
- Georgia is 7-3 vs the points against Vanderbilt, since '73.
- Bulldogs are 9-3 vs the spread as an SEC home favorite of less than 10 the past 11 years.

GEORGIA TECH Yellow Jackets

A year ago, Tech's hopes were radically altered by injury, but it looks like it's the schedule that will hurt the Yellow Jackets' chances for success this season. Georgia Tech's list of enemies include SEC stalwarts Alabama, Auburn, Georgia and Tennessee, as well as ACC biggies North Carolina and Clemson. The Wreck's road to improvement is a bumpy one, it seems.

Too bad, because Bill Curry should have his best club since coming to the Flats five years ago. The Engineers (Georgia Tech has three nicknames), have 15 returning starters, including Robert Lavette, one of the more versatile running backs in the nation. Lavette, who ran for 1,208 yards and scored 19 TDs as a sophomore, was limited to 803 and six last year as injuries curtailed his effectiveness. Nevertheless, he still led the team in receiving and rushing. And, when Lavette was on the sidelines, Cory Collier was amassing 442 yards (5.6 average) while earning ACC Rookie-of-the-Year accolades. Collier also was second in the country in kick-off returns (30.0). Keith Glanton and Chuck Easley will share the fullback position. For the first time in three seasons, Tech has an experienced signal-caller in John Dewberry. Dewberry started the final eight games last fall and proved to be an able runner and adequate passer, running for five TDs and throwing for six. Tight end Ken Wisenhunt (18 receptions), along with Lavette and wideouts Darrell Norton and Daryl Wise, form a fine pass-catching crew. The offensive line, led by last year's Freshman All-America tackle John Davis, is young but improving. Only guard Tony Kepano is a senior.

Speaking of seniors, you won't find many on the Tech defense. In fact, you'll find just one, outside linebacker Dante Jones. Juniors will be at the other three LB spots, including Ted Roof and Jim Anderson inside with Pat Swilling outside.

Ivery Lee, Glenn Spencer and Ken Parker will form the front three with Mike Travis and Reginald Rutland at the corners and Anthony Harrison and Mike Rosamilia at the safeties.

Ron Rice, who did all the kicking for Tech (imagine, Tech had Rice with Curry last year), has graduated. JV kicker-punter David Bell would like to take over the dual responsibilities, but he's got plenty of competition.

With a healthy Lavette and an experienced Dewberry, plus a defense that returns eight starters, the Wreck should be Ramblin' this fall. However, that ghastly schedule is apt to be more than Curry's young squad can overcome, and when it's all over, the 1984 record won't be much different than the 1983 mark. Score it a Tech-nical knockout.

Austin's Edges

- Yellow Jackets are 5-13 as a favorite vs the ACC, since 1973.
- Georgia Tech is 1-9 vs the spread against Duke.
- Ramblin' Wreck is 2-5 as an underdog against ACC teams.

HARVARD Crimson

The Crimson relied on a rock-hard defense to gain their second straight share of an Ivy League title last year, but graduation has robbed Joe Restic of eight starters from that platoon, and prospects are not bright for an encore.

"If you look at what we lost, you'll find that we not only lost a lot of starters, but a lot of key backup people who came in and did a good job for us last year," said Restic.

What's left? Strongest area of the defense should be the secondary where starters Ken Tarczy and Brian Bergstrom return. That duo will combine with K.C. Smith to form the nucleus of the unit.

Elsewhere, there are problems. Graduation claimed All-Ivy LB Joe Azelby and his mate, Andy Nolan, as well as both backups. On the line, only Dave Fanikos returns. The linebackers lost to graduation represented a full third of Harvard's tackles, emphasizing the problem. Dan Bennett is the only senior returning, but no one has logged any appreciable playing time. Sophs, up from last year's 5-1 freshman team, could have an impact.

Things are a little better up front where Restic not only has Fanikos, but several players who saw spot duty as reserves last year. Barry Ford, Steve Anderson and Peter Mielach are among the more experienced, but the Crimson are sure to miss All-America defensive end Mark Mead.

The offense will be built around an interior quintet that returns three starters, including All-Ivy tackle Roger Caron. The other regulars are center Sam Jensen and, between them, guard Mike Pascucci. Ben Thio will inherit the opening at guard while Reggie Davis will try and shake off a history of injuries and put in a full season at tackle.

Mark Vignali is the incumbent at tailback after rushing for 586 yards last year, but the Crimson need to replace All-Ivy fullback Steve Ernst, whose 761 yards and 5.5 average led the club. Brian Cooke has the most experience at fullback while Tim Manges is the favorite at wingback. Robert Santiago has enormous potential at some backfield spot, if he can remain healthy.

The receiving crew, which loses All-Ivy John O'Brien, is looking for a burner who can draw double coverage.

Quarterback? There are seven candidates but no favorites, although senior Tony DiCesare, attempting to rebound from a shoulder injury, has the most experience.

It looks like Restic just has too many holes for the Crimson to make it three titles in-a-row, but a word of caution, folks were saying he wasn't going to make it two in-a-row last year, either.

Feist's Factors

- Harvard is 26-14 vs the points on the road, overall, since 1973.
- Crimson has covered against Penn 9-of-last-11 tries.
- Favorite is 11-5 vs the points when Harvard plays independents the past 11 years.

HOLY CROSS Crusaders

Holy Cross' defense has been ravaged by graduation, but the Crusaders' offense is so productive that HC may be able to yield 20-25 points per game and still come away a winner.

Seven starters return to the attack that scored 325 points last year, including 77 against Columbia, 42 vs New Hampshire, and 41 versus Dartmouth. The best of the lot is junior tailback Gil Fenerty, one of the most versatile runners in the country. When he's not bringing back kickoffs (22.3-yard average), or catching the football (17 receptions), Fenerty is doing what he does best, running. Last year, Fenerty rushed for 1,101 yards on just 175 carriers (6.2 average) and scored 15 touchdowns.

Fenerty is joined in the backfield by regular fullback Chuck Doyle and starting quarterback Peter Muldoon. Doyle ran for 610 yards (4.4-yard average) and nine touchdowns last year while Muldoon was completing 54 percent of his aeriels for 1,575 yards and eight TDs. On the receiving end, again, will be split end Bill Cowley (43 catches, eight TDs) and tight end Greg Laugeni (21 receptions, one score).

The offensive line has lost three interior starters, but center Lawrence Weaver and guard Kevin Garvey form a good nucleus from which to build. Fresh recruit James Miller has the size (6-5, 275) to become an instant starter at tackle.

Six starters are gone from the Crusaders' defense, four of them on the line. There, only left tackle Jim Healy returns. Head Coach Rick Carter recruited linemen Ian Dowe and Andrew Miller to go with middle guard Dave Nielson in the constructed quintet.

With Harry Flaherty having picked up his diploma--he led the team in tackles--Don Zelinski will be counted on for leadership and skill at line-backer.

Bill McGovern, who led Holy Cross with six interceptions last year, heads up the secondary with help from returning starter Jim Boyle. Dave Shimshock, who missed last year because of academic difficulties, will be welcomed back there, as well. Lee Hull and Gordon Lockbaum are freshmen who could help, and the Crusaders have a big (6-5, 205) strong safety in Tom Patton.

Tony Melink, who added seven field goals to 38 extra points, returns to handle the kicking chores for the Crusaders.

Holy Cross' schedule is similar to last year's, but having to play Colgate, Harvard and Boston University on the road, plus Boston College--who the Crusaders can't beat--at home, will make nine wins, again, difficult. Nevertheless, Holy Cross should enjoy another fine season, though, perhaps, not quite as fine as in 1983.

Austin's Edges

- The favorite has covered 9-of-11 in Holy Cross-Dartmouth series.
- Home team is 2-9 vs spread in Holy Cross-Colgate decisions the past 11 yrs.
- The Crusaders are 9-2 vs the spread in the first bettable game after Massachusetts.

HOUSTON Cougars

For the first time since joining the SWC in 1976, the Cougars had a losing record last year and odds are they're going to make it two in-a-row. Bill Yeoman's veer attack continues to do the job--Houston ranked second in the SWC in total offense and rushing--but the Cougars' defense was sixth, overall, and last against the pass.

The offense should continue to prosper, especially if last year's freshman quarterback find, Gerald Landry, progresses as expected. Landry, who did not earn the starter's job until the season was eight games old, wound up throwing for 957 yards and five TDs in four starts, numbers that auger well for the full 1984 campaign.

Landry will have three of last year's top four receivers on hand to aid his progress. Tight end Carl Hilton (21 receptions) is a possession-type receiver at tight end while Larry Shepherd (16) and Kevin Johnson (15, 22.8 avg.) are the burners at the wideout posts.

The running game, which relied on second-team All-SWC back Donald Jordan (1,049 yards) and Hula Bowl fullback Dwayne Love (601), must be rebuilt. Raymond Tate, a sophomore, will get the nod at tailback, while redshirt freshman Winston Williams is pencilled in at fullback. Behind Tate and Williams are a trio of redshirts, so experience here is thin.

The offensive line has potential. Ray Rogers, at tackle, and center Todd Schoppe started every game for the Cougs in '83, and they'll be the cornerstones of this year's front five. Michael Wharton, who sat out last year, will start at guard along with Alvin Burns, who earned a regular job near the end of last season. Brian Teykl will man the open tackle spot.

Defensively, the big gaps are at linebacker where the Cougars lose team MVP Eugene Lockhart (a second-team All-SWC pick), as well as starter Sebastian Harris. Bryant Winn and Ronald Hall will fill the gaps, but Hall's size (5-11, 205), or lack of it, concerns UH coaches.

Line losses were minimal--only one starter has graduated--but finding depth is a concern. Simon Fletcher, second in tackles last year, and nose-guard Eddie Gilmore, who was third, form the nucleus of the front five.

Six players who started at some point in 1983 return to the secondary, but the unit, as a whole, must improve its overall play. Orsby Crenshaw, DeWayne Bowden and Audrey McMillan will be the leaders of contingent.

Mike Clendenen and Robert Myers give the Cougs a fine kicking game, and while the offense might be improved, it will take a "Yeoman" effort for Houston to have a winning record in '84.

ILLINOIS Fighting Illini

Everything came up roses for Mike White and the Illini last year but it looks more like thorns this season. The only team to ever defeat all nine Big-10 opponents in the same season has been bludgeoned by graduation, losing seven starters from its defense and five from its offense.

The record-breaking offense (most points, most yards) was led by Jack Trudeau, the latest in a long line (Craig Morton, Jim Plunkett, Mike Boryla, Steve Bartkowski, Vince Ferragamo, Joe Rothm, Rich Campbell, Dave Wilson, Tony Eason) of quarterbacks tutored by White. Trudeau, who completed 63 percent of his aeriels for 18 TDs and received second-team All-Big-10 accolades, returns, but his top three receivers do not. Randy Grant (nine receptions) and Scott Davis (four) are the most experienced hands available.

All-Big-10 tailback Randy Beverly has graduated, but Ray Wilson seems a capable replacement and the Illini still have rugged Thomas Rooks (842 yards, eight TDs) at fullback.

The offensive line, with a pair of first-team All-Conference choices in tackle Jim Juriga and guard Chris Babyar, should be excellent. Brian Ward will take over at one tackle post while Bob Miller returns at center and Rick Schulte is back at guard.

For all his offensive genius, White and the Illini did it with defense last year. Illinois ranked second in the Big-10 in that category, thanks largely to the play of All-Big-10 tacklers Don Thorp and Mark Butkus. Both have graduated, as have both starting ends and all three starting linebackers. Forgive White if he asks "Where's the beef?"

Sam Ellsworth and Ron Bohm

will try and fill the tackle spots with Curtis Clarke and Terry Cole slated for end duty. Cole is coming off an injury.

Of Illinois' top nine linebackers last year, eight were seniors, leaving only Rob Glielmi as a returnee with game experience. Redshirts, freshmen and transfers will have to play a big role here.

All four starters return in the secondary, led by All-Big-10 safety Craig Swoope and second-team All-Big-10 cornerback Mike Heaven. Also back are John Ayres and David Edwards.

All-Big-10 kicker Chris White returns after hitting 13-of-22 field goal attempts and 39-of-40 extra points, but the Illini must find a replacement for punter Chris Sigourney, whose 37.5 net average was third best in the Conference.

With road games against Big-10 stalwarts Michigan, Ohio State and Iowa, Illinois' chances for a repeat trip to Pasadena appear slim. Nevertheless, with Trudeau pulling the trigger and White calling the shots, the Illini figure to go to some bowl at season's end.

Austin's Edges

- Illini are 8-17 overall, vs the points against non-conference teams.
- Fighting Illini are 7-2 as a double digit home conference favorite.
- Illinois has covered 11 of the last 13 games they were a conference dog.

INDIANA Hoosiers

Bill Mallory has built winning programs at Miami (O.), Colorado and Northern Illinois, but knows, at Indiana, it's going to take some time.

"We're going to go very slow," said Mallory, who boasts a 99-52-1 record as a head coach. "We just want to build a foundation. We'll lay a block at a time and hope it comes together quickly."

Mallory can start reconstruction around quarterback Steve Bradley, who, last year, established an IU record for touchdown passes with 14. Bradley, who was fourth in the Conference in total offense, will direct the I-formation option attack that Mallory has installed.

Bradley's main target will be split end Len Kenebrew, who caught 47 balls last year and scored six touchdowns. Duane Gunn, Indiana's all-time reception yardage leader, has graduated from the other side, leaving the job to Terry Smith (five receptions in '83). Little used Chris Cook is the favorite to win the tight end battle.

Indiana's running game, which ranked eighth in the Big-10, must improve. Orlando Brown led the Hoosiers in rushing with just 312 yards last season and Bobby Howard was a close second with 309. Both return at tailback. Fullback will be the domain of soph Jim Caldwell, who rushed just five times last year.

A pair of seniors, center Tom Van Dyck and tackle Kevin Allen, will form the framework of this season's interior front five, an area that needs considerable work. Jeff Lemirande and Mike Anderson are the likely choices at guard while Tim Eckert seems the favorite at the tackle opening. How quickly this group develops will go a long way in determining Indiana's success.

The Hoosiers return nine starters from last year's defensive platoon, but since that unit ranked last in the Big-10, that's not necessarily a plus. Best of that crew is safety Chris Sigler, the team leader in tackles. Sigler will head up a secondary that returns regulars in corners Nate Borders and Jeff McBain. Leonard Bell, a linebacker last year, will become the strong safety, and Tom Hendrickson, a deep back in '83, will be tried at LB.

Joe Fitzgerald and Mark Weiler again will be the linebackers with Dave Zyzda, Steve May, Rob Schmit and Tom Weidenbenner, a converted tight end, the main forces up front.

Chuck Razmic, who set an IU record by averaging 42.2 yards per punt last year, returns, along with regular placekicker Doug Smith.

Mallory has advised caution regarding too much, too soon, and we're ready to take him at his word and not expect a great deal from the Hoosiers this year. But, things will get better in the future.

Feist's Factors

- The home team is 9-2 vs the points in the Indiana-Minnesota matchup.
- Hoosiers are embarrassing 1-4 vs the points on the road against Northwestern.
- Indiana has won seven of the last eight meetings against Purdue (with points).

IOWA Hawkeyes

Chuck Long, who quarterbacked the Hawkeyes to 32 school records last year, returns, along with the entire starting defense that ranked second (vs the score) in the Big-10, all but assuring Head Coach Hayden Fry of his fourth straight bowl trip at Iowa.

While Long is only one of two returning starters to the attack that led the Big-10 and was third nationally, as far as Fry's concerned, he's the right player to have coming back.

"The most important position on a football team is quarterback," explained Fry, "and we are fortunate to have a very good one in Chuck Long."

Joining Long is wide receiver Ronnie Harmon, a game-breaking type who averaged 20.8 yards on 35 catches last year. Harmon, who also averaged 8.4 yards per carry on 22 running attempts, may be tried in the backfield. If so, he'll be matched with Owen Gill, technically not a starter, but the Hawk's leading rusher (798 yards, 6.2 average, 10 TDs), nevertheless.

With Harmon and Gill at running back, look for Robert Smith, the team's fastest player, to team with sure-handed Bill Happel at wide receiver. Smith averaged a staggering 30.0 yards per reception last year. Jonathan Hayes should inherit the tight end spot.

The offensive front line has been swept away, but Fry has reserves Dave Croston, Mark Sindlinger and Mike Haight to go with a quartet of redshirts.

Iowa's defense need not be touched. The Hawkeyes will line up with Tony Wankett and Mike Hooks at end, Paul Hufford and George Little at tackle, and Howard Peterson at nose guard. Hufford was an All-Big-10 selection in '83.

The linebacking corps is just as strong with All-America Larry Station (138 tackles) leading the way. Station's mate is Kevin Spitzig.

Strong safety Mike Stoops, another All-Conference pick, glues together a secondary that also features cornerbacks Keith Hunter and Nate Creer, as well as free safety Devon Mitchell.

In addition to the starting defensive 11, Iowa returns nine second-stringers plus a bunch of redshirts.

"We're comfortable about our defense with all starters and most top reserves returning for at least another year," said Fry. "We had a very fine defense last season. This defense obviously has the potential to be extremely tough."

Tom Nichol, who already holds eight Iowa kicking marks, added punting to his repertoire last year, and will perform both duties this season, as well.

Iowa's defense should be among the nation's best this year while the offense, with Long in control, shouldn't be far behind. It should all add up to a banner year in Iowa City.

Austin's Edges

- Hawkeyes are 1-5 vs the points against Ohio State (since 1937).
- The visiting team has won all five meetings (vs the points) in Iowa-Penn State series.
- Hawks are 6-2 vs the spread against Michigan State the past 11 years.

IOWA STATE Cyclones

Jim Criner's initial season in Ames produced four Big Eight offensive records (and as many victories), four All-Big Eight performers who helped establish those marks, have graduated. The major loss is quarterback David Archer, who hit the bull's-eye for a dozen ISU records in his two years with the Cyclones. The second-team All-Big Eight pick will be replaced by either Alan Hood, last year's backup, or Alex Espinoza, who was the starting QB at Cal State-Fullerton before transferring to ISU last year. Hood is the better runner while Espinoza's forte is passing.

Two-year starter Tommy Davis returns at tailback, but the Cyclones will miss the services of all-league fullback Jason Jacobs. Juco All-America Derrick Sperling will press Davis while another juco product, Bobby Matthews, may wind up at fullback.

The Cyclones lost all five interior starters, including two All-Big Eight players--Bruce Reimers and Chuck Meyers--but ISU's line was plagued by injuries last year, so some of the young players got playing time. There probably won't be a senior anywhere up front.

Without a doubt the man to watch on offense is flanker Tracy Henderson, the nation's third leading receiver last season. Henderson set three Big Eight records last year, including receptions (81) and yardage (1,051). He's only a junior but already has garnered third team All-America recognition and could push for first-team honors this fall. Robbie Minor is a major threat on the other side and David Smoldt is a fine tight end.

Steve Little and Barry Moore give the Cyclones muscle up front, but only one of last year's starting four linebackers--outside man Lester Williams--is back. Jim Luebbers has experience on the other flank, but the two inside posts will go to sophs Dennis Gibson and Randy Richards.

The secondary returns three of four starters--Kevin Williams, Joe Jackson and George Walker--but depth could be a problem.

Marc Bachrodt converted eight-of-11 FG attempts last year and will handle the kicking duties again. Doug Myers was the Cyclone punter last fall, but look for Jim Thompson to push him for the job.

What success Iowa State has, will depend on its offense. Hood and/or Espinoza will have to do the job at QB and get the ball to Henderson. Sperling and Matthews might help the ground game, but breaking in an entire new front line won't make matters any easier. The defense is strongest up front, but the linebackers will be young and inexperienced.

"One day we'll be drinking champagne in this room," Criner told a group of reporters following ISU's season finale last year.

That day won't come this year.

Feist's Factors

- Cyclones are 3-13 vs the number against the "Big Two" (Oklahoma and Nebraska), since 1973.
- Iowa State is only 1-3 vs the points against SWC teams the past 11 years.
- The underdog is 7-3 vs the points in ISU-Kansas matchups.

KANSAS Jayhawks

The Big Eight's top passing attack has been all but wiped out by graduation, leaving second-year Head Coach Mike Gottfried with a massive reconstruction job.

"For the most part, we lost our entire offense so we face a major rebuilding task," he admitted. "Our philosophy of a wide-open type offense will remain the same, but we need rapid maturity from our players."

The biggest concern is at quarterback where the shoes to be filled belong to departed Big Eight career passing kingpin Frank Seurer. The battle for the starting job is between soph Mike Orth and jc transfer Mike Norseth. Orth played sparingly last year while Norseth was excelling on the juco circuit.

Richard Estell, who averaged 17.6 yards per reception in a reserve role last year (22 catches) should be the main target of either Orth or Norseth. Sandy McGee (20 grabs) and tight end Sylvester Byrd (nine) should complete the starting receivers' corps, but Kansas surely will miss record-setting Bobby Johnson's 1,154 yards.

What there is a of a running game--Kansas ranked seventh in the Big Eight last year in rushing--belongs to Robert Mimbs, who averaged 4.8 yards per tote last fall. Charles Cooper, who spent much of last year in the defensive interior, returns to his original fullback position.

The bad news continues up front with only pivot Bennie Simecka back from last year's starting front five.

Seven starters return on defense, including linebackers Willie Pless and Darnell Williams, the two best young LBs in the Conference. Pless led the Big Eight in total tackles (190) and earned All-Conference laurels last year while Williams was second in stops (152) and gained honorable mention status.

End Len Gant, guards Eldridge Avery and Rod Timmons, and tackle Joe Masaniai return to a Kansas six-man line that allowed 5.1 yards per rush last year, worst in the Conference. A trio of juco transfers lend depth to the unit.

Only Derek Berry returns to the Jayhawk secondary, but Kansas could be much improved here with as many as four juco transfers and two redshirts moving into the cast of characters.

For the first time in this decade, somebody besides All-America Bruce Kallmeyer will handle the placement chores for Kansas. Most likely candidate is Dodge Schwartzburg, who nailed a 51-yarder in a jayvee game last season.

Kansas' schedule gets rougher this year, too, Florida State, North Carolina and Vanderbilt replacing Northern Illinois, TCU and USC.

The Jayhawks will have a tough time of it trying to escape the Big Eight basement.

Austin's Edges

- The Jayhawks are 9-4 as an away underdog vs non-conference teams since '73.
- Kansas is 12-3 when the spread is between 7 and 9½ points (plus or minus).
- Jayhawks are only 2-8 vs the points against Nebraska, since '73.

No longer in the Big Eight race, Missouri and Kansas still look to finish the season, good ones for both, on a strong note. Missouri started out blazing but then stumbled some once conference play began. The Tiger coach, Warren Powers, has to be pleased with this year's inexperienced bunch which is led by a stellar defensive squad and quarterback Mike Hyde on offense.

KANSAS STATE Wildcats

Experience, plus the emergence of Stan Weber at quarterback, will be Kansas State's main assets this fall as the Wildcats seek to rebound from last year's lackluster 3-8 campaign. K-State returns 16 starters, the most in the Big Eight, with Weber being the most important. Weber didn't make his first starting assignment until mid-season (against Nebraska), but once he had the job, he proved he knew what to do with it. The senior signal-caller improved the Cats' scoring average from 13.1 to 23.5; rushing yardage from 154 to 268; total yardage from 268 to 379; and third down efficiency from 25 percent to 64 percent. Head Coach Jim Dickey knows he has the makings of a good aerial attack.

"We feel like we have the personnel to utilize our passing game more and we're going to do it," he said.

On the receiving end of those Weber passes will be Mike Wallace, one of the Conference's best, James Witherspoon, one of the Conference's smallest (5-7, 134), and Eric Bailey, one of the Conference's steadiest.

Nine of KSU's top 10 rushers from '83 return, including Greg Dageforde, who led the team with 677 yards, sixth best in the Big Eight. There's quality depth, too, in Tony Jordan, a freshman redshirt with 4.3 speed who could make a "speedy" impression on the KSU coaches. Juco transfer John Kendrick was the second leading rusher in the nation a year ago while fullback Charles Crawford is a tenacious blocker.

On the line, K-State is looking for just one replacement—last year it was looking for four. Damien Johnson, a second-team All-Big Eight pick, is the best of the bunch.

Pass defense and a head-hunting linebacker take precedence in Dickey's defensive schemes. The Cats are strong up front and boast a potential superstar in tackle Les Miller, the Big Eight's Defensive Newcomer-of-the-Year last season. Also on hand is Curtis Hughes, another man-eating sophomore.

Bob Daniels and Jeff Hurd are adequate linebackers when it comes to stopping the run, but each needs to work on his pass defense... and, Dickey is still looking for an LB who likes to knock heads.

The secondary returns three of four regulars from a year ago, including free safety David Ast, who earned second-team All-Big Eight status, but he must prove he's fully recovered from a last-game knee injury.

Steve Willis, the school record-holder in every placement category, is back, along with Scott Fulhage, who ranked second in the Big Eight in punting last year, so K-State's kicking game should be excellent.

The Wildcats can't help but be better this year.

KENTUCKY Wildcats

From winless (0-10-1) in 1982 to a bowl game (Hall of Fame) in 1983, Jerry Claiborne has revitalized the Kentucky football program in next to no time, and the Cats are likely to be winners again in 1984.

Claiborne, who also molded successful teams at Maryland and Virginia Tech, shared SEC Coach of the Year honors last season, in recognition of Kentucky's accomplishments.

There are some holes to be filled this season, but the foundation seems to be in place. Offensively, the Wildcats need some proven plow horses up front, but the thoroughbreds are there. George Adams, the team leader in rushing and scoring, returns at tailback, along with fullback Curt Cochran. Oliver White, who led the Cats in receiving last year also returns, he at tight end. The wideouts are Joe Phillips and Eric Pitts. Another man to watch is Tony Mayes, the nation's fifth ranked kickoff returner last year.

Claiborne will hand the ball over to soph Bill Ransdell, the heir-apparent to Randy Jenkins at quarterback. Ransdell appeared in seven games last season, plus the Hall of Fame Bowl, hitting 58 percent of his aeriels. Kentucky coaches are convinced Ransdell can do the job.

The problem area on offense is the front line. Bob Shurtleff is the lone returnee so Claiborne will have to go with some mixture of juco transfers, redshirts, reserves and freshmen. Conrad Carney is a prime prospect from the junior college ranks.

On defense, it is the linebacking corps that has been hit hard by graduation. Only D.J. Wallace has any playing time thre, and it was limited.

There's better news up front where all-star candidate Jeff Smith heads up a veteran cast. Smith, who led the team in sacks, will start at tackle. Cam Jacobs will be the other tackle with Brian Williams and Stacey Burrell at the ends. David Thompson is a guard in Claiborne's 6-2-3 alignment.

The Wildcat secondary, which allowed only five TD lobs last year, will be built around Gordon Jackson, Barry Alexander, Carmichael Caldwell and Russell Hairston. Kerry Baird, the Cats' best defender, has graduated.

All-SEC punter Paul Calhoun, along with Mayes, strengthens Kentucky's special teams, but the Wildcats need a placekicker to complete the picture. Frosh redshirt Steve Wroble and junior Kevin Nelson are the leading candidates there.

The Wildcats have a favorable schedule with seven home dates, including five straight near the end of the season. Additionally, the non-league slate is very soft. Kentucky should be a marginal winner.

Austin's Edges

- Wildcats are 1-4 vs the points against Indiana, but 5-0 vs the number against Tulane.
- Kentucky is 13-24 vs the points outside the SEC Conference the past 11 years.
- The Cats are 8-3 vs the points against Vanderbilt.

LSU Tigers

Bill Arnsparger earned his stripes as Don Shula's defensive coordinator with the Miami Dolphins, but it'll probably be LSU's offense that gets the most ink during Arnsparger's first season in Baton Rouge.

LSU was second in the SEC in passing stats last year, and the numbers can only get better. Jeff Wickersham, the first LSU signal-caller to toss for over 2,000 yards in a single season, is back for his junior campaign. Wickersham set three season and four game marks for the Tigers last year. He'll be looking for All-America split end Eric Martin, whose 52 receptions and 1,064 yards (20.5 average) rewrote the LSU record books last season. Also back are tight end Mitch Andrews (26 for 337 yards) and flanker Herman Fontenot (22 for 330).

LSU's rushing average dropped from 229 yards per game in 1982 to just 143 yards per game last year as star tailbacks Dalton Hilliard and Gary James both had sub-par seasons. Hilliard, who gained 901 yards as a frosh and 747 last year, was bothered by injuries, but could be up to his old tricks in '84.

Paving the way up front is Play-boy All-America tackle Lance Smith and guards Kevin Langford, picked as the team's outstanding lineman, and Jeff Fordham. John Harrell and Ray Brock should complete the starting quintet.

The Tigers return eight defensive starters, including their top five tacklers. Linebackers Shawn Burks and Ricky Chatman head the group, along with nose guard Roland Barbay and safeties Liffort Hobley and Jeffery Dale. Hobley was a second-team All-SEC selection last year. Other returning starters are Gregg Dubroc at outside linebacker and tackles Eric Kittok and Clarence Osborne.

Juan Betanzos (14-18 FG, 25-26 PAT) is back for the placement work, while Clay Parker (39.9) does the punting.

"I think we have a lot of returning talent to work with," assessed Arnsparger, "but I also think this same talent needs to return to work."

LSU's schedule is formidable. The Tigers' non-league slate includes contests with Notre Dame, USC, Arizona, and state rival Tulane. Only Indiana State can be considered a "gimme." The SEC log has the Bengals on the road vs three 1983 bowl teams--Alabama, Florida and Kentucky--plus a trip to Mississippi State. Vanderbilt and Mississippi visit Tiger Stadium.

The Tigers should be much better this year than last, especially if the running game returns to snuff and Arnsparger has an anticipated positive effect on the defense. But the schedule is so tough that just having a winning record would be an accomplishment.

Feist's Factors

- The Tigers are 5-10 as an away underdog in SEC competition (since '73).
- Bengals are 7-14 vs the points against major independents.
- LSU is 4-1 vs the points against Pac-10 teams the past 11 years.

MARYLAND Terrapins

Bobby Ross begins his third season in College Park with fewer starters and a tougher schedule than any other team in the ACC. Only nine regulars return from last year's Florida-Citrus Bowl club to face a slate that includes the last three National Champions (Miami-'83, Penn State-'82, Clemson-'81), so Ross, never one to shy away from a challenge, has his work cut out for him.

The Terrapins must face their '84 opponents without Boomer Esiason, the first quarterback chosen in the draft this year. Ross' multiple pro attack will take a long look at Ken Vierra, a transfer from Utah, as well as juniors Stan Gelbaugh and Barry Waseleski, and freshman Dan Henning, the son of the Atlanta Falcons' head coach.

Maryland may emphasize the ground game more in '84, especially with fullback Rick Badanjek returning for another season. Badanjek ran for 635 yards last year and was named to The Football News Sophomore All-America team. Alvin Blount is a good possibility for Badanjek's running mate. Bill Rogers provides the Terps with a steady tight end, but the receiver to watch is Greg Hill, who already holds the Maryland career record for touchdown receptions with 14. Greg Harraka and Kevin Glover return to an offensive interior which will miss All-America guard Ron Solt, a first round selection of the Colts.

Maryland's best offensive weapon may well be the toe of placekicker Jess Atkinson, the Terps' all-time scoring leader. Atkinson has an ACC record 79 consecutive PATs and has made good on 43-of-62 career field goal attempts.

Pete Koch, the All-America

tackle, is the main casualty from a defense that returns only four starters from last season's stingy crew. One of them is linebacker Eric Wilson, Maryland's leading tackler in '83 with 180 stops. Wilson will team up with Bobby DePaul in Maryland's wide tackle six alignment. Tom Parker, Greg Thompson and Tom McHale are candidates at defensive guard, with Scott Tyle the only monogram winner at defensive tackle. Kevin Donas and Scott Schankweiler are the only letter winners at outside linebacker. Gil Hoffman, who started in the secondary in 1982, likely will win a position this season, too. Joe Kraus will start at safety with the other regular coming from a list that includes Al Covington, Bob Gunderman and Steve Burdelski. Punter Alan Sadler returns to help Atkinson with the kicking responsibilities.

Ross has done an amazing job since coming to the Terps, landing them in back-to-back bowls while winning 16-of-24 games. It will be equally as amazing if Ross can do as much for this club. Maryland has just lost too much.

Austin's Edges

- Terps are 18-7 as a conference home favorite since 1973.
- The visitor is 6-1 vs the points in the Maryland-West Virginia series.
- Terrapins are 12-3 vs the spread on the road against ACC teams they play on the road this year.

MIAMI Hurricanes

Although 13 starters return to the team that defeated Nebraska in the Orange Bowl to win the National Championship last season, prospects are dim for the Hurricanes holding onto the title. The concern is not a lack of offensive firepower or defensive strength, but rather, a schedule that may well be the nation's most challenging. In all, eight bowl teams are on the slate, and while Miami will get the likes of Florida State, Pittsburgh, Maryland and Boston College at home, neutral offerings with Auburn and Florida, to say nothing of road trips to Michigan and Notre Dame, spell doom for Howard Schnellenberger's chances for back-to-back championships.

Nevertheless, the Hurricanes will have an outstanding team, one which is certainly top 10 material.

The Miami offense, which is similar to many complex pro passing attacks, returns eight regulars from the platoon that established a school record for points last year. The unit is led by Bernie Kosar, the cool-as-a-cucumber quarterback who played anything but like the freshman he actually was last year. Kosar set school records for completions and touchdowns last fall, and established an Orange Bowl passing yardage mark (300 on 19-of-35), as well. Kosar will be looking for wideouts Ed Brown (21.3 yards per catch and six grabs in the Orange Bowl), and Stanley Shakespeare with Chris Hembrough the new tight end. A pair of sophomores--Alonzo Highsmith and Darryl Oliver--will take over the running chores from Speedy Neal and Keith Griffin. The offensive line returns all five starters with tackles Paul Bertucelli and Dave Heffernan, guards

Alvin Ward and Juan Comendiro, and center Ian Sinclair.

Defensively, the Hurricanes have some work to do if they're going to match last year's unit which allowed just 9.6 points per contest, third best total in the nation.

Kevin Fagan and Julio Cortes are the holdovers up front, and they'll get help from Joe Kohlbrand, Darin McMurray and Dallas Cameron. Vic Morris is the most experienced linebacker and he's just a sophomore, so this looms as a potential trouble spot for the Canes. Kenny Calhoun, who saved Miami's win over Nebraska by deflecting the Huskers' try for a two-point conversion, heads a secondary which also includes Reggie Sutton, Doug McFadden and Willie Martinez. Bennie Blades, a highly regarded recruit, also figures back here.

The Hurricanes will move the football and Schnellenberger teams always are tough on defense, but that schedule will be just too much. Miami is top 20 material, maybe even top 10, but there'll be no repeat championships. Nine victories would be a marvelous accomplishment.

Feist's Factors

- The Hurricanes are 8-3 in opening week board games vs the spread since 1973.
- The favorite is 9-2 vs the spread in Miami-Notre Dame matchups since '73.
- Miami is 19-8 vs the points in regular season games the past three years.

MICHIGAN Wolverines

Michigan has not won fewer than eight games in any of Bo Schembechler's 15 seasons in Ann Arbor and that accomplishment seems safe for 1984, as well. Schembechler, who has won 140 games and lost just 31 (.813 win percentage) at Michigan, has 15 starters back from last season's 9-3 outfit that dropped a 9-7 decision to Auburn in the Sugar Bowl.

The Wolverines' offensive platoon will be led by a bevy of running backs and a corps of fleet and sure-handed receivers. Rick Rogers returns to lead the troops at tailback after rushing for 1,002 yards and nine TDs last year.

The receiving crew is paced by tight end Sim Nelson, whose 41 receptions topped the club last fall. Vince Bean (29 receptions), runs precise routes from one wideout post while Triando Markray brings sprinter's speed (29.0 yards per catch average) to the other side.

The offensive line has been hit hard by graduation, losing All-Americans Tom Dixon at center and Stefan Humphries at guard, as well as starting guard Jerry Diorio, but Schembechler recruited a couple of fine prospects in David Chester and Michael Dames to go with incumbents Clay Miller and Doug James. Art Balourdos and Andy Borowski offer further depth.

With three-year starting quarterback Steve Smith having graduated, along with his backup, David Hall, the signal-caller's job will go to Jim Harbaugh, a little-used junior reserve. Harbaugh got in four games last year, completing two-of-five aials.

Eight starters are back on defense, including All-Big-10 middle guard Al Sincich, beginning his fourth season as a starter. Sincich is flanked by Kevin Brooks and Vince DeFelice, regulars from a year ago.

Inside linebacker Mike Mallory led the team in tackles after taking over for the injured Mike Boren, and he's back, along with inside mates Tim Anderson and Mike Reinhold. Rodney Lyles is a starter on the outside. His partner will be either Jeff Akers or Jim Scarcelli.

Brad Cochran, second to Mallory in tackles and the team leader in interceptions (five) heads the secondary, along with returning starter Tony Gant. Garland Rivers and Dieter Heren also have won letters in the secondary.

Bob Bergeron, the All-Big-10 placekicker, returns while Monte Robins is the leading candidate to take over the punting responsibilities.

Michigan's defense will carry the club until Harbaugh finds his niche at quarterback. The Wolverines, who have played before 53 straight crowds of better than 100,000 spectators at Michigan Stadium, have seven home games this year. It could again come down to the Ohio State game.

Austin's Edges

- The Wolverines are 46-28 as a Big 10 favorite since 1973.
- Michigan is 7-2 as an underdog the last 11 seasons.
- The home team is 0-6 vs the points in the Michigan-Iowa series.

MICHIGAN STATE Spartans

Michigan State was off and winging (2-0) until Dave Yarema injured his shoulder, last year, but now the signal caller is back, and so, believes Head Coach George Perles, are the Spartans.

"We started building what we considered a solid foundation last spring," said Perles, entering his second year in East Lansing. "Now we are ready to put the second stone into place and we fully expect to maintain a steady rate of improvement."

Yarema's return will help. With him at the controls, Michigan State was able to defeat Notre Dame and Colorado as Yarema completed 33 of 52 passes (.635) for 383 yards and three TDs. He's completely healthy and ready to step back into action.

Another offensive change will have the Spartans abandoning the single-back set-up in favor of the more conventional twin-back alignment. In this formation, Carl Butler (549 yards) and Keith Gates (542) should continue to share time at fullback with Bobby Morse at tailback. This three-some also combined for 46 pass receptions coming out of the backfield.

Daryl Turner, who led the Spartans with 28 receptions last fall, has graduated, leaving tight end Butch Rolle (16 receptions) and flanker John Hurt (five) as the primary pass-catchers.

Graduation hit hardest on the offensive line, claiming starting tackles Scott Auer and Jim Bob Lamb, as well as guard Randy Lark. That leaves center Mark Napolitan and guard Pat Shurmur as the only returning starters up front.

The Spartans were third in the Big-10 last year in total defense, and eight starters are back from that platoon. However, the leader of the stop troops, All-America (and three-time All-Big-10) linebacker Carl Banks, has graduated. Still, MSU has a fine backer in James Morrissey, the team leader in tackles last year. Also returning is first-team All-Conference free safety Phil Parker, who had seven interceptions in 1983. Other returning starters are tackles Dave Wolff and Jim Rinella, ends Kelly Quinn and Tom Allan, linebacker Derek Bunch, and cornerback Lonnie Young.

"The defense should get better," insisted Perles, "having lost just five lettermen from our stunt 4-3 system."

Ralf Mojsiejenko returns to handle all the placement and punting chores for the Spartans. The All-America booter connected on 11-of-17 field goal tries last year and punted 74 times for a 43.9-yard average.

It'll be tough for Michigan State to make progress in a league that is so top heavy with powerful clubs. That's not to say that the Spartans won't be improved, only that their record might not be.

Feist's Factors

- The home team is 1-9 vs the points in the MSU-Illinois rivalry.
- The Spartans are 4-10 as an in-conference home underdog (since '73).
- Michigan St. is 8-11 vs the points against Minnesota the past 11 years.

MINNESOTA Gophers

Lou Holtz's resume doesn't list his quick wit, sense of humor and one-liners along with his coaching achievements, but those qualities could be quite an asset for Holtz in Minnesota, this year. The former Arkansas, North Carolina State, William & Mary and New York Jets head coach inherits a team that has won just one Big-10 game in the past two years while losing 18 of its last 19 contests, overall.

"You either get better or worse," said Holtz. "You never stay the same."

It would be difficult for the Gophers to be worse. Last year's team lost 10 straight after winning its opener and finished eighth in the Big-10 in scoring and last in the Conference in defense.

Among the many changes Holtz has made is the switch from the pro set to the option I-formation on offense. Brett Sadek, who completed 60-of-130 passing attempts as a freshman last season, is the favorite to run the attack. His favorite target should be wideouts Dwayne McMullen and Lungen Howard. McMullen caught 28 balls last year while Howard snared 21. David Puk, last year's leading ground gainer, will be switched to tight end in an effort to shore up that graduation-riddled spot.

Puk's departure to TE will leave the running chores to Valdez Baylor and Tony Hunter. Baylor ran for 229 yards and Hunter added 194 in an attack that averaged only 2.5 yards per rush in '83.

The offensive line, which must share responsibility for Minnesota's lackluster production, will be built around redshirt tackle Mark Vonderhaar, plus guards Jon Lilleberg and Jeff Moritko, and tackle Jim Hob-bins. The center position is wide open.

Shoring up Minnesota's atrocious defense is even more of a task than repairing the offense. The Gophers gave up 518 points (47 per game average) last year. Minnesota was particularly vulnerable to the run, surrendering an average of 5.2 yards per attempt.

Holtz's best player on defense probably is linebacker Peter Najarian, the team leader in tackles with 118 last year. Joe Christopherson, another linebacker, finished third in stops. In between them was cornerback Kerry Glenn.

One problem is size. Among Holtz's eight letter winning candidates for the five front line positions, only three weigh as much as 250 pounds.

Jim Gallery, Minnesota's kicking specialist the past four years, has graduated, as has regular punter Paul Blanchard, so Holtz has two more holes to fill.

Minnesota will be hard-pressed to show any improvement this year. It will be interesting to see if Holtz's good humor survives the season.

Austin's Edges

- Gophers are 9-21 as an away underdog, since 1973.
- Minnesota is 1-10 vs the points against Wisconsin the past 11 years.
- The home team has covered all 10 spread decisions in the Minnesota-Ohio State rivalry.

MISSISSIPPI

Rebels

Even Billy Brewer was surprised by Mississippi's six-win, SEC third-place finish last year, but the second-year head coach knows that maintaining that success will be even more of an achievement this season.

"We thought, hopefully, that this (success) was going to happen in three years," Brewer said. "As fate would have it, we progressed much faster. Not only did it probably surprise our opponents, it also surprised us."

Unlike 1983 when the defense was fairly well established and the offense needed work, the reverse is true this season. Ole Miss returns eight attack personnel, but only five starting defenders.

The area hardest hit on defense was linebacker where graduation not only claimed both of last year's starters, but their backups, as well. To compensate, Brewer has switched offensive linemen Dan Boyce and Joe Brewer to LB, to compete with frosh Quinnis "Fuzzy" Huddleston, soph Ricky Lindstrom, and Texas A&M transfer Reed Killion.

The defensive line, where All-SEC end Freddie Nunn operates, could be a plus. Nunn rejoins regulars Bob Blakemore and Terry Williamson, with Dwight Bingham and Marcus Green expected to contribute, as well.

The secondary, with cornerbacks Eric Truitt and Lee Davis, free safety Barry Wilburn and strong safety Johnny Armstrong, should be the deepest and most experienced area of Brewer's "50" defense.

Offensively, only three regulars must be replaced, but in losing quarterback Kelly Powell and running back Buford McGee, Brewer also has lost most of his offensive punch. Powell did not win the starting QB job until late in the season, but helped the Rebs win four straight down the stretch. All McGee did was lead the team in rushing, receiving and scoring.

Powell's replacement will be Kent Austin, the man Powell unseated last year. Austin threw for 1,077 yards and five TDs last year, but had 15 throws intercepted, too. McGee's tailback spot will go to Nathan Wonsley while Arthur Humphrey returns to play fullback.

The receiving crew returns intact, led by wideouts Timmy Moffett (35 receptions, three TDs) and Jamie Holder (25, two). Michael Smith is the incumbent at tight end. Another plus for the Ole Miss receiving crew is the return from injury of James "Pearl" Harbour, a big-play artist and all-star candidate who had 35 catches in 1982.

Bobby Clark, Greg Walker and Eric Sheehan are mainstays on an adequate line, and the kicking game is set with Bill Smith and Neil Teevan.

Ole Miss isn't bad, but it'll take quite an effort from all concerned for the Rebels to match last year's success this season.

Feist's Factors

- Ole Miss is 13-23 as an away conference underdog (since 1973).
- The Rebs are only 3-7 as an away favorite (all games).
- The Rebels are just 2-6 vs the points against Memphis St., who they play in this year's opener.

MISSISSIPPI STATE Bulldogs

The graduation of do-everything quarterback John Bond, plus the absence of an experienced defense could keep the Bulldogs leashed in the SEC cellar this year. Bond, who started 44 straight games for Mississippi State, leaves with nearly 7,000 career yards. He was the team's leading rusher and passer in 1983 and also scored 13 touchdowns to rank as State's top scorer. In Bond's wake are three sophomores--Don Smith, Mike King and Orlando Lundie. Smith and King threw eight passes, between them, last season and Lundie none at all.

The ground game is in the same fix. Not only is Bond gone, but the next three rushers, as well. Kenny Rogers--not the one that sings--and Mikel Williams are the only ball-carriers with experience. Rogers carried 10 times last year and Williams not at all.

Leading receiver Danny Knight is now a New Jersey General, but Corwyn Aldredge returns on the other side. Also returning are linemen Frank Harbin and Kevin Walker. Alvin Robinson will fill a tackle vacancy with Danny Sanders, Rusty Brown and Paul Young looking for playing time at the other openings. Head Coach Emory Ballard, who is credited with having developed the wishbone offense, will have to do a lot of wishing (and hoping) for this offense to click. The Bulldogs are painfully inexperienced and lacking in proven offensive firepower.

Defensively, the picture is much the same. Graduation claimed eight regulars, leaving tackles Pat Swoopes and Elvis Butler and strong safety Tom Nichols to hold the fort. Don't count on it. Maury Hull and Eric Mell, backups a year ago, should be promoted into starting roles at end with Ermon Green, Derrick Richardson and Leon Cannon the new candidates at linebacker. Sure to be missed will be three-time All-SEC performer Billy Jackson, who ended his career at middle linebacker after three years at defensive end. Another who'll be missed is Calvin Zanders, the Dogs' leading tackler in '83. Along with Nichols, the Mississippi State secondary will go with a combination formed from Bennie Thomas, Brent Parker, Dan Hogan, and R. J. McKenna.

Artie Cosby, who was successful on 11 of his final 13 FG attempts (12-16 overall), returns for the placement chores, but Ballard must find a replacement for punter Tim Cutts, whose 41.4-yard average ranked fourth in the SEC.

Mississippi State gets a small break from the schedule-maker, dropping National Champion Miami and Cotton Bowl winner Georgia in favor of Holiday Bowl participant Missouri and Hall of Fame Bowl entrant Kentucky. But that won't be nearly enough help for an MSU team that has many problems and few solutions.

Austin's Edges

- Mississippi State has only covered 1-of-the-last-7 spread decisions in games following Florida since '73.
- Dogs are 5-10 as home favorite vs non-conference foes the past 11 seasons.
- Bulldogs are 7-4 vs the points as an underdog when playing at Jackson.

MISSOURI Tigers

Inconsistency again will be Missouri's main foe this year as Head Coach Warren Powers seeks his sixth bowl outfit in seven seasons in Columbia. The Tigers were their usual up-and-down selves in '83, blanking Oklahoma and pinning the only regular season defeat on Illinois while also inexplicably losing to both Kansas and East Carolina.

"We need to evaluate both our offense and defense, and experiment with some new ideas," admits Powers. "We have to refine and improve the areas where we think we can be more successful, and since the information was just put in last year, there's a lot to be done."

One player who sees eye-to-eye with the I is quarterback Marlon Adler, an Honorable Mention All-Big Eight pick last year who may have been the best all-around QB in the league. Adler was seventh nationally in passing efficiency and had a hand in 23 of the Tigers' 35 touchdowns last year.

Along with Adler, the Tigers are well stocked at the skill positions with a bunch of fine, young runners and several talented receivers. Eric Drain, the Holiday Bowl MVP, earned HM notice at fullback while George Shorthouse received similar recognition at flanker. Jon Redd (5.9 yards per carry) and Vernon Boyd (5.4) share the tailback chores while Andy Hill provides Adler with another deep threat at split end.

Despite losing both starting tackles and guards, Missouri's offensive line could be powerful. Center Phil Greenfield (like Adler a walkon), spearheads the unit while 280-pound junior tackles John Clay and Dave Knipdash are touted as future standouts.

Missouri's defense, which not only shut out Oklahoma and stifled (18 points) Illinois, also "held" Nebraska to 34 points, 16 below their season's average. Seven starters return, led by linebacker Tracey Mack, a former running back. Mack is recovering from disc surgery so Powers and his staff have been looking at some fresh faces, including Cameron Riley, another converted running back. There's nothing new up front, though, as Mizzou welcomes back the first and second entries from last year's tackle-to-tackle alignment. Lenson Samples is a quality end, and the secondary is experienced with Jerome Carver, Jeff Hooper and Terry Matichak all back for their senior fling.

Adler will continue to do the punting with Brad Burditt (11-15 FGs) back to handle the placements.

Mississippi State and Notre Dame replace Utah State and East Carolina on the Tigers' schedule, and there are trips to Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, as well. Missouri will have to struggle to maintain its winning ways.

Feist's Factors

- Missouri is only 3-8 vs the points in home openers the past 11 years.
- The Tigers are 8-4 as a Big-8 home underdog since 1973.
- The home team is 9-1 vs the spread in Mizzou-Oklahoma series.

NAVY Midshipmen

While the Middies return 13 starters, including All-America running back Napoleon McCallum, from last year's disappointing 3-8 team, Gary Tranquill's third season in Annapolis figures to be anything but tranquil.

"We will be looking at a host of people, especially those from our sophomore class, in an attempt to get them into the right positions," said Tranquill. "We think we are solid in a number of areas, especially in the offensive line, at running back and in the secondary. We are anxious to get more production from our passing game and a priority will be to find help for the defensive line."

First the good news. McCallum, the nation's leading all-purpose runner, third leading rusher, and already the holder of 16 Academy records, returns. And, making Napoleon's march a bit easier will be a veteran offensive line, led by guard Doug Rhodes, Mark Long, Rich Coombs and Gregg Sears. The only vacancy is at one tackle spot where Bob Dill appears ready to step in. Mark Alexander, a good short yardage runner, will join McCallum in the backfield. It's the passing game that needs work. Ricky Williamson is the incumbent at quarterback, and fine receivers, like tight end Mark Stevens (41 receptions), and regulars Chris Weiler and Ken Heine, at the wideouts, are back, but the Middies' aerial game was inconsistent last year. If that phase of the attack clicks, Navy should be able to better its offensive output over a year ago.

Tranquill's real concern is with a defense that loses its best player--linebacker Andy Ponseigo--and is suspect against the run. Even with two-time All-America Ponseigo, and middle guard George Herlong, the Middies were victimized by the run last year. Now, both are gone. Newcomers will join a pair of Eric's, Rutherford and Fudge, in forming Navy's new front seven. Another Eric, Eric Wallace, heads up a very secure secondary. Wallace earned All-East recognition last year on the strength of five interceptions from his cornerback slot. Steve Brady, who also swiped a quintet of aials last fall, returns for his junior campaign. Vince McBeth and Joe Papetti complete the starting secondary.

Mark Colby returns as the regular punter (38.0 avg.) while Todd Solomon, a letterman two years ago, will handle the placekicking chores.

The Navy schedule, with only four home dates, and trips to North Carolina, Arkansas and Syracuse, is anything but easy, so while the Middies figure to be improved, their record might not be. Tranquill's troops could win a couple more games than last year, but a winning season appears nearly impossible.

Austin's Edges

- The Middies are 10-5 vs the points against ACC competition, since 1973.
- Navy is 2-7 vs the points against Notre Dame the past 11 years.
- Midshipmen are only 4-9 as home favorite.

NEBRASKA Cornhuskers

The Cornhuskers' record 654 points were two less than they needed last year (that 31-30 loss to Miami in the Orange Bowl cost them the National Championship), but Head Coach Tom Osborne will have to rely more on his defense this season if Nebraska is to have another shot at the crown in '84.

"We feel that the defense may have to be the strong point of our team this year," admitted Osborne, looking at a platoon that returns nine starters, compared to just three on the offensive side of the ball.

And, while the Huskers were not known for their defense last year, it was, nonetheless, quite efficient. Led by linebacker Mike Knox--an All-Big Eight selection--Nebraska yielded just 16.7 points per contest in '83. A like-wise, or better, effort is needed in '84. In addition to Knox, the Huskers will look to All-Big Eight safety Bret Clark, the leader of a solid secondary. Scott Strasburger, Bill Weber and Rob Stuckey use brains--all three are academic All-Conference picks--as well as brawn up front.

Craig Sunberg, untried but highly regarded, is the heir-apparent to take over the signal-calling chores from Gill, while Jeff Smith, an almost-hero in the Orange Bowl, seems capable of easing--though not eliminating--the loss of Rozier. Smith, who gained 99 yards in the Orange Bowl, chipped in with 439 regular season yards and a 5.6 average. His star likely will shine even more brightly in '84. Scott Kimball is the only returning receiver who has starting experience, but the line, with All-Big Eight center Mark Traynowicz, guard Harry Grimmer and robust (6-8, 290) tackle Mark Behning, appears up to Nebraska's usual high standards.

Scott Livingston, who, because of the excellence of the Husker attack, had only 34 chances last year, again will be the punter. Livingston could also handle the placements, or the duty could fall to either Dan Wingard or Dave Schneider.

Aiding the Cornhusker cause is a schedule that begins with two easy home games--Wyoming and Minnesota. Nebraska took the measure of the Cowboys, 56-20, last year, and clobbered the Gophers, 84-13. Additionally, games with anticipated Conference toughies like Oklahoma, Missouri and Oklahoma State, all are slated for Lincoln, this fall.

The Cornhuskers won't be nearly as good as they were last year, but thanks to a favorable schedule, Nebraska's record might be.

Feist's Factors

- Huskers are 7-0 vs the points against Colorado when the line is less than 28.
- Nebraska is 12-5 as an away favorite of less than 10 points since 1973.
- Cornhuskers are 8-4 vs the points against Big 10 competition.

NORTH CAROLINA Tar Heels

The Tar Heels will be painfully young this year, especially on defense, and it's something that has Head Coach Dick Crum more than a little concerned.

"I think we have good young people on defense," said Crum. "We just don't have a lot of experience and I can't emphasize enough how important that is on defense. If an inexperienced player makes a mistake on offense, it might cost you a couple of yards. On defense, it can cost you six points."

Crum must replace two-time All-America tackle William Fuller, two-time All-ACC safety Willie Harris, and leading tackler, Bill Sheppard, a line-backer. The reconstruction will begin around linebacker Micah Moon, North Carolina's defensive MVP in the Peach Bowl. Moon missed spring practice with a wrist injury, but will be fully recovered by fall. With Moon, and any of four players, inside, the attention moves to outside backer where only Ron Burton has ever been in a college game.

It's a similar situation up front where Brian Johnston is the only returning regular and Dennis Barron, a backup nose guard a year ago, is the only other lineman with any experience.

Larry James and Steve Hendrickson return in the secondary, and the other two spots will be decided among Walter Bailey, Tim Morrison and Barry James.

North Carolina returns seven regulars on offense, but the key quarterback post will have an inexperienced starter now that Scott Stankavage has used up his eligibility. The new man is Kevin Anthony, a backup last year who threw only 14 passes.

Even though Tryone Anthony (1,063 yards) has graduated, the Tar Heel running back situation looks bright. Ethan Horton, who shared time with Anthony, wound up leading the ACC in rushing with 1,107 yards. Imagine how many yards he'll gain not having to share this season. Eddie Colson, a good blocker who picked up 424 yards himself, again will be the fullback in UNC's power I-formation.

The Heels may miss wide receiver Mark Smith (40 receptions last year), but Earl Winfield (16) and Larry Griffin (16) could ease that loss. And, at tight end, North Carolina has an excellent duo in Arnold Franklin (25) and Dave Truitt (18).

The Tar Heels led the ACC and were seventh nationally in total offense, and the play of the line was instrumental in those rankings. All-America tackle Brian Blados is gone, but North Carolina has the makings of another good group with Harris Barton, Greg Naron, C.A. Brooks, Pat Sheehan and Bobby Pope.

Despite the inexperience, North Carolina has enough muscle to again be one of the nation's top 20 teams.

Austin's Edges

- The Tarheels have covered five straight openers.
- UNC is a solid 7-1 as an underdog against independents.
- North Carolina is 0-3 vs the spread against teams from the Big 8.

N. C. STATE Wolfpack

Second-year Head Coach Tom Reed hopes an improved offense will edge State closer to a winning season, but defensive deficiencies may slow the Pack's progress.

"We should be improved offensively if we can find a solid replacement for Greg Steele at guard," said Reed. "The line will have increased experience, and Tim Esposito will be better at quarterback after a year under his belt. The backfield, with Joe McIntosh, has a lot of potential, and we have some good receivers. Our big problem appears to be on defense. With Vaughan Johnson and Andy Hendel gone from the middle, I don't know how we'll do."

Two-time letterman Bill Moxley will take over at guard for Steele, but most of the attention will be focused on Esposito and McIntosh, the heart of State's attack. Esposito set six individual passing marks in Raleigh last year, hitting 59 percent of his aeriels for 2,096 yards and eight touchdowns. McIntosh, who gained 1,081 yards rushing last year, enters 1984 as the NCAA's top returning ball-carrier with 3,051 career yards. He's a two-time All-ACC selection. Esposito and McIntosh will be joined in the backfield by Ricky Isom (150 yards), the regular fullback, but look for Vince Evans and Joe Greene to also get their chances with the football.

Tight end Jeff Brown, who led the Wolfpack in receiving last season (41), again should be a primary target. Phil Brothers (20) and Haywood Jeffries (13) will be the wideouts.

Even without Steele, State's offensive line could be its best since the Pack copped the ACC crown in 1979. Bookend tackles A. V. Richards and Joe Milinichik are the anchors with Moxley, Larry Burnette and Ron Kosor in between.

Johnson (144 stops) and Hendel will be missed at inside linebacker, but the Pack is set outside with Frank Bush and Mark Franklin. On the line, only tackle Raymond Phillips is back, and Reed is concerned about State's vulnerability to the run. Dillard Andrews and Bruce Shaw will try to fill in up front. Pat Teague and Benny Pegram will fill the linebacking vacancies.

The secondary, where three starters return, is expected to be the strength of the defense. Its ranks include Dwayne Green, Nelson Jones and John McRorie, along with Jeff Byrd, who sat out last season with a broken leg.

Mike Cofer is a dependable medium-range field goal kicker while Marty Martinussen (38.6-yard average) is an adequate punter.

State's offense will have to carry the club, and while McIntosh and Company won't be able to make the pack a winner by themselves, a better record is at hand.

Feist's Factors

- The Wolfpack is 10-1 vs the points against Clemson the past 11 years.
- The underdog has won all eight meetings in the past 11 seasons between N.C. St. and Virginia.
- N.C. State has dropped seven of its last eight home openers to the spread.

NORTH- WESTERN Wildcats

The Wildcats have won five games over the past two seasons, their most wins in back-to-back years since 1974-75, but it's an "accomplishment" on which fourth-year Head Coach Dennis Green chooses not to dwell.

"We played pretty well in 1982 and again at times in '83," Green said. "But we have to be a better defensive team, one that can shut people down, if we're going to make progress in this league."

The Wildcats gave up 398 points last year, nearly four times the number they scored (101), and given those numbers, probably were fortunate to come away with two victories. A full 10 starters return on defense, led by Keith Cruise, a second-team All-Big-10 selection at tackle last season. Cruise, who has started 33 straight games for the 'Cats, was third in tackles and led the squad in stops for losses with 14. Cruise teams with Daryl Newell and Ted Karras, up front.

The linebackers are led by two-time leading tackler Jim Bobbitt. Darin Morgan second in stops, joins Bobbitt on the inside with Alex Moyer outside. Ellery Bennett takes over for the graduated Mike Guendling.

Last year's all-fresh secondary of Undra Lofton, Charles Plant, Kent Weeks and Orville Nevels, is a year older and more experienced.

Northwestern's offense, which set all sorts of school records in 1982, was virtually dormant last year, as the 'Cats were shut out four times. Quarterback Sandy Schwab suffered through the sophomore jinx, his production falling off dramatically. If Schwab can regain his touch, the 'Cats will be tougher to handle in '84. Unfortunately for Schwab and the offense, last year's sparkplug, halfback Ricky Edwards, has graduated. Edwards ran for 561 yards (the next highest NU rusher had 73), and caught 83 passes, the second leading total in the nation. Claudell Robertson will take Edwards' spot with Casey Cummings at fullback.

The Northwestern receiving corps will be led by flanker Tony Coates, who caught 24 balls last year. Eric Anderson should fill the split end spot, but the departure of Jon Harvey (39 receptions) leaves a big hole at tight end.

Up front, the Wildcats will build around returning pivot Phil Leonard and tackles Jack Vandenberghe and Matt Burbach. Steve Hoffman and Mario Zappia are favored to start at the guard posts.

All-America punter John Kidd has graduated, leaving that chore to James Zenda, but placekicker John Duvic, who found the range late in the year (he made five of his final six attempts), returns for another season.

Green has enough material to avoid the terrible winless era of the early 80's, but that's about all.

Austin's Edges

- The Wildcats are 18-39 as away underdogs the past 11 seasons.
- Northwestern's non-conference pointspread record is 4-18 since 1973.
- The Cats are 8-4 as a home conference dog of less than +10, since '73.

NOTRE DAME Fighting Irish

A 19-18 Liberty Bowl triumph over Boston College at the end of last season may prove the springboard for an Irish team that has failed to live up to the promise of a trio of outstanding recruiting crops that have paralleled Gerry Faust's three-year tenure under the Golden Dome.

Faust, who has notched an 18-15-1 record at Notre Dame, knows it's time to match performance to potential.

"We had our ups and downs last year, and we lost some awfully tough games. Now it's time for us to come out and win football games on a consistent basis, and I think this team will be capable of doing that."

Notre Dame should be a big winner this fall. Forty-four lettermen return from a year ago, including 17 starters. The Irish attack, which ranked ninth nationally a season ago, loses just one starter, and, just as importantly, benefits from the experience gained by quarterback Steve Beuerlein, who was the starter most of last year despite his freshman status. Beuerlein wound up the season on many Freshman All-America teams. On everyone's All-America team was tailback Allen Pinkett, the Irish's leading rusher (1,394 yards), scorer (18 TDs) and receiver (28 receptions). Pinkett is a solid candidate for Heisman Trophy consideration. Beuerlein and Pinkett will be surrounded by other fine players, as well. Chris Smith is a powerful blocker at fullback, and, as evidenced by his 104 yards vs Boston College, also can run with the football. Joe Howard, Milt Jackson and Mark Bavaro combined for 73 receptions last year, and the offensive line, led by center Mike Kelley and guard

Larry Williams--two "all" types--has both size and experience.

Defensively, the Irish ranked 14th in the country last year, and there should be little drop off of performance there. Three Mikes--Golic, Gann and Griffin--kept opponents to an average of just 3.2 yards per rush last year, and all return. Tony Furjanic, Notre Dame's leading tackler in 1983, spearheads a linebacking contingent that also includes Mike Kovalski and Mike Larkin, two more good ones. The secondary does lose a couple of starters, but Joe Johnson is all-star calibre at safety and there are letter winners available for all other spots.

John Carney is the heir apparent for the placekicking chores while Mike Viracola gets first shot at the punting duties.

Notre Dame's schedule, with LSU and Missouri replacing Pittsburgh and Army, is about as tough as last year's was. The season ends with Penn State and USC, games which could go a long way in determining whether this is a great, or just a good year for the Irish.

Feist's Factors

- Irish are pathetic vs the points against Michigan State, only 1-9 since 1973.
- Note Dame is 7-2 vs the spread against Navy.
- The favorite is only 1-4 vs the number when ND plays SEC foes.

OHIO STATE Buckeyes

Earl Bruce's fifth season in Columbus figures to be pretty much like the first four, with the Buckeyes in contention for the Big-10 Championship and a trip to Pasadena.

However, the picture Bruce paints is anything but "rosy."

"I think it's obvious that we have lost some fine football players," he said, analyzing the departure of a dozen starting seniors. "The defense was hit especially hard from the standpoint of losing three-fourths of the secondary and both inside linebackers. We have a major rebuilding job to do there. The losses on offense aren't quite as concentrated with the possible exception of wide receiver. But we do have some young football players ready to step in and do the job. It's just a matter of time and patience."

The offense is led by All-Big-10 tailback Keith Byars, the Conference's leading rusher (1,199 yards) and scorer (22 TDs for 132 points). Byars also chipped in with 23 receptions. Barry Walker, who gained 124 yards in a start against Michigan, will replace Vaughn Broadnax at fullback. Walker isn't as big as Broadnax, but is much quicker.

Mike Tomczak begins his third season as Ohio State's starting quarterback, last year throwing for 1,942 yards and 13 touchdowns. Tomczak will miss All-Big-10 tight end John Frank (45 receptions), split end Thad Jemison (35), and flanker Cedric Anderson (26), but the Buckeyes have some good young pass-catchers in Mike Lanese, Judd Groza and Doug Smith. Fresh Chris Carter was at the top of one High School All-America list last year.

A trio of second-team All-Big-10 linemen--center Kirk Loudermilk, guard Scott Zalenski and tackle Mark Krewicz--complete the offensive puzzle, along with Jim Lachey and Rory Graves.

The Ohio State defense will be built around the returning front three--some of tackles Dave Crecelius and Dave Morrill, and middle guard Spencer Nelms. Morrill distinguished himself in the Fiesta Bowl against All-America Bill Fralic.

Pepper Johnson, Bryon Lee and Dennis Hueston, three juniors, will team with senior Larry Kolic at linebacker while Kelvin Bell heads up a secondary that also includes cornerbacks James Palmer and Kevin Richardson, along with rover Steve Hill.

Rich Spangler returns to handle the placement work and soph Ed Taggart is ticketed for the punter's chores.

The Buckeyes should benefit from a home schedule that brings Michigan, Iowa, and defending champion Illinois to Columbus this year. OSU lost tight battles on the road to all three of them last year but could reverse that score this season.

Austin's Edges

- The home team has covered 11 straight in the Ohio State-Minnesota series.
- The Buckeyes are 55-32 vs the spread against Big 10 rivals the past 11 years.
- OSU is 9-3 as a home favorite when the number is over 28.

OKLAHOMA Sooners

The Sooners fumbled and bungled their way to an 8-4 mark last season--the third straight year they've lost four games in a campaign--and Head Coach Barry Switzer is heading back to square one in an effort to reverse the trend.

"I think it is obvious we have to start from scratch and develop some kind of consistency before we can be truly optimistic about our chances this fall," said Switzer, the owner of football's highest win percentage (.827).

Offensively, it was a case of chaos, more than a lack of talent, that doomed the Sooners last year. While the Marcus DuPree defection is difficult to gauge, the mental errors which plagued the Sooners are not.

"Breakdowns in the form of penalties, fumbles and interceptions hurt us tremendously," admitted Switzer.

The maturity of quarterback Danny Bradley, plus the return of eight other offensive starters from last year, should help. Bradley is not the classic "I" formation QB, but the experience missing at this time last year, has been gained. Bradley will be handing off to a pair of sensational sophomores, Spencer Tillman and Earl Johnson, the Big Eight's second and third ranked rushers, respectively, last year. Both earned second-team All-Conference laurels for their output. It is likely that either Tillman or Johnson will move to fullback this year where Jerome Ledbetter is a bit too slow for Switzer's liking. Steve Sewell is a regular at wingback. Buster Rhymes (23 yards per reception), has benefitted most from Switzer's change from the wishbone to "I" attack. Nearly everyone is back up front, including All-Big Eight center Chuck Thomas, who's "as good as there is in the Conference," says Switzer.

The Sooners led the Conference in total defense last year, but seven regulars from that unit have departed, including All-America tackle Rick Bryan. Still, Oklahoma boasts some talented defenders, led by two-time All-Big Eight end Kevin Murphy, and a pair of second-team All-Conference choices, noseguard Tony Casillas and safety Keith Stanberry. The major concern is at linebacker where three-year starters Jackie Shipp and Thomas Benson no longer patrol. Paul Migliazzo, hampered by a knee injury last year, is a leading contender for one spot.

The kicking game returns last year's regulars--placement specialist Tim Lashar and punter Darin Attya.

Oklahoma's non-league schedule, with bowl entrants Texas, Baylor and Pittsburgh (in addition to Stanford), is impressive. Worrisome, too, is a six-game stretch (from Oct. 13 to Nov. 17) where the Sooners will play only one home game. Among those road contests is the annual showdown with Nebraska.

Feist's Factors

- Sooners are 24-12 vs the points on the road against Big Eight teams since '73.
- Oklahoma is 9-2 vs the points against Nebraska the past 11 seasons.
- Okies are only 3-8 vs arch rival Texas in their annual Cotton Bowl Encounter since '73.

OKLAHOMA STATE Cowboys

It was law and order type defense which helped the Cowboys to an 8-4 record last year--including a 24-14 lynching of Baylor in the Bluebonnet Bowl--and it'll be the stop troops who'll likely ride posse for Oklahoma State again in 1984.

"It's obvious, with our entire front line returning, we should have a strong defense," deadpanned Jimmy Johnson, entering his sixth season as the Pokes' sheriff.

Only Oklahoma and Kansas State scored as many as 21 points on OSU last year as the Cowboys tied ropes around such potent attacks as Nebraska (14 points) and Missouri (16 points).

The defensive platoon features a pair of bookend tackles in Leslie O'Neal and Rodney Harding. O'Neal is a consensus All-Big Eight selection while Harding was a second-teamer last year. Also around is Harry Roberts, who may be the only defensive end in the country who also returns kickoffs. Matt Monger, named to the walk-on All-America team last year, is a good one at linebacker, and Johnson is confident juco transfer Ricky Adams can do the job at the other post. Adam Hinds, who led the Conference in interceptions with eight, returns to a secondary which topped the nation in pass thefts.

Seven offensive starters are back, and if the attack can increase its production just a bit (and if the defense plays as well as it did last year), the Pokes could turn some of those narrow defeats into victories this year. Last season, OSU dropped four games by a total of just 11 points.

Leading the offensive charge is running back Shawn Jones, an All-Big Eight selection in '83. Jones, who replaced injured All-America Ernest Anderson, rambled for 985 yards on 225 carries.

Rusty Hilger, who earned Bluebonnet Bowl MVP laurels last year, directs the show. Hilger connected on 53 percent of his aeriels with 11 TDs last year.

Main targets for Hilger are wide-outs Jamie Harris (45 receptions) and Malcolm Thomas (26). Barry Hanna is the tight end.

"We're looking to throw the ball a lot more," said Johnson. "With receivers like Lewis and Harris you have to get the ball to them more often."

Pass protection will come from David Tucker, Paul Blair and Ralph Partida, holdovers from last year's starting interior quintet.

Larry Roach, who will become the Big Eight's all-time FG king this season, is back, but the Cowboys are looking for a punter. Roach will do in a pinch.

This should be Johnson's best team since coming to Stillwater in 1979. Even with trips to Nebraska and Oklahoma, the Cowboys could win eight games.

Austin's Edges

- Oklahoma State is 3-7 as home favorite vs non-conference teams the last 11 years.
- Cowboys are 8-3 vs the spread against Kansas State, since 1973.
- OSU is 3-8 vs the points against Oklahoma.

OREGON Ducks

The failure of the Ducks' offense--Oregon was held scoreless by arch-rival Oregon State, the worst defensive team in the league--continues to haunt Head Coach Rich Brooks, now entering his eighth season in Eugene.

"I would hope we would be improved over last year on offense," he said. "We very definitely have to improve our passing percentage."

The Ducks were last in total offense, scoring offense and passing offense last year. Oregon ranked eighth in rushing.

Quarterback remains a sore spot with Mike Jorgensen, Chris Miller and Tim Norton all hoping to heal the Ducks' wounds. Jorgensen did most of the signal-calling last year, but he hit on only 41 percent of his passes. Miller, a freshman last year, is still learning and Norton, a transfer from Tennessee, also is short on experience.

Any of the trio that wins the starting job would be wise to get the ball to Lew Barnes, the Ducks' best offensive weapon. Barnes led the team in receiving (30 for a 20.8 average) and also rushed 17 times for a 5.0 average. He was ninth nationally in punt returns, as well.

There are loads of running backs--Kevin McCall, Kevin Willhite, Alex Mack and Eugene King are most prominent--but Brooks must rebuild an offensive line that loses All-America guard Gary Zimmerman, honorable mention All-Pac-10 tackle Scott Shepard, and starting center Ryan Zinke. The new interior quintet will be constructed around the talents of guard Brad Smith, who earned freshman All-America honors last fall. The other regulars will include Drew Smetana and Steve Jensen at the tackles, Ken Warner at center, and guard Ray Wheatley.

Defensively, the Ducks had some excellent performances in 1983 and wound up the season ranked fifth in the Conference in scoring defense with a 20.4 average. By way of comparison, Rose Bowl Champion UCLA was eighth with a 23.3 average.

"Although we return more starters on defense (nine, to six on offense), I feel we have less depth at most positions than we do on offense," Brooks said.

Jerry Mikels, who led the Ducks in tackles last year, returns to outside linebacker to pace the defense. Dave Maley and John Byrne are the main men up front while the secondary retains starters Wendell Cason, Dan Wilken, Jeff Williams and Don Brown. Lerry Wilson and E.J. Duffy join Mikels at LB, but the Ducks aren't going to get better until they get a quarterback.

Feist's Factors

- The favorite is 8-3 in the Oregon-California series.
- The Ducks are only 3-8 vs the points against Washington State since 1973.
- Oregon is only 3-7 vs the points in last spread decision before playing rival Oregon State.

OREGON STATE Beavers

Improvement continues to come in dribs and drabs at Oregon State, the Beavers losing one fewer game than the year before for the third straight season. The Black Bandits also added something they hadn't experienced in this decade--a Pac-10 victory.

Joe Avezzano, entering his fifth season in Corvallis, sees strength in numbers.

"I definitely feel that we should be improved. I feel this way because of the large number of returning players that we do have and the depth that we will have as opposed to past seasons."

The main question facing Avezzano is who will play quarterback for the Beavers? Last year's starter, Ladd McKittrick, returns, but his completion percentage (.387) and interceptions to TD ratio (18-four) left a lot to be desired. Don Lema and Steve Steenwyk, a pair of junior college imports, could be the answer.

Whoever wins the QB job will try and get the ball to Reggie Bynum, the Beavers' leading receiver. Bynum caught 24 balls last year, seven of them for TDs, and averaged 24.2 yards per grab in earning second-team All-Pac-10 honors. Robert Adams (15, 18.9) is set on the other side with Mike Laverty (10, 13.7) at tight end.

The offensive line is steeped in experience with tackles Dwayne Jackola and Tom Emmons, guards Rick Meggers and Herb Wilson, and center Jack Lester.

The Beavers need to improve their running attack, especially with top gainers Bryce Oglesby (878 yards, 5.1 average) and Randy Holmes (219, 3.0) having graduated.

James Terrell, who started at tailback in 1982, should reclaim that position with redshirt Darwin Malone and Tony Green battling it out for Oglesby's full-back spot.

Oregon State returns eight starters on defense, but since the Beavers were last in the Conference in total defense, passing defense and scoring defense, that's not necessarily good.

Avezzano, in an effort to alter those stats, has been toying with the notion of a four man line. His regulars up front--Angelo Dilulo, Charles Naone and John Gonzalez--all have the experience to learn a new system.

Ron Heller and Willie Stubblefield are the most experienced linebackers, while the secondary will be built around free safety Reggie DuPee and cornerback Kenny Taylor.

Marty Breen (six-12 FGs) and Chip Stempeck (38.5 average) should improve off their freshman performances.

Oregon State should continue to show improvement, particularly on offense, but again, it will come in bits and pieces.

Austin's Edges

- Oregon State is 13-19 as a home underdog in the Conference, since 1973.
- Beavers 7-12 as an away Conference underdog when the line is +10 to +20.
- OSU is 3-1 as a home favorite within the Pac-10 (since '73).

PENNSYLVANIA

Quakers

Back-to-back shares of the Ivy League title will deprive Pennsylvania of the surprise factor, this year, but Jerry Berndt's troops shouldn't need it.

"For the first time since I've been at Pennsylvania," we're heading into a season with a veteran team," said Berndt, who has produced 13 victories in the past two years, the most since 1946-47.

Penn will continue to utilize the pro-set and I-formations on offense while sticking to the 4-4-3 on defense. The attack will be paced by a pair of quarterbacks, John McGeehan and Jim Crocicchia. The former threw for 1,266 yards and nine TDs last year while the latter chipped in with 440 yards and five scores.

The ground game is paced by Stan Koss (527 yards, 5.3-yard average) and Steve Ortman (436, 4.2), a pair of tailbacks. Berndt may shift Koss to fullback to replace graduated Chuck Nolan, whose 556 yards paced the club in '83. Soph Rich Comizio, who had glittering (6.8-yard average, seven TDs) stats for last season's 5-1 freshman team, also could have an impact.

Graduation hit hardest along the offensive line and at the receiving crew. Up front, center Joe Smailis and tackle Ed Foley are all that's remaining from the starting quintet. The pass-catching contingent is led by tight end Lal Henegan (19 receptions, 291 yards, two TDs). Jim O'Toole (11-207-one TD) probably will be a wideout.

Pennsylvania's defense should be excellent, particularly in the secondary where first-team All-Ivy cornerback Tim Chambers, second-team all-Conference safety Ross Armstrong and starter Duane Hewlett form a superior threesome.

The linebacking quartet is led by first-team All-Ivy performer Kevin Bradley, on the inside and regular Peter Gallagher on the outside. Bradley has led the team in tackles for two straight years. Gavin O'Connor, who played in passing situations last year, is a likely starter on the outside with Denton Walker playing inside next to Bradley.

Tom Gilmore, the top defensive vote-getter in the Ivy Rookie-of-the-Year balloting, will be at one tackle position with either Joe Lorenc or Dexter Desir at the other. Lorenc is a pass rushing specialist while Desir was the freshman team's defensive MVP. Steve Pisano, who started every game as a soph last year, will be at one end with Jerry McFadden replacing All-Ivy David Smith at the other.

Sam Coroniti, who averaged 37.0 yards per punt last year, return to perform his specialty with Fernando Becattini the leading candidate for the placement work.

Penn seems to have the inside track for a third straight Ivy title.

Feist's Factors

- Penn is a combined 5-17 vs the points against Cornell and Harvard the last 11 years.
- The Penn-Columbia series has been covered by the home team 7-of-last-9.
- Quakers are only 1-3 vs the points as home favorite over - 10.

PENN STATE Nittany Lions

Penn State should be somewhere in between the 11-1 1982 team that won the National Championship and the 1983 squad that rebounded from an 0-3 start to beat Washington in the Aloha Bowl and finish 8-4-1, but Lion Head Coach Joe Paterno, true to his nature, isn't painting a rosy picture.

"Overall, this team has a long way to go to handle this schedule (eight bowl teams in 1983)", explained Paterno. "We can't waste one minute of practice time. There's no one area, with the exception of quarterback, where we are really outstanding and experienced."

At quarterback, the Lions have Doug Strang, the starter from year ago. After a rocky start, Strang came on strong to throw 19 TD passes against just seven interceptions. What'll make his task more difficult this season, though, will be the absence of Kevin Baugh and Kenny Jackson, the two wideouts who combined in 1983. Sid Lewis, a converted running back, and George Alpert, a backup last year, will try and fill the void.

Dean DiMidio (19 receptions, three TDs), returns at tight end, and the offensive line welcomes back four-of-five interior starters, but Paterno is far from satisfied with the contingent.

"Our offensive line was adequate last year, but nothing more than that," he said. "That area is not one of our strong suits and we have a lot of work to be done."

Where the Lions are strong is at tailback, thanks to the return of D.J. Dozier, who ran for 1,002 yards as a freshman last fall. Dozier's backup, Tony Mumford, will move to fullback to replace graduated Jon Williams.

Paterno's recruiting net snared quarterback Raymond Roundtree and running back Kevin Woods to help the offense.

The Penn State defense has more holes to fill--six starters are gone--especially on the line where only end Bob White returns.

Carmen Masciantonio, Shane Conlan and Rogers Alexander assure that one Penn State tradition, strong linebacking, will be upheld.

Penn State's three-deep starters from the Aloha Bowl are back with Michael Zordich, Chris Sydnor and Lance Hamilton.

Nick Gancitano (17-21 FGs) could be the difference in several close games, but the Lions must replace punter George Reynolds (42.6-yard average).

"I'm not as optimistic as some of the fans would like me to be," said Paterno. "We are going to have some difficulties until we gain experience."

Even with a tough schedule and a lack of experience, the Lions should win eight games and be in their 15th straight bowl game by season's end.

PITTSBURGH Panthers

All-America Tom Flynn has graduated and the schedule, which opens with BYU and Oklahoma and features trips to Miami, West Virginia and Penn State, is murder, but Pittsburgh Head Coach Foge Fazio is counting his blessings.

"Offensively, we have much more certainty at the quarterback position than we did a year ago, and we feel pretty good about that unit," said Fazio. "I think as a unit, defensively, we can be good, but maybe not as dominating as we have been."

Eight starters return on offense, led by All-America tackle Bill Fralic, the most heralded lineman in the country. Fralic finished eighth in last year's Heisman Trophy balloting. He's joined by regulars Mike Dorundo, Tony Brown and Bob Brown, up front, with Barry Pettyjohn slated to fill the center vacancy created by Jim Sweeney's graduation.

The Panthers are deep at quarterback with John Congemi, John Cummings and Chris Jelic. Congemi took over for the injured Cummings in game two last year and wound up throwing for 1,940 yards and 16 TDs. He set a Fiesta Bowl record for pass completions (31-of-44) and total offense (361 yards). Cummings received a redshirt. Jelic, who played the entire second half against Notre Dame last year, is further insurance.

Bill Wallace (45 receptions, eight TDs), will be the main pass-catching target, along with tight end Clint Wilson, and the Panthers will batter you on the ground with fullbacks Marc Bailey (451 yards) and Marlon McIntyre (414 yards). Tailback Joe McCall (961 yards) is gone, but Fazio's recruiting net snared Craig "Ironhead" Heyward and Charles Gladman, a pair of Parade High School All-Americans.

Pitt's defense has ranked second in scoring defense (to Nebraska) over the past five years, and the return of six starters all but guarantees another fine unit. The key loss is Flynn, the A-A free safety.

"I would have to say our secondary is shaky," admitted Fazio, "because there are not a lot of veterans back there. It could develop if a good free safety emerges to go along with Melvin Dean at cornerback."

Pitt's top two tacklers--Troy Benson and Caesar Aldisert--make linebacking a solid area for the Panthers, and the return of All-East candidate Chris Doleman at end, along with starting linemen Bob Buczkowski, Tim Quense, Dennis Atiyeh and Bob Schilken, makes the front seven a real plus for Pitt.

The kicking game will be brand new, but Pitt has many candidates, including Mark Brasco, the holder of six Pennsylvania high school kicking marks.

The Panthers will be among the nation's best teams this year.

Feist's Factors

- The Panthers are 8-2 as an away underdog of +10 or less, since 1973.
- Pitt is 26-16 as an away favorite, the past 11 years.
- Pittsburgh is 11-6 vs the spread as an away favorite when they held the previous weeks opponent to less than 10 points.

PRINCETON Tigers

With a record-breaking quarterback and an All-Ivy League receiver, Princeton Head Coach Frank Navarro is looking for better defensive play form the Tigers this season.

"The first important point is that we have a nucleus," said Navarro. "We have a number of people--nine to be exact--returning to the defensive unit with game experience. We'll be looking for the right chemistry, a combination of players who will keep us growing and getting better."

Navarro can start with end Kevin Patrick and defensive back Eric Robinson, a pair of second-team All-Ivy picks last year. Patrick will be the leader of a line that has Mark Berggren and Mark von Kreuter at the tackles with Mark Petruzzello at the other end. It's a solid crew, as is the Robinson-headed secondary where Joe Harvey, Jim Anderson and Mark Malias all return. The problem is at linebacker where graduation has claimed starters Glenn Tilley and Andy Sanzaro, a twosome that combined for 223 tackles in '83. Anthony DiTomasso has the inside track on one of those openings with Lorne Keller the favorite for the other.

Princeton's offense will feature quarterback Doug Butler and wide receiver Derek Graham. Butler set a half-dozen Tiger passing records last year, including most yards passing in a season (3,175), and most touchdown passes (25). He earned ECAC Rookie-of-the-Year honors and was a second-team All-Ivy choice. Graham, meanwhile, captured first-team Ivy accolades on the strength of 84 receptions and 11 TDs. Kevin Guthrie, who caught 88 aials, has graduated, making it mandatory that Ken Hart adequately fill his spot, or Graham almost certainly will draw double and triple coverage. Greg Luczak and Greg Kaiser are top-notch tight ends.

Navarro must find a replacement for tailback Ralph Ferraro, as well, no easy task since Ferraro became only the third back in Princeton's 115-year history to rush for better than 1,000 yards in a season, last year. Dan Pellegrino and Chris Ratliff will try to pick up the slack while Mike Coveny returns to do the blocking and short yardage work at fullback.

Second-team All-Ivy guard Chal Taylor heads an offensive line that also has regulars in tackles Alonzo Bell and Eric Dreiband, along with guard Jack DeWalt. Only the pivot must be filled.

Mike Miskovsky will do the placement work with Kyle Heffley assigned the punting chores.

The Butler-to-Graham combination should make Princeton an exciting team, and if Navarro can come up with a ground game and defense, too, the Tigers will not only be exciting, but good, as well.

Austin's Edges

- Tigers are 7-13 as an Ivy League home underdog (since 1973).
- Princeton's 9-2 vs points against Harvard, but 2-9 vs the number against Yale.
- The Tigers are 2-7 as away underdogs against the teams they play on the road this season.

PURDUE Boilermakers

Purdue's traditional strength--quarterback--will be a weakness this year as the Boilermakers start an untested signal-caller for the first time in recent memory. The leading candidate to replace Scott Campbell is Jim Everett, a three-year backup who was 31-66 passing (two TD, five int.) in 1983. Also in the hunt are a pair of redshirt freshmen--Doug Downing and Jeff Huber. It looks like Purdue is going to miss the 2,031 yards and 60 percent passing completion rate Campbell chalked up last year.

"All three candidates are even," said Head Coach Leon Burtnett. "Naturally we would like to settle on one and that will be the one who demonstrates the best leadership and ability to get the offensive team in the endzone."

Scoring points may not be too easy for the Boilermakers since, in addition to Campbell, Purdue loses six other starters from last year's 3-7-1 team. The other major losses are at running back where the top three ball-carriers (Mel Gray, Eric Jordan and Lloyd Hawthorne) took 1,860 yards and 15 TDs to commencement with them. Ray Wallace, a starter in the secondary last year, will move to full-back to help Bruce King and Rodney Carter with the RB chores.

The Makers have a fine receiver in flanker Jeff Price (40 receptions in '83 to lead the club), and a dependable tight end in Marty Scott (14), and it looks like Steve Griffin (24) should be ready to assume fulltime status at split end.

The offensive line returns three starters, plus two others who saw considerable playing time last year. The regulars are tackles Paul Alekna and Doug Isbell and guard Mark Drenth. The part-timers are guard Drew Banks and center Jerry Boat.

Even with Wallace gone to the offense, the Purdue secondary of frosh All-America Roy Woodson, Don Anderson, Kennedy Wilson and juco transfer Jeff Williams, appears set. Ditto the defensive front three where Brad Hornor and Melvin Menke are returning starters and Derek Wimberly has plenty of experience.

Kevin Sumlin, a walk-on who wound up leading Purdue in tackles last year at inside linebacker, returns, but the defensive end posts have been all but wiped out, probably forcing Burtnett into using freshmen there this season.

The hunt is on for a replacement for kicker Tim Clark, and the same could be true at punter where Matt Kinzer is mulling a baseball future.

Purdue's uncertainty at quarterback, plus a non-league schedule that includes Notre Dame and Miami, will keep the Boilermakers buried under .500 and near the bottom of the Big-10 standings.

Feist's Factors

- Boilermakers are 18-28 vs the points against the Big 10 teams on the road.
- Purdue is 4-10 as a favorite when the line is -3 to -6 1/2.
- Makers are 4-14 as a dog vs the "Big Two" the past 11 years.

RICE Owls

Watson Brown, who brought credibility to the Cincinnati football program (the Bobcats beat Penn State last year), will try and do the same for Rice. It won't be easy, and Brown knows it.

"We're a weak football team," admitted Brown. "For us to compete in this conference we're going to have to get stronger. The players are going to have to work hard."

The focal point of Rice's offense under Brown will be an escalated passing attack. Just who will direct it, though, is a matter of conjecture. Kerry Overton and Eddie Burgoyne looked the best in spring practice, but junior college transfer Sean Sterle, who doesn't arrive on campus until August, also is in the hunt. Mark Scott, a good open field runner, has the inside track on the tailback position. Scott's stock is high, also, because he's a good receiver, coming out of the backfield. Two of Rice's leading pass-catching targets did not compete in spring drills. Melvin Robinson, a potential "all" candidate, was still recovering from knee surgery while Jay Jefferson was attempting to regain his academic eligibility. Brown is so disappointed in his tight ends that he may go to a three wideout alignment. Up front, Kent Rowald and Scott McLaughlin are the favorites at the tackle positions while Bobby Nunez holds the center assignment. Brown has not decided on his starting guards. The leading candidates are Mark McArthur, Steve Lister and Russell Moses.

Defensively, the Owls have some talent in the secondary and on the front line, but Brown is concerned about the linebacking situation.

"Linebacker is an area where we have to make vast improvement," he said.

Joe Heikkinen seems to be the leader there among eight hopefuls. The secondary lists Rayford Abraham, Steve Kidd, Dwayne Holmes and Tommy Harris as the best bets to gain starting assignments. Alvin Rettig, another who could press for a starter's job, broke his thumb in spring training. The Owl front is being constructed around a pair of 265-pound tackles, Darryl Duffie and Raul Loya.

Either Mark Shupak or James Hamrick will handle the placekicking duties while Kidd is listed as the Owls' probable punter. Incoming freshman Ted Humphries is expected to challenge Kidd for the job.

"We have a young team," advised Brown. "We figured the other day that we'll start only five or six seniors."

Brown's a good coach, but if the Owls are to show improvement, it won't be this season. The Brown program is going with youth, a strategy which could pay off down the road... way down the road.

Austin's Edges

- Owls are 1-7 vs the points against the Longhorns of Texas, since '73.
- Rice is 7-2 as an underdog of +28 or more in the SWC.
- Owls are 13-23 as a home underdog in the SWC the past 11 seasons.

RUTGERS Scarlet Knights

Having helped mold the offense that led Penn State to the National Championship in 1982, Dick Anderson has moved on to Rutgers, accepting the challenge of bringing success to the Scarlet Knights, as well.

"It will take some time," cautioned the new head coach. "I'd say we need a couple of good recruiting years. I hope we'll be competitive, immediately."

Anderson, the offensive coordinator at Penn State the past three seasons, inherits a Rutgers team that has not enjoyed a winning campaign since 1980. Anderson will use the pro style attack that was successful with the Nittany Lions and has installed Rusty Hochberg as his quarterback. Hochberg completed 61-of-100 passes in his sophomore season before being felled in last year's fourth game, against, ironically, Penn State.

Hochberg has some excellent targets in Alan Andrews, Andrew Baker and Boris Pendergrass. Andrews' 48 receptions helped him earn second-team All-East honors last year while Baker used a 23.2 yards-per-catch average to snare All-East honorable mention accolades. Pendergrass had 22 receptions.

Everyone who carried the football for Rutgers last year returns, including top totter Albert Smith (572 yards, 4.9 avg., six TDs).

The offensive line is spearheaded by second-team All-East center Joe DiGilio, with help from returning regulars Jim Keating, Clement Udovich, and Mike Brenner. The right guard spot is the only offensive position where a starter does not return.

Defensively, the chief concern is the secondary, where three starters have graduated. Anderson will try Jacques LaPrairie, who quarterbacked the club when Hochberg went down, at strong safety. LaPrairie will join part-time starters John Cummins and Harold Young as the only seasoned players there.

One linebacking spot seems secure in the hands of last year's freshman sensation, Tyronne Stowe, but the other post, where All-America Jim Dumont toiled, is up for grabs. Matt Bachman, Andre Cox and Mercer Hedgeman will vie for the opening.

The defensive front will be anchored by end Lionel Washington, the Scarlet sack king the past two seasons. Washington will be mixed in with a combination derived from lettermen Tony Spagnella, Randy Hannis, George Pickel, Harry Swayne, Clyde Woodley and Jim Pickel.

The return of Hochberg should help Rutgers, tremendously, the Knights should improve on last year's 3-8 mark.

Feist's Factors

- Scarlet Knights are 3-1 vs the points against Army.
- Rutgers is 7-2 as an away favorite vs independents.
- Knights are 11-3 as a favorite between 10-19½ points.

SOUTH CAROLINA Gamecocks

Sixteen starters return from the 1983 Gamecock team that surprised the experts in battling through the nation's toughest schedule to post a 5-6 record last year, but Head Coach Joe Morrison, who engineered the minor miracle, isn't getting complacent.

"We are more set with our personnel," said the former New York Giant player, "but even so, we are trying to establish good depth at each position. We want tough competition for each position because this is the way you make improvement with someone pushing you."

Two folks who won't have to worry about being ousted from the starting lineup are running backs Thomas Dendy and Kent Hagood. The duo rushed for 1,378 yards and a dozen TDs last fall, averaging 5.8 yards per carry. The area that does need work is the passing game. Allen Mitchell is the incumbent at quarterback, but his interception (18) to TD (five) ratio last year left the Gamecocks' infantry without much aerial support. Just a junior, Mitchell should improve under the Morrison system. And the best way to do that, is get the ball to flanker Ira Hillary, the team's leading receiver last year. One problem, however, is filling the hole left by the graduation of tight end Dominique Blasingame. The offensive line is deep and experienced, led by triple monogram winning guard Jim Walsh.

Only four starters are missing from last season's Fire Ant defense, but among that quartet are the top three tacklers--Mike Durrah, J.D. Fuller and Rickey Hagood. A pair of three-time letter winners, James Sumpter and Frank Wright, will be the mainstays up front with James Seawright the lone returnee to the linebacking corps. Seawright's new companions, Paul Vogel and Willie Hall, have plenty of experience, however.

South Carolina's secondary returns intact, but the unit permitted nearly 60 percent completions last year, much too generous a statistic to suit Morrison. Bryant Gilliard, who was fourth on the team in total tackles, heads up the foursome from his free safety spot with Gary Ryan at strong safety and Chris Major and Hinton Tayloe at the corners.

The Gamecocks will be breaking in new kicking specialists this fall. Scott Hagler is the likely placekicker with redshirt Mike Hold the favorite for the punter's job.

This year's schedule is not quite as demanding as last year's was, but any slate that includes Georgia, Clemson, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Florida State, cannot be called "easy." Morrison's teams traditionally have improved in his second year, but whether that can be demonstrated in terms of more victories remains to be seen.

Austin's Edges

- Favorite is 9-2 in the South Carolina-N.C. State rivalry since '73.
- Gamecocks are 22-12 vs the points against ACC teams, at home, the last 11 years.
- The home team is 8-3 vs the spread in the SC-Clemson series.

SMU Mustangs

The Mustangs return the fewest starters (eight) in the Conference, but because SMU was on the right side of many blowouts last year, second-liners had an opportunity to gain experience, and the level of play this season could be on a par with recent Pony Express editions.

SMU has used a vaunted ground game and stingy defense to compile a 39-7-1 record this decade, ingredients which won't be altered in 1984. Bobby Collins' rushing attack ranked 11th nationally a year ago, as tailbacks Reggie Dupard and Jeff Atkins terrorized opponents for 2,186 yards and 16 touchdowns. Dupard, who led the SWC in rushing and was seventh in the country, averaged 6.3 yards per carry in '83, second only to Nebraska's Heisman Trophy winner, Mike Rozier. Atkins gained 937 yards, breaking the freshmen rushing mark established in 1974 by Earl Campbell. The duo will continue to alternate series, a la Eric Dickerson and Craig James of the 1980-82 Mustangs. Gary Hashaway (third in rushing), will be the blocking fullback.

Paving the way up front will be All-SWC linemen Chris Jackson (center) and Andrew Campbell (guard). Grady Burnette, a second-team All-SWC pick who has a fifth year of eligibility remaining, is mulling his future. With or without Burnette, however, the Mustangs will have a strong offensive front.

If the offense has a problem, it is at quarterback where backup Don King must replace graduated Lance McIlhenny, the most successful signal-caller (34-5-1) in SMU history. King played in five games last year, showing some nifty (5.7 yard average) running moves. Ron Morris, who caught 41 balls last year, and Bobby Leach, a proven commodity, are the main pass-catching threats.

SMU's defense, which ranked second in the nation last year (total defense), returns only three starters, but, again, reserves should step right in. All-SWC linebacker Anthony Beverly, just a junior, will be the leader, but he'll get plenty of help from fellow backer Ron Anderson, as well as linemen Tom Linebarger, John Eixman and Jerry Ball. Reggie Phillips, Keith Brooks and Darrell Reese head up a secondary that may miss All-America safety Russell Carter.

Both SMU kicking specialists have graduated, but All-State recruit Brandy Brownlee should ease the losses, and, if not, there's backup punter Steve Utley.

SMU's schedule is reasonable, with road games vs Texas and Baylor the toughest tests. The Ponies have won the last two games vs the Longhorns in Austin. The non-league slate of Nevada-Las Vegas, Louisville and North Texas State, is a joke.

Feist's Factors

- Mustangs are 9-1 vs the points against non-conference foes.
- SMU is 14-21 vs the spread at home against SWC teams, since '73.
- Ponies are 14-8 as an away conference favorite, the past 11 years.

SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI Golden Eagles

Jim Carmody's second session with the Golden Eagles has produced 14 victories the past two seasons, and despite some departures via the graduation route, the winning trend should continue this year in Hattiesburg.

Carmody, whose first stint with Southern Mississippi (1978-80) produced a 2-11-1 record, has put together back-to-back 7-4 seasons in 1982 and '83, but must fill some vacancies this campaign to make it three in-a-row.

Much of the offensive responsibility this year will go to Robert Ducksworth, for starting quarterback. Ducksworth had a decent sophomore season, throwing for 1,201 yards and seven TDs on 50.4 percent accuracy. Ducksworth's favorite receiver, Louis Lipps, has taken his 42 receptions and 19.0-yard average to the NFL, but the Eagles have another potential burner in Lyneal Alston who averaged 21.4 yards per catch as the regular split end last fall. Alston will take his act to Lipps' more glamorous flanker spot this season, leaving the SE duties to Edward Wilson. Ray Stallings will be the new TE.

The running back corps will be paced by the tailback combination of Sam DeJarnette and Vincent Alexander. DeJarnette led USM in rushing with 795 yards and Alexander was second with 551. The concern is at fullback where graduation claimed both the starter and backup from a year ago.

Returning linemen Freddy Richards and Randy Campbell get position changes this fall as Carmody moves Richards from guard to center and Campbell from tackle to guard.

Defense played a large part in Southern Mississippi's success last year as the Golden Eagles permitted only four foes to score more than 10 points against them. This year's unit also has potential, especially if Carmody can fill some key openings.

The line returns four of five regulars in tackles Richard Byrd and Kip Smith, plus ends Willie B. Moore and Chris Jackson, and if Fred Molden can fill in at nose guard, it'll again be tough to run on the Eagles.

Greg Hauesler is the only regular at linebacker, but the return of end Greg Dampeer to LB, plus the availability of redshirt frosh Eric Redd and Sidney Coleman, should help.

Bobo Harris is the lone secondary starter, but Scott Allen, James Cooper, and Tim Smith all have earned monograms back there.

Steve Clark, who connected on 41-of-61 career field goal attempts and 89-of-93 PATs, is gone, leaving the placement duties to either Rex Banks or Shelton Kennington.

Carmody has some holes to fill, and the schedule is challenging, but the Eagles should have a shot at their third straight 7-4 season.

Austin's Edges

- Eagles are 4-2 as an away underdog, lifetime.
- Southern Mississippi is 2-1 as a home favorite.
- Golden Eagles are 2-1 as an away favorite vs the spread against teams from the SEC.

STANFORD Cardinals

The Stanford program hit rock bottom (1-10) last year, but with a promising quarterback, and a man who knows what to do with him, the Cards should be on the rebound trail this fall.

The quarterback in question is John Paye, whose 1,971 yards passing with 10 TDs in his freshman season dwarf the accomplishments of a former Stanford QB, John Elway, whose initial campaign produced only 544 yards and six TDs. The man who'll coach Paye, Jack Elway, ought to know a good quarterback when he sees one, having fathered John Elway and tutored Ed Luther, the latter when they were together at San Jose State.

Paye will have an excellent receiver on hand in Emile Harry, a second-team All-Pac-10 selection last year when he caught 4 balls for an 18.8-yards per catch average. The Cardinals may miss leading receiver Mike Tolliver (58 receptions), but Elway has taken steps to upgrade the pass-catching crew by bringing in highly regarded recruits Spencer Cotten, Kenn Richardson and Eric Snelson, all members of the high school top 100 list.

Stanford's rushing attack was nearly non-existent last fall, averaging just 75 yards per game (2.5 yards per rush) while scoring only three TDs. Elway has all the top ball-carriers returning, as well as four-fifths of the offensive line, so those stats could improve. The top rushers are sophs Thomas Henley (228 yards, 3.4 average), and Marshall Dillard (155, 4.0), and senior Shaun Avant (165, 3.9). The offensive line will consist of John Barnes and Jeff Deaton at the tackles, Matt Moran at guard, and center Brent Martin. Kevin Lamar is the favorite to win the opening at guard.

Stanford ranked seventh in total defense and ninth in scoring defense in the Pac-10 last year, a statistic which seven returning starters, including a pair of all-leaguers, might be able to correct.

The players to watch are inside linebacker Dave Wyman and outside linebacker Garin Veris. Wyman led Stanford in tackles with 144 last year and earned second-team All-Pac-10 honors. Veris earned similar awards playing the end in the Stanford 4-3 last year, but is equally at home at OLB in the 3-4. Tom Briebl and Matt Soderlund add to the abundance of talent at linebacker while Mike Wyman, Pat Mitchell and Terry Jackson are the mainstays on the line. Eric Price is the only returnee to the Stanford secondary which led the Pac-10 last year. Toi Cook, Dwain Hamilton and Joe Cain will press for time there.

Elway looks like he has the makings of a good passing attack and an improved defense. The Cardinals should be a much better team this year.

Feist's Factors

- Cardinals are 22-36 as favorites, the last 11 years.
- The visitor is 8-3 vs the points in the Stanford-USC series.
- Cards are a wretched 6-16 vs the points against independents.

SYRACUSE Orangemen

A defense that allowed only two opponents (Nebraska and Maryland) to score more than 17 points on it last year, was the main reason for Syracuse's 6-5 record, but with seven bowl teams on this season's slate, the offense will have to contribute, also, if the Orange are to remain in the black.

Really, only one starter has been lost from the offensive brigade, fullback Brent Ziegler. Matt Walker also has graduated, but he and Steve Villanti served as messengers at one guard post, and the latter returns. Otherwise, the first two units remain virtually intact, older, wiser, more experienced, and, hopes Head Coach Dick MacPherson, more productive, as well.

Todd Norley, last year's starting QB, returns, but watch out for redshirt freshman Don McPherson, an outstanding prospect. Also in the hunt is Greg Christodulu, like Norley, a junior.

The receiving corps returns its top two men in Scott Schwedes and Mike Siano (21 and 20 catches, respectively), but world class sprinter Mike Morris, who averaged over 20 yards per reception in '83, will be tough to keep on the bench. Marty Chalk (13 grabs), is a solid tight end.

The running game is solid with Jaime Covington (top rusher in '82 and '83) and Harold Gayden (514 yards last fall), the main threats, and the offensive line has both size and experience.

Only two teams rushed for more than 200 yards against the Orange defense last year, but MacPherson must replace five starters from that platoon. Tim Green and Jamie Kimmel are two good ones up front, but depth might be a concern. Bernie King leads a deep crew at linebacker, and the secondary is well stocked with starters in John Roos, Ron Hobby and Vic Bellamy. Chief casualty back there is Ed Koban, who was one of the nation's leading punt returners in '83.

Syracuse has converted 109 straight PATs, and the streak should continue with Don McAuley. The junior placement ace is not too shabby when it comes to field goals, either, nailing 15-of-21 last year, including five in one game. Jim Fox averaged 36.3 yards per punt last season, and while he returns, the Orange will be looking for better numbers this fall.

Even if the Syracuse offense clicks and the defense plays up to last year's heights, the Orange will have to contend with a schedule that is downright dastardly. In one stretch, Syracuse entertains Nebraska before taking to the road against Florida, West Virginia and Penn State. Throw in trips to Maryland and Boston College, plus a visit from Pittsburgh, and there's true potential for disaster. In fact, while the Orangemen should be as good as they were last year, their record probably won't be.

Austin's Edges

- The Orangemen are 9-2 vs the points against Pittsburgh, since '73.
- Syracuse is 5-1 as a road underdog of +20 or more, the past 11 seasons.
- Orange are 8-4 as a road favorite, since 1973.

TEMPLE Owls

While the Owls finally will have game-tested players who can run with and catch the football, the key signal-caller's job will go to an inexperienced player.

"With the loss of Tom Riordan at quarterback, we are going to have to go with a player (sophomore Lee Saltz) with three games of experience or others with none," moaned second-year Head Coach Bruce Arians. "The competition should be intense, but we are going to be short on talent there."

On the bright side, the Owls welcome back Paul Palmer, last year's freshman phenom who led the club in rushing (628 yards), receiving (33 receptions), touchdowns (eight), and scoring (50 points). Palmer's efforts earned him ECAC Rookie-of-the-Year kudos plus a place on the All-East squad. Roderick Moore and Shelley Poole pool their talents at fullback.

Beside the ubiquitous Palmer, the receiving corps returns wideouts Russell Carter (31 catches) and Willie Marshall (19), along with tight end Don McMullin (12).

The offensive line returns four men who started at some point last year, led by guard John Rienstra and tackle Eric Coss. Rienstra is a 6-3, 280-pounder who runs a 4.8 forty.

Temple's defense must be rebuilt in the middle where the Owls have lost both starting tackles and six of the top seven linebackers from a year ago. Chuck Cohen and Bob Marra could move into starting berths up front, alongside regular ends Tim Hanley, the team's sack leader, and Steve Domonoski.

The linebacking corps will be built around returnee Paul Darragh, an outside backer last year who will be tried in the middle this season. Doug Davis, if he can remain healthy, should help there.

Todd Bowles, the team's fourth leading tackler last year, returns at rover, and the secondary boasts potential with Anthony Young at free safety and Pervis Herder at cornerback. Young made the switch to FS six games into the season and responded with five interceptions. According to Arians, Young is All-America timber.

Jim Cooper and Mike Abbott share FG and PAT duties (8-18 on field goals and 15-16 on extra points) with Kip Shenefelt doing the punting. Shenefelt averaged 44.0 yards per boot last season despite having three blocked.

"We have 22 quality players," insisted Arians. "Our weakness may be that we don't have 22 quality backups"

A lack of depth, inexperience at quarterback, plus a schedule that has the Owls facing Pittsburgh, Florida State, Boston College and West Virginia (among others) will keep Temple below the .500 mark again this season.

Feist's Factors

- Temple is 1-4 vs the points against Pittsburgh since 1973.
- Owls are only 1-3 as a dog when playing West Virginia, the past 11 seasons.
- Temple is 2-4 vs the spread as a home dog of less than 10 since '73.

TENNESSEE Volunteers

Last year's 9-3 record, which included a victory over Maryland in the Florida Citrus Bowl, was the team's best in a decade, and the Vols have a chance to equal that mark in '84... if Johnny Majors has the pieces to complete a complicated puzzle.

Majors' eighth campaign in Knoxville has a lot of "ifs" to it. For instance, the Tennessee defense, which ranked first in the SEC last season in scoring defense, rushing defense and total defense, could be a top notch unit again... if Majors can repair a front line that loses consensus All-America tackle Reggie White, a Lombardi Trophy finalist. And, the offense, despite returning just three starters, could be a competent platoon... if QB Alan Cockrell decides to forego an opportunity to play Major League Baseball in lieu of playing football for the Vols.

On defense, Majors' major concern is replacing White, his "Minister of Defense." Steve Douglas and Tony Simmons are the likely choices with Robbie Scott the heir-apparent at middle guard. Nothing else has to be done as Tennessee returns all four linebackers and secondary personnel from a year ago. The LB contingent is solid with insiders Alvin Toles and Carl Zander joining terminals Reggie McKenzie and Dale Jones. Toles and Zander ranked one-two in tackles while Jones was named to the Football News Freshman All-America team.

Another freshman, Charles Davis, made his mark in the Vol Secondary last year, leading the team in interceptions. Davis will be joined by Joe Cofer, Terry Brown and Tommy Sims. That quartet yielded only five aerial TDs in SEC play last season.

On offense, the numbers aren't impressive, but the talent is. Johnnie Jones led the SEC in rushing average (111.6 per game) last year, becoming Tennessee's first 1,000-yard (1,116, to be exact) rusher, ever. He earned All-Conference accolades for his efforts. Also returning is guard Bill Mayo, another All-SEC pick.

Majors seems to have the replacements at receiver (Tim McGee will do quite nicely there) and fullback (Sam Henderson is a proven commodity), but must fill in the gaps around Mayo on the offensive line. Bruce Wilkerson and Todd Upton are two who should help.

Fuad Reveiz (17-26 FG) and Jimmy Colquitt (42.0 average) form a fine kicking combination.

The Vols have seven home games this year and never leave the South. If Cockrell returns, Tennessee should be in the hunt for the SEC crown and another bowl appearance.

Austin's Edges

- Vols are 11-6 as a SEC home favorite of less than 10 points the past 11 years.
- Tennessee is 5-10 as an away favorite in the Conference, since '73.
- Volunteers have a 3-7 spread record at home vs major independents since 1973.

TEXAS Longhorns

The numbers (just nine starters return) and the schedule (more about that later), aren't in Texas' favor, but if the Longhorns rebuild, it's usually while they're winning, anyway.

Texas comes off a perfect regular season in 1983 into its toughest schedule ever—at least, on paper—missing 26 seniors from the team that came within a couple of minutes of a National Championship. A muffed punt against Georgia in the Cotton Bowl hooked the Horns last year, but a slate that includes Penn State, Auburn, Oklahoma, SMU, et al., could be the thorn in Fred Akers' side this season.

Akers has much more work to do on defense where graduation has claimed eight starters, including top-notch linebacker Jeff Leiding. Still, there's All-America free safety Jerry Gray and All-SWC tackle Tony Degrate as starting points. Gray led the team in total tackles while Degrate was tops in stops behind the line. Linebackers June James and Ty Allert, who alternated at one position last year, likely will earn their own starting assignments this fall. Besides Leiding, the Longhorns will miss DE Eric Holle and All-America cornerback Mossy Cade, whose six interceptions paced the club.

Offensively, only the line lacks depth and experience. Rob Moerschell and Todd Dodge return at quarterback, and while neither has displayed much of a touch as a passer, the aerial game is not stressed in the UT scheme of things. More likely, Moerschell and Dodge will be handing the football off to a deep crew of ball carriers that includes Ronnie Robinson, the leading rusher last fall, Michael Brown, Terry Orr and

Anthony Byerly. And don't forget Edwin Simmons, the heralded hulk (6-4, 220) who injured himself after averaging 8.6 yards per carry through five games last year. Simmons has had corrective knee surgery and will be "a real difference maker," according to Akers. Brent Duhon (26.5-yard average) and Bill Boy Bryant (18.6) are the nearly forgotten wide receivers. The offensive line returns just one starter, tackle Gene Chilton, and even he will be attempting a new position, center, this season.

Texas' kicking game was one of the nation's best last year and should be again in '84. John Teltschik, who averaged 43.7 yards per boot, returns for the punting duties while Jeff Ward is back for the placements. Ward was 15-16 on FG attempts and 31-31 on PATs. Ward was 5-5 from 40 yards or better, inexplicably missing only a 23-yarder.

Texas has a tough schedule, but the Horns are 55-6 in Austin the last 11 years, and that's where they play Auburn and SMU. Penn State and Oklahoma are on neutral turf.

Feist's Factors

- The home team has covered 9-of-11 times in the Texas-Baylor rivalry.
- Texas is a solid 39-29 as SWC favorite (home or away).
- Texas has 7-1 pointspread mark vs Rice; 6-1 against TCU.

TEXAS A&M Aggies

The Aggies are still young, but Jackie Sherrill's recruiting success will begin to pay off this year and A&M should wind up in a bowl game at season's end.

"I feel good about the players we have now," said Sherrill. "They've had a couple of years to become acclimated to our system. They're now aware of what we as a staff are trying to do, and they know what we expect from them in return."

Sherrill's offensive attack was second in the Conference in passing last year, despite the presence of freshman quarterback Kevin Murray in the starting lineup. In fact, Murray wound up being named the SWC's Offensive Newcomer of the Year for his efforts. He, of course, returns, as well as three other sophomores who were part of last year's "baby brigade." They're running backs Rod Bernstine and Roger Vick, and wideout Shea Walker. Vick and Bernstine ranked one-two in rushing while Walker was third in receptions. The man who led the club in receiving, All-SWC tight end Rich Siler, is back, too, along with Jeff Nelson, the other regular at a wideout position.

Four of five starters return up front, as well, including center Matt Darwin, guards Randy Wylie and Ken Reeves, and tackle Nate Staedman. Doug Williams, a hulking 6-6, 296 pound transfer from Kentucky, should claim the vacant tackle spot.

Texas A&M's defense made dramatic improvement last year as the switch from the 4-3 to 3-4 alignment resulted in the Aggies jumping from last to third in the Conference in total defense. Five starters return from that effort, led by All-SWC lineman Ray Childress. Childress topped the Aggies in total tackles and also led in quarterback sacks. Rod Saddler joins Childress up front to give A&M a pair of outstanding ends.

The secondary, with Ken Ford, Domingo Bryany, Wayne Asberry and Darrell Austin, all returning, looks solid, but Sherrill must replace his entire linebacking quartet. A combination of reserves and freshmen will form the new foursome.

Alan Smith, who established a school record with his 18 field goals last year, is a fine kicker, but the Aggies must replace Kyle Stuart, who consistently (41.9-yard average) punted the team out of trouble in 1983.

The Aggies have a cream puff non-league slate with Texas-El Paso, Arkansas State and Iowa State providing only token opposition. With a sweep there, A&M could afford to lose road matches with SMU, Arkansas and Texas--provided the Aggies beat Baylor in College Station--and still emerge with an 8-3 mark, certainly good enough to land the team in a minor bowl.

Austin's Edges

- Texas A&M is 8-19 as an SWC underdog since 1973.
- The favorite has won 8-of-10 in A&M-SMU series.
- Home team is 6-2 vs the spread in Houston-Texas A&M spread decisions the past eight seasons.

TCU Horned Frogs

Narrow misses against Texas and SMU--games in which the Horned Frogs were leading--plus the absence of blowouts, offer some hope that the TCU program is beginning to turn around under the direction of Jim Wacker. The Frogs, who blew a 14-3 halftime lead to Texas (losing, 20-14), and lost to SMU, 21-17, after failing to punch it in from the Mustangs' one-yard line in the waning minutes, nevertheless showed improvement in 1983, setting a school record for first downs while ranking fourth nationally in pass defense, as well.

Wacker listed the development of strength as his top priority for 1984, and only nine days after last year's final game, the Horned Frogs were involved in an ambitious off-season strength and weight program.

"Once we got inside our opponents' 20 (yard line) we were unable to push across a score," lamented Wacker. "I promise you, we are going to work hard at getting bigger and stronger, because we aren't going to let this happen to us in the future."

The man who wound up the most times in the endzone was quarterback Anthony Sciaraffa (four), but Wacker would rather see Sciaraffa throwing the ball to All-SWC receiver James Maness than running it in, himself. Maness, a world class sprinter and track All-America, led the team with 37 receptions and 690 yards last year. Dan Sharp is a regular at tight end, but Wacker must find a speedster on the other side to replace graduated Greg Arterberry in order to take some pressure off Maness. The Frogs also are trying to upgrade a ground game that averaged only 3.1 yards per carry last year. The man to watch here is Ken Davis, who had 682 yards and a 4.7 average last fall as a sophomore. James Benson, Steve Page and Tommy Shehan pave the way, up frnt.

The TCU defense loses six starters from a year ago, but there are excellent players around whom to build. Kent Tramel, the runnerup for SWC Newcomer of the Year honors last fall, is a terror at noseguard while Byron Linwood earned second-team All-SWC kudos at strong safety last year. In between is linebacker Gary Spann, a hard-hitter and heady leader.

Ken Ozee returns for the placements, as does James Gargus for the punting work, but more is expected of the latter, who averaged only 35.3 yards per boot last year.

"TCU will no doubt be a winner under Wacker," said former Arkansas coach Lou Holtz. Maybe, but this year, if the Frogs win three of four games, the season should be considered a success.

Feist's Factors

- The Frogs are 7-16 vs the spread against non-conference teams since 1973.
- TCU is 0-7 as a home favorite the past 11 years.
- Home is 9-2 vs the points in Rice-TCU matchups.

TEXAS TECH Red Raiders

When the bottom fell out of Jerry Moore's 3-2 start at Tech last year, (the Red Raiders wound up 3-7-1), he did the logical thing; he opted for change. Hence, the Raiders have five new assistant coaches, a different defensive alignment, and four fresh faces at quarterback. The Moore the merrier, you might say.

The quarterback situation as critical, especially since Moore's quartet is long on wardrobe changes--each prospect has been redshirted--and short on experience--the group's total of attempted passes is but 52. Perry Morren, a backup last year, is a slim choice over '82 reserve Kevyn Williams and soph sleeper Monte McGuire.

Even without leading receiver Leonard Harris (35 receptions), the Red Raiders have the makings of a competent contingent in wingback Troy Smith (23 receptions) and tight end Buzz Tatom (17). Charles Simpson (10), looks like Harris' replacement.

The running back corps, led by Robert Lewis, is solid. Lewis averaged 93.8 yards per game last year, third best in the SWC. He's joined at I-back by Timmy Smith, a good rusher (4.7 average) and receiver (11), in his own right. Freddie Wells (5-9, 213), sacrifices his body as the blocking fullback.

Three starters return up front, but regular center Jim McIntire could wind up at guard (opposite Joe McMeans) this fall. That'll leave the pivot to either Chris Tanner or Tod Ryden. Joe Walter is all-star material at one tackle while Sid Chambers surely has the size (6-6, 270) at the other.

The change to the 4-3 defense will eliminate a lineman and a linebacker. The new front four will feature Brad White, the team's leading tackler, at one interior post, probably next to slimmed down (he's still 327) Artis Jackson. Wayne Dawson will be at one end, next to Kenneth Sternes, if the latter can recover from knee surgery.

Dwayne Jiles will start at LB while converted DLs Mike Kinsey and Brad Hastings vie with Kansas transfer Kerry Bruno for the other two spots.

Cornerback Carl Carter is the lone returnee in the secondary, forcing Roland Mitchell, a 7-3½ foot high jumper, Rusty Roark and Merv Scurlock into starting roles.

Even though kicking specialist Ricky Gann and punter Dennis Vance return, more improvement is sought here. Gann, an All-SWC choice in 1982, was just 11-21 on FGs last season. Vance's punting average dropped from 41.2 in 1982 to 38.3 in 1983.

Breaking in a new quarterback, AND a new defensive alignment, AND a new coaching staff will pose enough problems to keep the Red Raiders lodged near the bottom of the SWC standings again.

Austin's Edges

- Red Raiders are 3-8 vs the points against Arkansas, since 1973.
- The home team has covered 10-of-11 in Tech-SMU series.
- Texas Tech is only 2-8 vs the spread as a home favorite the past five seasons.

TULANE Green Wave

Wally English's penchant for a wide-open aerial game will be put to the test this season as the second-year Tulane head coach replaces eight offensive starters from 1983's record-breaking attack. English, who has tutored such established signal-callers as Marc Wilson, Jim McMahon (both at BYU), and Dan Marino (at Pittsburgh), will hand the ball over to Ken Karcher, a former Prep All-America, who has transferred from Notre Dame. Karcher will be looking to hook up with Larry Route, whose 38 receptions last year earned him a spot on the Freshman All-America team. Route runs his routes from tight end. Mark Savini (26 receptions in '83), further strengthens the tight end post, but the wide receivers will lack experience.

The running game will be paced by Mike Jones, who ran for 360 yards and a 4.1-yard average last year. Jones also caught 25 balls coming out of the backfield. Lester Lavalais is being moved from defensive tackle to fullback in order to take advantage of his 255 pounds.

The Green Wave will rely on a juco recruiting class judged to be one of the best in the nation to fill holes along the offensive front.

"Next to Illinois, Tulane did the best job in recruiting junior college athletes in the nation," said Max Emfinger of the National High School Recruiting Service.

Tulane's defense wasn't terrible last year, but it wasn't awfully good, either. The Green Wave returns seven starters, the best of the bunch being Burnell Dent, a hard-hitting linebacker with a nose for the ball. Dent led the team in tackles last year. He's just a junior. One of Dent's LB mates will be Eddie Neal, a steady senior who has improved each season at Tulane. Chris Cannon is the most experienced hand up front while the secondary is spearheaded by aggressive Treg Songy and ball-hawking Curt Baham, the safety men. Gene Harris and Kevin Tate will be at the corners.

Tulane's kicking game, with Tony Wood back for another season, appears solid. Wood was selected first team Associated Press All-South Independent last year on the strength of 14 FGs in 20 attempts and an 18-for-18 PAT mark. Wood did not miss inside of 48 yards last year and is 29-46 lifetime for the Green Wave. James Barkey, who did the punting last year, also returns.

Tulane will face a tough schedule this season, meeting eight teams that had winning records in 1983. Five of that group went to bowls. Also, there are just four games slated for the Superdome, so, in order to avoid another losing season, the Green Wave will have to win on the road.

Don't count on that.

Feist's Factors

- Tulane is 7-17 at home vs the spread against independents the past 11 seasons.
- Green Wave is 8-4 vs the points as an away favorite under -10, since 1973.
- Greenies are 14-7 vs the pointspread as an underdog of +10 or more since '73.

UCLA Bruins

The Bruins chances for a third straight Rose Bowl appearance seem to hinge on Terry Donahue's ability to repair his graduation-riddled secondary.

"Our big task is to replace two first-round draft choices," admitted Donahue, referring to All-America safety Don Rogers and All-Coast cornerback Lupe Sanchez. "If we receive some come-through performances from some of our key personnel, I feel we will once again compete for the Conference Championship."

Among the key defensive personnel is Neal Dellocono, an honorable mention All-America who will head the stop troops from his linebacker post. Lee Knowles is another returning starter at linebacker and Steve Jarecki and Tony Phillips certainly know the ropes.

Up front, the Bruins are paced by honorable mention All-Pac-10 tackle David Randle, nose guard Chris Block, who is recovering from a broken wrist, and tackle Mark Walen.

Joe Gasser, at strong safety, and cornerback Ron Pitts are the incumbents in the secondary. Herb Welch will try and replace Sanchez while Sean Armstrong, basically a special teams player, gets the nod to take over for Rogers.

If there are minimal problems on defense, there are virtually none on offense where the Bruins return nine starters. The cast of returnees is headed by a pair of All-Pac-10 performers, tackle Duval Love and wide receiver Mike Sharrard. Love is in the tradition of recent UCLA linemen who have made their mark like Luis Sharpe with the St. Louis Cardinals and Irv Eatman with the Philadelphia Stars. Joining Love, up front, are guards Mark Mannon and Jim McCullough, center Dave Baran, and tackle Onno Zwaneveld.

Sharrard, who caught 48 balls to lead the club last year, heads up a receiving crew that also boasts Mike Young (22 receptions, 19.8 average) and Karl Dorrell (26, 15.0). Derek Tenell, a converted fullback, takes over at tight end from graduated All-America Paul Bergmann.

The UCLA quarterback post will be manned by Steve Bono, the heir-apparent to Rick Neuheisel. Bono moved into the starting lineup against BYU last year, throwing for 399 yards and three TDs vs the Cougars, but a shoulder separation curtailed his season. His seasonal stats (33-of-48 passing, a .688 completion percentage) and Donahue's confidence in him indicate he can do the job.

The running back corps loses its top two rushers, but returnees Danny Andrews and Bryan Wiley, plus heralded recruits Eric Ball and Gaston Green, make this area a strength.

With a solid kicking game and a favorable schedule (seven home dates) UCLA again will be a strong contender for the Pac-10 title.

Austin's Edges

- Bruins are 11-5 vs the points as an underdog, since 1973.
- UCLA is 14-4 as a home favorite of -20 or more the past 11 years.
- The favorite is 6-2 when UCLA plays night games on the road, since '73.

The Weekly Encyclopedia of Football & Basketball

Sportsform's Revolutionary Formula Predetermines Winners

The Most Comprehensive Source of Football
(and Basketball) Reference Information Anywhere!
(...and the Las Vegas Bookmakers Know It!)

There is panic in the pointspreads.

And it is time for you to be ahead of the times.

Sportsform has been banned in Las Vegas and that means if you are reading it, you have access to information that is making the bookmakers look hard at their pointspread betting rules.

They are street smart out there in Vegas and they want everything to go their way. Remember the man from Utah who perfected a system of counting the deck, and walked away with a cool $100,000 in winnings? They stopped his perfectly legal system, changed operations so it couldn't happen again. His way of play has been outlawed in every casino on the Nevada Strip. They don't play blackjack that way any more.

That's what is happening with Sportsform's New Statistical Formula.

All the new facts for pre-determining pointspread winners in college and pro football were put into computers.

Pre-analysis of every factor was made in dry-run testing, using information that had to affect the outcome. In hundreds of tests the Sportsform Statistical Formula worked successfully.

And the word leaked out, thus, in Las Vegas, the betting capital of the Universe, where no bookmaking establishment is willing to risk wagers against a sure thing, the decision was made to ban the sale of Sportsform.

So what if Sportsform is banned in Las Vegas?

It is not banned to you.

You can have this informative weekly throughout every football and basketball season and we will tell you now—unconditionally—if it is not everything we say it is, we'll give you your money back.

Series Record: Oklahoma 43-21-5
Last Game: 1978; Oklahoma 45, Missouri 23
Though the Cornhuskers have stolen some of their thunder this year, the Sooners are still an awesome collection of athletes and a major force in the Big Eight. With scoring machine Billy Sims exploding out of the backfield, Oklahoma is a constant threat to strike pay dirt.
PREDICTION: Oklahoma 31, Missouri 28

USC Trojans

Coming off a two-year NCAA probation and a shocking 4-6-1 campaign, USC Head Coach Ted Tollner and the Trojans are out for revenge.

"We're coming back in 1984 with a vengeance," confirmed Tollner. "We let a high standard of excellence slip last year. We have excellent ability and should have a very respectable team, but until we prove it on the field, there will be a question mark next to our name."

Hoping to help erase that question mark are 17 returning starters. The offense, which returns nine of them, will be led by Sean Salisbury, who needs only 67 more completions to become Troy's all-time passing leader. Salisbury will be looking to hook up with Hank Norman, Joe Cormier and Timmie Ware, last year's starting receiving crew. Norman had 31 receptions, Cormier 28, and Ware 23, the latter with a 20.9 average and five TDs.

The running game, meanwhile, returns regulars in Fred Crutcher (528 yards) and Kennedy Pola (109), but great things are already being predicted for Ryan Knight, the Trojans' premier recruit and a high school All-America. Knight is part of a freshman class judged among the country's finest.

Paving the way up front is another blue-ribbon offensive line. The quintet is paced by guard Tom Hallock, a second-team All-Conference choice, and his counterpart, Freshman All-America Jeff Bregel. Between them is juco All-America Andy Baroncelli, the replacement for All-America pivot Tony Slaton. The tackles are honorable mention All-Conference Ken Ruettgers and James FitzPatrick.

Eight starters return on defense, including 12 of USC's top 15 tacklers from a year ago. The contingent is led by two-time All-Pac-10 linebacker Jack Del Rio, and his partner, honorable mention All-Conference backer Duane Bickett. They make up the best OLB combo in the Pac-10. Between them is great depth... if everyone remains healthy.

Matt Koart, Brian Luft and Tony Colorito return to starting assignments up front while the secondary boasts regulars in Tommy Haynes and Duane Jackson on the corners with Jerome Tyler at safety. Tim McDonald should be the new strong safety. Haynes and Tyler are honorable mention All-Pac-10ers.

Steve Jordan, who already holds the USC career record for field goals (34) returns to boost the kicking game while punter Troy Richardson (41.6-yard average) also is back.

USC's schedule is tough, but many who took advantage of the Trojans' plight last year are going to pay the price for that success this season.

Feist's Factors

- USC is only 2-8 vs the spread against Washington since '73.
- The visitor is 8-3 vs the points in USC-Stanford rivalry.
- Trojans 5-13 vs the point-spread as a favorite of less than 10 against non-conference foes the past 11 yrs.

VANDERBILT Commodores

Vanderbilt will have to shore-up its defense and come up with a ground game if Kurt Page's aerial acrobatics are to be flipped into victories and not just glimmering numbers in the NCAA stat book. Page established three SEC single season passing marks last year and finished second in the nation in total offense to BYU All-America quarterback Steve Young, but the Commodores won only two games.

"The passing game of Kurt Page to Chuck Scott and Keith Edwards is our greatest team strength," said Head Coach George MacIntyre, "but we must establish a better running game, especially in the goal line area."

Only seven of Vandy's 22 touchdowns came via the ground route as the Commodores averaged only 2.6 yards per rush last year. Edwards made second team All-SEC at full-back, but it was more an award for his receiving--he led the nation with 97 catches--than his ball-toting. Carl Woods, with 644 yards, led Vandy in rushing.

Scott earned All-SEC honors at tight end last year and ranked fourth, nationally, with 70 receptions. He and Edwards again will be the primary targets for Page, although wideout Ardell Fuller (15 receptions) is a returning starter, too.

Technically, Vandy returns three starters on the offensive line, but that number could grow to six (for five positions), if former regulars Bill Fletcher and Steve Olinger (knees), plus Rob Monaco (eligibility) work their way back in the picture. The incumbents are Will Wolford, Darrell Denson and Jim Dralle.

Vanderbilt's defense should get a jolt from Manuel Young, the "glue" of the secondary who went down in the season opener vs Maryland and missed the rest of the year. Young, when healthy, boasts "all" potential at cornerback. Karl Jordan and Steve McCoy are capable linebackers, but the former may wind up at defensive tackle, a weakness last year for the Commodores. The other regulars up front are John Windham and Steve Wade, while Kermit Sykes is a returning starter in the secondary.

All-SEC punter Ricky Anderson returns to bail Vandy out of some tough spots. Anderson also does the placement work (10-16 FG) for the Commodores.

Vanderbilt's schedule is similar to last year's with eight common opponents. LSU replaces Florida this year and Kansas and Kansas State join the slate in place of Iowa State and Memphis State, but the basic script--Vanderbilt's aerial attack trying to keep pace with its own generous defense--is the same. The Commodores will be exciting, but not very successful.

Austin's Edges

- Vanderbilt is only 14-22 as an underdog on the road the past 11 years.
- Commodores are only 3-8 vs the points against Kentucky since 1973.
- Vandy is 4-1 as a conference underdog under the lights.

VIRGINIA Cavaliers

As promised and predicted (but maybe not expected so soon), George Welsh has turned the Virginia football program right around. The former Navy Head Coach led the Cavs to a 6-5 season in '83, his second in Charlottesville, and to give you an indication of just how mighty an accomplishment that was, it marked only the third winning season for UVA football since 1952.

"The winning season last fall helped us recruit better and I think our squad now has an idea of what it takes to have a winning season," said Welsh. "They had a taste of winning and, hopefully, they'll want a little bit more."

The major question mark for Welsh and the Cavaliers is at quarterback where record-holder Wayne Schuchts has completed his eligibility. Four players are competing for the spot, led by Dan Majkowski, last season's backup, but the position, according to Welsh, remains wide open.

Virginia also has some holes to fill at wide receiver, losing split end Billy Smith (42 receptions), as well as tight end Bill Griggs (23). Nick Merrick, who caught 20 passes last year, will move from flanker to split end, but the other two spots will have inexperienced players.

Howard Petty, who set UVA frosh marks last year with 835 yards rushing and seven TDs, returns at tailback, freeing Antonio Rice, whose frosh records Petty broke, to move to fullback. Virginia's running game should be excellent, especially if the offensive line plays up to capacity. The unit is led by All-ACC tackle Jim Dombrowski. Other starters are guard Bob Olderman and center Harold Garren. Jim Huddleston, the starter at the other guard spot last year, has been suspended by Welsh pending the outcome of a court case having to do with an altercation last winter. Steve Karriker has taken over the guard duties, perhaps permanently, with Paul Sierocinski at tackle.

The Virginia defense is an experienced group with nine starters returning, including All-ACC pick Lester Lyles at strong safety and linebacker Charles McDaniel, the team's leading tackler for the second year in-a-row. Rom Mattes, David Bond and Tom Kilgannon are the mainstays of a rugged front line.

Kenny Stadlin (12-16 FGs) returns for the placement work, but the status of punter Jeff Walker is questionable because of academic considerations.

Welsh has Virginia headed in the right direction, so if he can solve the quarterback dilemma, the Cavaliers should have another successful season.

"I think, overall, we should be a good football team," he said.

Agreed.

Feist's Factors

- The Cavs are 7-0 as an underdog against N.C. State since '73.
- Virginia is 11-21 as an away underdog in the ACC, since 1973.
- Cavaliers are 1-7 as a favorite in the ACC the past 11 seasons.

VIRGINIA TECH Gobblers

Tech led the nation in scoring defense (8.3 points per game) and rushing defense (69.4 yards per game) and were second in total defense last year, trends that could continue in 1984. One big reason is Bruce Smith, the 275-pound tackle who registered 31 tackles behind the line (including 22 QB sacks) last season. Smith teams with holdovers Jesse Penn and Orlando Williams to provide head Coach Bill Dooley with another stubborn front line. The Tech secondary, where Ashley Lee heads up a veteran unit, also is solid, but the line-backing contingent must be rebuilt. Graduation claimed Mike Johnson and James Robinson, the Gobblers' top two tacklers last year, leaving Noland Hazzard and Allen Little the most experienced LB defenders. But look for redshirt frosh Jamel Agemy and freshman Lawrence White to contribute, too.

The Hokies' offense started slowly, but wound up averaging 27.4 points per game last year. Eight starters return, with Tech being especially deep at running back where the top four ball-carriers are back. Otis Copeland (709 yards), Maurice Williams (442), Eddie Hunter (395) and Desmar Becton (371 and a 7.7 yards per carry average) helped Tech average 279 rushing per game last year, fourth best total in the nation.

Leading the attack is quarterback Mark Cox, a steady performer who does what he has to in order to win. Cox threw for 1,188 yards (55 percent accuracy) last year with nine TD lobs against just seven interceptions. Favorite target Mike Shaw has graduated at tight end, but wideouts

Clarence Nelson (21 receptions) and Steve Ellsworth (17) return. Redshirt freshman Steve Johnson has the size (6-5, 225) to take over at tight end... if he can beat out senior Joe Jones.

The offensive line is solid, led by center Mark Johnson and tackle Billy Leeson. Johnson made a sophomore All-America team last fall while Leeson could be headed for some "all" honors of his own this season. Kent Thomas and Vincent Johnson return at guard with Tom Hartman, a parttime starter, pencilled in for fulltime duty at the other tackle position.

David Cox (41.0 average) is back to handle the punting chores, but Tech coaches are not satisfied with the placekicking situation where Don Wade connected on only eight-of-16 tries last year. Allen Talbott, the kickoff man, will get a look there.

The schedule, with Clemson and Temple (both on the road) replacing Memphis State and Louisville, is tougher than a year ago, but Tech's defense will keep the Gobblers close to last season's lofty achievements.

Austin's Edges

- Virginia Tech is 9-4 vs the spread and the ACC when favored by less than 10 the past 11 years.
- The favorite is 8-3 in the Virginia Tech-West Virginia series, since 1973.
- Gobblers are only 1-4 vs the points as an away favorite against Independents.

WAKE FOREST Deacons

Seventeen returning starters give Al Groh some reason for optimism, but the fourth-year Wake Forest head coach has a big hole to fill at quarterback, and, oh, that defense!

Eight regulars return to the Deacon attack that averaged 23.4 points per game last year, but the straw that stirred the drink, QB Gary Schofield, has graduated. Schofield threw for 2,253 yards and 16 touchdowns last fall so his departure is significant. Last year's backup, little-used Foy White (6-12 passing), has first crack at the QB job with Georgia transfer Jamie Harris in quick pursuit.

The Wake Forest running back corps, led by Mike Ramseur, is deep and talented. Ramseur rushed for 966 yards in earning ACC Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1982, and led the Deacs with 629 yards (5.0 average) last season. Topper Clemons (562 yards) completes the one-two punch, but watch Darryl McGill, North Carolina's high school Player-of-the-Year.

The receiving crew is not deep, but does retain top pass-catcher Duane Owens (46 grabs). Two of Wake's top recruits, Greg Scales and David Braxton, could help out here.

Wake Forest's top eight defenders return, but the Deacons were hardly impenetrable last year, yielding over 25 points per game. Still, it was an improvement over the 29 points per game surrendered in 1982, giving Groh and his staff some reason for optimism.

The most solid area is the secondary where all four regulars return. The quartet is headed by Reggie McCummings, the team's leading tackler, and Ronnie Burgess, who is just one grab away from being Wake Forest's all-time leading interception leader. Rory Holt and David Johnson complete the foursome.

Defensive line is a concern, especially in view of the fact that the Deacons gave up an average of 5.2 yards per rushing attempt last year. Gary Baldinger and Mark Roth are returning regulars there.

The linebacking crew is led by inside men Malcolm Hairston and Tony Scott, but the Deacs need help on the outside.

Danny Nolan again will be the Deacon placekicker, but the man getting the ink will be punter Harry Newsome, a two-time All-ACC selection whose 45.5-yard punting average was second in the country last year.

It looks like the Deacons will be a little improved on defense and not quite as good on offense. That should translate into another season that yields results similar to last year's.

Feist's Factors

- The dog has covered 10-of-11 Wake Forest games following the Maryland game.
- The visitor has won 9-of-11 spread decisions in Wake Forest-Duke rivalry.
- Wake Forest is 8-4 vs the points as a dog from +20 to +28 the past 11 years.

WASHINGTON Huskies

The graduation of record-setting quarterback Steve Pelluer puts the Huskies in a bit of a bind this season, forcing Head Coach Don James to alter his offensive philosophy a bit.

"First of all, we won't be able to do as much, offensively," admitted James. "Hopefully, we can take some pressure off the quarterback by playing better defense. It goes back to how we handled our quarterbacks in the past, like when Pelluer was a sophomore. You're not as likely to throw on the extreme ends of the field. You want to get more on a first-down running play. That's the key."

The running game downs have a bunch of talented performers--Jacque Robinson, Cookie Jackson, Brenno DeFeo and Walt Hunt--but the offensive line, which paves the way for the infantry, must be rebuilt. Dennis Maher and Dan Eernisse return, but eight seniors have departed from the front five positions.

"We'll be rebuilding this year, and then next year we'll get wiped out again," lamented James.

Taking over for Pelluer will be Paul Sicuro, the backup a year ago. While Sicuro doesn't have much game experience, the presence of a talented receiving crew, led by honorable mention All-Pac-10 wideout Danny Greene, ought to help.

On the other side of the ball, the Huskies lose three starters in the defensive line, but the lone returnee there, tackle Ron Holmes, is a first-team All-Conference pick. James compares Holmes to other Husky tackles like Doug Martin (Minnesota Vikings) and Fletcher Jenkins (Los Angeles Express).

The linebacking corps is very solid with veterans like Joe Krakoski, Tim Meamber and Joe Kelly back for another season. Krakoski led the Huskies in tackles last year.

Washington's secondary gave up only seven TDs via the air last year and three starters are back from that effort. Look for Vestee Jackson and J.C. Pearson on the corners with Jim Rodgers at safety. Redshirt Tim Peoples will complete the quartet.

The Husky kicking again will fall to returning sophomore starters Thane Cleland and Jeff Jaeger. Cleland had a 38.0-yard average punting last year while Jaeger was 20-26 on field goal attempts, including 52-yards against Oregon and Ohio State.

The Husky schedule has only one tough non-league test, a trip to Ann Arbor and revenge-minded Michigan. Pac-10 tests include journeys to USC and Washington State among the tougher offerings.

Washington has been first or second in the League for the past seven seasons, but that streak, and James, surely will be tested in 1984.

Austin's Edges

- Huskies are 8-3 on the road when the line is to pick 2½ (plus or minus).
- The favorite is only 2-5 vs the pointspread when Washington takes on Big 10 opponents.
- Washington is 0-3 as a home conference favorite of -20 to -28.

WASHINGTON STATE Cougars

Which Cougars are we going to see this year, the ones that opened the season at 2-4 or the ones that closed it at 5-0? Contenders or pretenders?

"Our people look around and say what we did was no fluke," insisted Head Coach Jim Walden. "We didn't go out and win with tipped balls at the end of the game. The difference in the last five games was the elimination of turnovers. We stopped getting the foolish penalties and we eliminated turnovers."

Down the stretch, Washington State beat two top 20 teams, Arizona State and Washington, both on the road. The Coogs return plenty of talent from that effort as Walden welcomes back 33 of last year's top 44 players, including 14 starters. Given this depth of experience, the Cougars may prove more than spoilers this year, something they've been the last two, knocking state rival Washington out of the Rose Bowl.

Offensively, WSU got a break from the NCAA when All-Pac-10 guard Dan Lynch was granted an extra year of eligibility. Lynch, therefore, may get to play in his second Senior Bowl next January, an interesting concept. Also returning the Cougars' offensive line are center Curt Landines and guard Mike Palumbo. Peter Emsky and Mike Schuster will be the new tackles.

Mark Rypien, who won the starting quarterback job last fall only to break his collarbone, returns to claim the spot. Rypien played in four games last year, hitting half his 56 pass attempts.

The Cougars return their top six pass-catchers from 1983, as well as their best running back, John Marshall heads the receiving crew while Kerry Porter, the first WSU back to rush for 1,000 yards in a decade, tops the infantry. Porter earned All-Pac-10 accolades for his accomplishment.

The Cougars were third in the Conference in total defense last year and six starters return from that effort. The platoon is led by honorable mention linebacker Lee Blakeney, the team's leading tackler. Ben Carillo joins Blakeney inside with a host of candidates ready for duty outside.

Washington State loses three starters up front, but Walden has replacements for two of them in Milford Hodge and Erik Howard. The third starter could be one of State's younger players, a freshman or sophomore.

Three-year starter Jerald Waters heads a secondary that is known for its quickness. Other regulars are Steve Haub, Cedrick Brown and Erwin Chappel.

The kicking game is solid thanks to John Traut (16-26 FG) and punter Glenn Harper (42.0 average).

The Cougars look more like contenders than pretenders to us.

Feist's Factors

- Washington State is 31-14 in games where the spread is 10 or more (plus or minus).
- Cougars are 5-2 vs the spread against teams from the Big 10 the past 11 seasons.
- WSU is 25-12 vs the spread the last four years.

WEST VIRGINIA Mountaineers

West Virginia has produced three straight 9-3 seasons under Head Coach Don Nehlen, but the Mounties will have to overcome the loss of All-America quarterback Jeff Hostetler, and patch up a defense that has been ravaged by graduation, for the trend to continue in 1984.

Hostetler's departure leaves a gaping hole at quarterback. Kevin White, who started two games last fall (6-15 passing), will get first crack at the QB job, but Nehlen also will take a look at Tony Reda, among others. Besides Hostetler, the only other missing offensive starter will be wideout Rich Hollins, the team's leading receiver (50 receptions in 1983).

The ground game, led by backs Tom Gray (498 yards), Ron Wolfley (485) and Pat Randolph, is in good shape, and the Mounties have proven receivers in Ron Bennett (24), Gary Mullen (20) and Wayne Brown (19).

West Virginia's offensive line should be a strength. Bill Legg, the center, will be a four-year starter while Scott Barrows and Dave DeJarnett begin work on their third monograms at guard. Tackles Kurt Kehl and Brian Jozwiak are two year regulars. With Hostetler and Hollins gone, look for the Mountaineers to run the ball more in '84.

Commencement exercises have left only four starting defenders from last year's Hall of Fame Bowl outfits. The Mounties will have to rally 'round inside linebackers Derek Christian and Dave Preston, as well as deep backs Mike Scott and Anthony Daniels.

The new front line will be built around reserves like Ernie Anderson, Dale McDonald, Brad Hunt and David Grant while Nehlen will look to Can Zopp, Fred Smalls and West Turner to fill the twin vacancies at outside linebacker.

The secondary lost two fine players in Tim Agee (the team's leading tackler) and Steve Newberry, but Daniels (second in stops) and Scott are a good starting point from which to build. Arthur Ashe--not the one who plays tennis--surely will fill one secondary vacancy with the other up for grabs. West Virginia's defensive platoon will be very young.

The Mountie kicking game should be excellent with All-America placement ace Steve Woodside (59-70 career FGs) and punter Steve Superick (40.5-yard average) back for another season.

West Virginia faces Virginia Tech, Maryland, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, Boston College and Penn State in the middle of its schedule, but four of those six games are in Morgantown, and the rest of the slate is not nearly so demanding. The Mounties won't be 9-3 again, but should be good enough to have a winning record and go to their fourth straight bowl game under Nehlen.

Austin's Edges

- The visitor is 7-0 vs the spread in the West Virginia-Maryland rivalry.
- The favorite is 8-3 in the West Virginia-Virginia Tech series.
- The Mountaineers are 3-9 as a home favorite between -4 and -9½ since '73.

WISCONSIN Badgers

Wisconsin's chances or a fourth consecutive seven-victory season will be challenged by a schedule that has the Badgers on the road against Conference contenders Illinois, Michigan and Iowa, plus Missouri of the Big Eight.

Wisconsin will attempt to meet that challenge with 18 returning starters, the most in the Big-10. Ten of them are back on offense, but the man that did the most, quarterback Randy Wright, has graduated. Wright led the Badgers to 11 school marks last year as Wisconsin averaged 33 points per game. Filling Wright's shoes will be sophomore Mike Howard, whose experience was limited to 10 throws (he completed six) last year. Nevertheless, Howard's transition from backup to starter should be eased by the presence of a blue-ribbon supporting cast.

Al Toon, the Conference's leading receiver in yardage (788), average (20.7) and touchdowns (seven), returns, along with regulars Bret Pearson (34 receptions) and Michael Jones (24). Toon was an All-Big-10 pick while Pearson and Jones were honorable mention choices.

At running back, the top four ball-carriers return, led by Gary Ellerson, a Big-10 HM pick. Ellerson had 777 yards. Larry Emery had 336 yards and a 6.0 average while Joe Armetrout chipped in 326 yards with a 6.3 average.

On defense, the Badgers look to Jim Melka, a first-team All-Big-10 linebacker who has led the team in tackles the past two seasons. Russ Fields, Rick Graf and Michael Reid join Melka at linebacker.

Wisconsin started two freshmen--Lance Branaman and Jim Kmet--on the line last year and sometimes paid the price. Head Coach Dave McClain will be looking for dividends for his patience, this year. Senior Scott Bergold completes the front three alignment.

The Badger secondary has experience with seniors Russ Bellford, Richard Johnson, Ken Stills and Averick Walker. Bellford led the team in interceptions last year with four.

Placement specialist Kevin Rohde and punter George Winslow both have graduated, leaving four aspirants to compete for the two openings.

For the Badgers to gain their fourth consecutive seven-victory season, they'll have to either win one of those tough road contests or beat Ohio State in Madison. Neither is an easy task, but neither is impossible. Howard holds the key.

Feist's Factors

- Wisconsin is 10-1 vs the points against Minnesota, the last 11 years
- The favorite is only 1-10 in the Wisconsin-Purdue rivalry.
- Badgers are 10-6 as a home dog against the "Little Seven" (Big 10 minus Ohio State and Michigan).

YALE Bulldogs

Injuries and ineffectiveness brought about the losingest season (1-9) in Yale history, last year, and while Head Coach Carm Cozza can't do anything about the former, he certainly plans to change the latter.

"We obviously want to improve on our record and I hope that at the end we're in the thick of it (Ivy League race)," said Cozza. "We are going to be a better football team over a year ago."

The Bulldogs will start with some experience at quarterback, a luxury they didn't have last season. Mike Curtin, who won the job as a sophomore last season, will be the man to watch. Curtin has size, speed, and a strong arm, but must rebound from ankle surgery which was performed on him during the off-season. If it's curtains for Curtin, look for Michael Stewart, up from the 4-1-1 Bullpups, to push for a starting job.

The glamorous I-back job, once held by Calvin Hill, Dick Jauron and Rich Diana, will be in inexperienced hands this fall since Paul Andrie, who played all of last year with a broken arm, has graduated. Dave Kline, who saw some work last season, will get the call. Ed Macauley, the frosh rushing leader, is another possibility.

Kevin Moriarity, who led the Elis in receiving with 27 grabs last year, returns at split end and should be a top pass-catching threat. Also worth watching is Marc Quinlivan who has both size (6-6) and speed (he averaged 20.3 yards per catch last year). Eugene Profit, a track team sprinter, looks good for the wingback spot with Andy Marwede pencilled in for tight end.

Marty Martinson, at center, guard Steve Anderer and tackle Steve Swara form the framework of an offensive line that may also rely on the incoming soph class to provide some able bodies.

Seven starters return on defense, along with Carmen Ilacqua, who was lost to the Elis before the season even started last year. Ilacqua will start at linebacker next to Ardel McKenna, an honorable mention All-Ivy pick.

John Zanieski is a troublemaker (102 tackles, eight sacks, 13 stops behind the line) up front, and earned second-team All-Ivy accolades for his antics. He's at middle guard. Also returning is tackle Kaare Kolstad and Bob Keenan. Yves LaBisiere terrorized opposing frosh and was the Bullpups' MVP.

Tim Kotkiewicz, Bob Dooley and Steve Penders give Yale three starters in the secondary, and the kicking game also is in veteran hands (or feet) with placement specialist Bill Moore and punter Hank Eaton both returning.

Yale plays six of its nine games in New Haven this year, the right type of schedule from which to stage a comeback. Count on it.

Austin's Edges

- Elis are 7-4 as a home dog the last 11 years.
- Yale is 6-3 vs the points at home against Independents, since '73.
- Bulldogs are 9-2 vs Princeton and the points.
